Canadians in Pacific

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN EUROPE, May 14 (AP)—A Canadian far eastern force will be organized on American lines, use American equipment and serve with the Americans, it was learned here tonight. Terms of service in the far east have not yet been received from Ottawa but Canadians who intend to volunteer hope they will receive American rates of pay.

GUAM, May 15 [Tuesday]—(AP)—Infantry men of the 96th division captured the Yonabaru airdrome in a 2,400 yard surge down the east coast of Okinawa yesterday, and took 480 foot Conical hill near-by to form the jaw of a pincers on the fortress city of Shuri.

On the west flank, the 6th marine division still was held on the north bank of the Asato river in the northern section of Naha. The Japanese were resisting bitterly all along the line with artillery, mortar, and small arms fire.

Adm. Nimitz announced this progress today in a bulletin which reported 46 Japanese planes shot down in attacks on American fleet groups. One major fleet vessel and two light units were damaged.

Japs Damage Two Ships

Japanese aircraft again pounced on the American invasion fleet off Okinawa Sunday evening, causing some damage to two light surface units. Twenty-five enemy planes were shot down, eight of them by destroyers' guns.

Enemy aircraft bombed installations ashore on Okinawa on Monday, but failed to cause material damage.

United States carrier task forces were attacked by Japanese planes on Monday, and one ship was reported damaged. Twenty-one Japanese planes were shot down in this raid.

Yonabaru air field was the third major airdrome on the Okinawa mainland seized by the Yanks. They took the Katena and Yontan fields shortly after the April 1 invasion. Later a large airdrome on Ie Island near-by was secured.

Naha Airdrome Next

A prime objective of the southward push is the Naha airdrome, about two miles south of Naha. This is the largest airdrome in the entire Ryukyu chain.

Nimitz reported that two rifle companies of the 96th infantry division completed capture of Conical hill Sunday. The hill is 2,500 yards east of Shuri. Its seizure, Nimitz said, "permitted our left flank to advance 2,400 yards southward along the east coast, bringing Yonabaru airstrip into our possession."

Heavy gunfire by ships of the Pacific fleet and bombing and strafing attacks on enemy positions by carrier and land based planes closely supported the ground operations.

Lt. Col Robert W. Thomas said the enemy was using anti-tank guns, satchel charges, and tank mines in an effort to stall the American offensive. The Nipponese had organized special anti-tank teams to try Boost Civilian Tire Allotments by 50 Per Cent!

'B' and 'C' Car Drivers Get New Casings

Washington, D. C., May 14 (AP)—A 50 per cent increase in passenger car tire rations for this month was announced today by the war production board. This will add 500,000 tires to the number to be distributed by OPA. The May increase is being prorated thruout the month.

At WPB, it was stated that as newly increased manufacturing schedules go into effect "tires will be released in increasing numbers."

Spokesmen for the WPB and OPA indicated another increase about as large may be expected in June.

The improvement in rations, attributed directly to the lowered military demand in the wake of victory in Europe, will provide civilian motorists with 1,500,000 casings during the month of May. This is 500,000 more than the allocation for April.

Increase in Quarter

The tire production schedule for rubber companies has been increased from 3,200,000 tires in the April-May-June quarter to 5,200,000, WPB said. Production goals for the July-August-September quarter will be announced upon completion of studies of man power and materials.

Only "B" and "C" gasoline ration holders now are eligible to obtain new tires, and even with today's increase it appears that "A" drivers must wait for some time before going on the eligible list.

The "B" and "C" drivers whose tires cannot be recapped must obtain authorization for new tires thru local ration boards.

Lift Restrictions on Clocks

Restrictions on production and distribution of spring driven and electric alarm clocks and galvanized ware were revoked, but WPB said it expected no substantial increase in production of either immediately.

The action merely allows more production whenever military contracts, materials, and labor permit.

Production of alarm clocks is running at about one-third the pre-war rate of 12,500,000 annually, and WPB said the pre-war rate might not be achieved until Japan's defeat.

Scarcity of steel sheet and man power will prevent an immediate increase in production of galvanized ware.

Brakes on Reconversion

There was growing evidence the government is applying the brakes to reconversion activity.

WPB has decided, with the concurrence of War Mobilization Director Vinson, to keep in force thruout 1945 its machinery for allocating steel, copper, and aluminum—the "controled materials plan."

This policy is subject to change next fall.

After July 1 civilian manufacturers will have access to the metals without priority, but will get only such quantities as mills are able to supply after meeting the urgent war and essential civilian needs.

It also was learned that WPB now plans merely to raise the ceiling of its five month old freeze on civilian production instead of scrapping it completely.

The freeze forbade increases in programs of civilian goods manufacture above the level of the October-November-December quarter of 1944. This was a sharp restraint, since civilian output at that time was feeling the pinch of military reverses in Europe.

Kisses in '99 Become $500 Legacy in '45

The kisses bestowed by Mrs. Clara Mohr Carcy 46 years ago upon Arthur J. Machek, then a young mechanic, brought her $500 yesterday.

Mrs. Clara Mohr Carey

Machek, a well-to-do machine shop owner in Milwaukee, died recently. His will, filed for probate there yesterday, left $500 to Mrs. Carcy, "with whom, together, I kept company when we were 21 years old, in 1899, and who made the only voluntary demonstration of real affection I received in my life, and who gave me the only kisses I ever got."

Worked in Same Plant

The kisses were 12 in number, Mrs. Carcy, who now is employed as a pantry worker in the Villa Moderne, a night club on Skokie rd. just south of County Line rd., west of Glencoe, recalled yesterday.

"We both worked for an electric company in Milwaukee," she said. "I was a coil winder. He ran a lathe. We only had 12 dates. I kissed him good night each time and then ran in the house."

Money to Go in Bank

Mrs. Carcy saw Machek again in 1939, when she returned to Milwaukee for a visit, and he again asked her to marry him but she told him she was already married. Her husband is Francois Carcy, a cook at the Villa Moderne, whom she married in 1901. They have a son, Lawrence, 24.

"I certainly feel good that he remembered me," said Mrs. Carcy. She said she will put the money in the bank.

PURGING FLAMES WILL DESTROY NOTORIOUS NAZI PRISON CAMP

WITH BRITISH FORCES IN GERMANY, May 14 [Reuters]—The Belsen death camp is to be burned to the ground on May 21.

Destruction by fire is considered by authorities to be the only safe way to rid a wide area of northern Germany from the threat of infection and contagious diseases bred in the camp for years.

DIAMOND LARGE AS EGG TO BE SOLD UNCUT

LONDON, May 14 [Reuters]—The world's biggest uncut diamond, about the size of a chicken egg, has been brought to Britain from the British colony of Sierra Leone in West Africa, where it was found in January by a native workman.

The gem, which weighs 770 carats, is believed to be the largest ever found in an alluvial deposit and is the biggest diamond of gem quality in the world.

The Sierra Leone Selection trust, owners, have decided not to cut the stone but to sell it in the rough.

The Junker, famous diamond found in the Transvaal in 1934, was 44 carats lighter than the new stone. The Cullinan, originally weighing 3,106 carats, was cut into many stones. One, "The Star of Africa No. 1," is in the British royal scepter. It weighs 530.2 carats.

First U-Boat Surrendered on East Coast

Cape May, N. J., May 14 [Special]—The German submarine U-858, which claimed to have sunk 16 allied vessels, formally surrendered today to the 4th United States naval district, the first U-boat to give up in American coastal waters since Germany's capitulation.

Lt. Thilo Bode

A second submarine, the U-805, is en route under escort to the navy yard at Portsmouth, N. H., where it will surrender tomorrow to the 1st naval district. It gave up to navy fleet units just after V-E day.

Today's formal surrender took place at a pre-arranged rendezvous 44 miles off the Cape May naval base. The U-858 was delivered to the meeting place by the two destroyer escorts of the Atlantic fleet to which the undersea craft originally surrendered May 10 after surfacing and flashing a signal about 300 miles south of Cape Race, Newfoundland.

14 Torpedoes Aboard

Eight American naval craft trained their guns on the U-boat, and planes and blimps flew overhead, during the capitulation ceremony. The 740 ton submarine still had 14 torpedoes aboard.

Speaking thru an interpreter, the commander, Lt. Thilo Bode, 27, from Bavaria, said he was relieved at the opportunity to surrender. He said he had been at sea six weeks when his wireless picked up Adm. Doenitz' order to give up.

"We had expected it," he said. "What was the use of going on? We hadn't seen any ships to attack."

The U-boat had been fueled and loaded at Hamburg eight weeks ago, the ship's commander disclosed.

Craft 240 Feet Long

The U-858 is a standard sized sub, 240 feet long and with a beam of 21 feet. She draws 13 feet of water, has a surface speed of 20 knots, and a cruising range of 18,000 miles.

The craft made the trip south to the rendezvous under her own power and operated by a skeleton crew of 24 Germans. Four officers and 33 men had been taken off as prisoners at the original surrender. The crew were in ragged attire and appeared to be far from well fed.

They were taken to Fort Miles, near Lewes, Del., where they will be interrogated by navy officers. The U-858 was taken to a harbor of refuge off Cape Henlopen.

SENATOR URGES FIVE YEAR PLAN OF TAX SHAVING

George Asks Return to Pre-War Rate

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., May 14—A five year tax reduction plan, providing annual downward revision of federal taxes until they reach the prewar level, was advocated today by Sen. George [D., Ga.], chairman of the senate finance committee and co-chairman of the house-senate committee on internal revenue.

Sen. George

Tax reduction also was demanded by Sen. Taft [R., O.] during debate on the rural electrification bill, which would separate the REA from the agriculture department and provide up to 200 million dollars annually for rural electrification loans. The bill passed the senate by voice vote and was sent to the house.

Taft Warns on Spending

Taft warned the senate that measures pending in congress, including the REA bill and others not yet introduced, would increase annual federal expenditures by $3,315,500,000. He questioned the ability of the government to finance the proposals because, he said, taxes must be cut to prevent private industry from being "choked."

George said his proposal for a five year reduction plan would have a "healthy influence" on government planning and spending and that the promise of tax reductions would stimulate business in the post-war period.

"It is important to have a long term program announced in advance and strictly adhered to," George said in an interview. "Government and business should know what to expect."

George said the present 40 per cent normal tax and surtax on corporate profits should be lowered to as near the pre-war rate of 18 per cent as possible. He indicated the joint internal revenue committee was studying the possibility of early abolition of the excess profits tax, which runs as high as 95 per cent in some cases.

Asks Lower Income Tax

George said individual income tax rates, which reach a maximum of 94 per cent, also must be lowered. Asked whether the rates could be cut to a maximum of 50 per cent, George said, "that must ultimately be done."

The joint committee issued a report last week proposing speeding tax refunds, raising exemptions on excess profits taxes, and other steps which, it said, would improve the

Crisis Feared Over Aims of Reds, Puppets

'Single Regime'

PARIS, May 14—Commenting on the position of Russia, reported to have "denounced the Yalta agreement," the newspaper Aurore tomorrow will ask whether Europe as far as the Elbe and the Bohemian mountains is to be "subjected to a single regime." (Referring to Prime Minister Churchill's warning yesterday of a menace to liberty and democracy, the writer emphasizes the rift among the great powers in San Francisco and expresses fear that two antagonistic blocs are forming, each armed to the teeth.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

PARIS, May 14—That a showdown regarding the aims and methods of Russia and her satellite states was rapidly approaching and that it might cause a grave crisis within the allied coalition was the belief today of diplomatic circles in Paris.

It was learned today that the Russians have been making difficulties about an entry into Berlin of the allied control commission despite the fact that it was agreed at Yalta that the commission should rule Germany from Berlin.

Report Reds Ask More

French circles said that the Russians had declined to admit a French representative into Czechoslovakia. On the allied side it was said that the Russians had not yet admitted allied delegates into Austria or Hungary while those admitted into Romania and Bulgaria were unable to pursue their work.

It was reported in some quarters that the Russians were asking for a broader zone of occupation in Germany than that drawn at Yalta. This report, like the signs of growing impatience toward Russia in Washington and London, was associated by some here with hesitation on the part of the allies to make a final decision regarding distribution of their military forces within Germany pending clarification of their relations with Russia.

Signposts of Showdown

Belief that relations between Moscow and the western powers were heading for a showdown was based upon the stern rebuke by Undersecretary of State Joseph C. Grew to a bid for Trieste by Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, upon a statement by Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator, which was interpreted as hinting that Russia might lose lend-lease aid if she did not behave better, and upon Prime Minister Churchill's speech yesterday suggesting troublesome times ahead in Europe "if totalitarian or police governments were to take the place of the German invaders."

Meanwhile French troops who just before Germany's capitulation moved into the French-speaking Italian frontier region of Val d'Aoste, have incensed Italians and annoyed allied authorities by seizing foodstuffs and distributing circulars apparently suggestive of French annexation of that region.

PARLEY FIGHTS FOR ACCORD ON MONROE TENET

U.S. Seeks to Win Over Latins

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 14—The Monroe Doctrine issue sizzled and sputtered today in the international conference to abolish war.

Dr. Herbert Evatt.

Outstanding developments in the negotiations to create a new league of nations to enforce peace were:

1. At a meeting with the chiefs of the Latin American delegations tonight State Secretary Stettinius sought to compromise their demands for American autonomy in peace enforcement with British objections to special treatment of the western hemisphere.

2. Australian Foreign Minister Dr. Herbert Evatt attacked the proposed exemption of the Monroe Doctrine from the peace league's enforcement machinery, charging vote trading in the conference that, if continued, will wreck the world organization to prevent war.

Work on Trusteeships

3. Seeking a fresh start in the attempt to break the deadlock on the issue of trusteeships, involving the claim of the United States to Pacific Island bases, the conference committee headed by Prime Minister Fraser of New Zealand commissioned Comdr. Stassen of the American delegation to prepare a digest of the conflicting American, British, Russian and other plans for control of conquered territories.

The proposition of watering down the Monroe Doctrine exemption to satisfy British objections was broached earlier in the day at a meeting of United States delegates and the chief delegates of Cuba, Chile, Colombia, Bolivia, Mexico, Peru, Uruguay, Venezuela, and Brazil. Out of this conference came several proposed drafts that were still under consideration in the meeting of Stettinius with all the Latin Americans tonight.

Proposed for Defense

Originally, the compromise proposed by the United States delegation provided that peace enforcement in this hemisphere would be subject to control by the peace league's security council except in case of actual attack in which event the American republics could act independently to repel aggression under the inherent right of self-defense. Collective action could be taken in accord with the act of Chapultepec which applies not only to foreign aggression at which the Monroe Doctrine is aimed but to intra-American aggression.

British Foreign Secretary Eden objected to any mention of the Monroe Doctrine or the act of Chapultepec as singling out the western hemisphere for special treatment. He wanted a provision for independent action in self-defense that would apply to the British empire if attacked in any part of the world.

Americans Oblige

The American delegation obliged, removing mention of the act of Chapultepec from the section relating to defense from actual attack, thereby letting the British empire into this exception to league enforcement, but retained it in another section relating to peaceful adjustment and potential attack.

The British continued to insist, however, on removal of this remaining reference to the act of Chapultepec. This question was put squarely up to the Latin Americans tonight.

The fundamental principles of the American compromise under which the Monroe Doctrine could be enforced independently of the league in case of actual aggression were accepted by the Big Five Saturday, since which time the differences have revolved around phraseology.

The Australian attack on the proposed exemption of the Monroe Doctrine rocked the conference earlier in the day.

U. S. Still Builds Roads in France

BY HAL FOUST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, May 14—America's war time generosity with its man power and resources has not ended with the defeat of the Nazis. United States soldiers are building highways, railroads, bridges, and other public utilities in northern France and in German territories to be occupied by America and by France.

United States construction in French occupied Germany is a continuation of the American army engineers' support of the single French army which fought Germany.

Roads, Bridges Being Built

On a drive here from the American and Czechoslovakian fronts this week-end millions of dollars worth of road and bridge projects were seen under construction. Their military value to America was not apparent.

The army in war time is organized to destroy the enemy with little regard for dollar costs. The same disregard for costs in this immediate post-war era is noted in smaller items as well as huge ones.

Other Costly Items

Air transport continues to operate. Then there are tiny items like the Paris Hotel press camp, accommodating political and economic writers carrying war correspondents' credentials.

But perhaps the biggest American gift is pegging the exchange value of the French franc here so that an American soldier receives only half as many francs as he could buy with his dollars on the New York market.

Ask Tito to Get Troops Out of Trieste

U. S., Britain Act

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, May 14—The American and British governments have sent a note to Marshal Tito, Yugoslav leader, formally requesting him to withdraw his troops from Trieste and the rest of the province of Istria immediately, it was reported tonight. Marshal Stalin has been informed of the joint move, it was said.

Earlier developments in the Trieste dispute included a denial by the Belgrade radio, quoting a spokesman of Tito, that Yugoslavia intended holding the Adriatic seaport by force and an offer to submit the question of ultimate frontiers with Italy to the peace conference; and a report that the British cruiser Orion and two destroyers had arrived at Trieste.

The British cabinet at a special meeting over the week-end discussed the Trieste issue as a test case, informed sources said. Altho hopes were expressed that a satisfactory settlement could be achieved, the situation was described as delicate and critical.

Exiles Expand Army

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

LONDON, May 14.—A Polish army owing allegiance to the exiled government in London is being rapidly expanded with recruits from the ranks of 2,500,000 Poles liberated by the western allies in Europe and the British government, it was learned tonight, has agreed to an expansion of this army up to 250,000 men which it will equip and supply.

This will double the size of the present army. Its eventual disposition in view of the fact that the London government's demise was foreshadowed by the Yalta declaration, has been a subject of speculation here.

There is another Polish army on the eastern front which is estimated here to number between 100,000 and 150,000 men. Russia has armed this force and, it is reported here, plans to equip a greater force even tho the war against Germany is ended.

Military sources said today that the fate of the army under the London government's authority is a "political matter."

statement, was prompted by the committee defeat of Australia and other small nations last Saturday in their effort to get the league's security council increased from 11 to 15 members. Evatt accused the Latin American republics of deserting the small nation cause on this issue and lining up with the United States and other big powers in consideration of assurances of the adoption of an amendment providing for western hemisphere defense independently of the league under the act of Chapultepec, in which the Latin Americans formally embraced the principle of the Monroe Doctrine.

Under the big nation veto power, Evatt asserted, the United States would be able to paralyze peace enforcement action by the league in the western hemisphere in order to take action independently under the Monroe Doctrine and the act of Chapultepec.

Warns of Isolationism

If regional peace enforcement action were taken without the authorization of the security council, said Evatt, the authority of the league and its security council would be lessened and the situation would be worsened if exception were made "solely to meet the demand of a single region like the Americas."

"It would be worse still," the Australian foreign minister went on, "if the veto of a great power situated within a region were used to insulate or isolate that region from enforcement action by the world organization thru the security council.

"In this connection, one cannot fail to note the extraordinary switch of votes on Saturday on the part of many American countries in relation to the numerical strength of the security council. The press has suggested that this was preliminary to an understanding by which American regionalism will be given a special immunity.

"If this kind of thing goes on in San Francisco, the world organization will inevitably be subverted. Americanism is valuable but unless the authority of the central security council is maintained, it may develop into a form of isolationism which is calculated to destroy the world organization at its birth."

Evatt supported the stand taken by British Foreign Secretary Eden in rejecting the American proposed exception confined to the western hemisphere, and demanding a provision broad enough to permit defense of the British empire independently of the league in case of attack on any British possessions.

URGES MAJORITY SENATE VOTE TO RATIFY TREATIES

Sen. Claude Pepper of Florida, rabid New Dealer, last night urged an amendment to the Constitution to permit anticipation of treaties by a simple majority vote of the senate, rather than the present requirement of two-thirds.

He spoke at a Jefferson day dinner in Marquette park pavilion, Gary, sponsored by the Lake county [Indiana] Democratic central committee, and for which 300 of the faithful paid $5 a plate and up. The "up" was on a voluntary basis, it was explained.

Pepper suggested that the various state legislatures petition congress to call a constitutional convention to act on his suggested amendment.

William Harrigan of Hammond, chairman of the 1st district Democratic committee, presided. Frank McHale of Indianapolis, Indiana's national Democratic committeeman, was a guest.

BETTER LIVING CALLED AIM OF FRISCO PARLEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 14—The attainment of "higher standards of living" thruout the world was officially added to night to the objectives of the proposed new international organization being created at the world conference here.

The decision was recognized as a long step beyond the economic program outlined in the Dumbarton Oaks agreements and in accord with Commerce Secretary Wallace's famed proposal for a quart of milk for every one on earth.

A. Ramaswami Mudaliar, chairman of the Indian delegation and of the committee on economic and social coöperation announced the development. He said the new objective first proposed by Canada, had been incorporated by general agreement in the proposals advanced by China, Russia, the United States, and the United Kingdom.

CHARGE HALIFAX EFFORT TO 'GAG' INDIAN'S SPEECH

California Legislature Hears It, Anyway

BY WILLIAM MOORE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 14—Indian leaders accused British Ambassador Halifax tonight of attempting to prevent Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit from speaking today before the California legislature on the British domination of India.

The legislature did not withdraw its invitation, however, and Mrs. Pandit delivered an address in which she branded the British colonial policy "the twin brother of fascism."

Spokesmen for India, who are denouncing the right of three British knights to cast India's vote in the international conference here, said the attempt to muzzle Mrs. Pandit was made on instructions from the British ambassador. Ambassador Halifax's appeal, they said, was carried directly to Gov. Earl C. Warren of California.

Objected to Appearance

The British are said to have objected strenuously to Mrs. Pandit's appearance to argue the hush-hush Indian question because Ambassador Halifax had assured the legislature, in an address a few days ago, that the international conference was making good its promises, which include the right of all peoples to choose their own form of government.

The Indians assert they are held in bondage by the British, who have Mrs. Pandit's brother, Jawaharlal Nehru, celebrated Indian leader, in jail. Mrs. Pandit was herself a British political prisoner in India until a short time ago when she was released because of ill health and her plea to be permitted to visit her two daughters, who are students at Vassar college.

Deny Right of British

The Indian vote is one of the six held by British governmental units to the one of the United States. But the Indians assembled here say it is strictly a British vote since the three British knights of the Indian delegation do not represent the Indian people. The Indians further charge that the British have no right to the vote because the conference is one for sovereign nations and the Indians are a subject people.

Mrs. Pandit spoke today before the California house with most of the members of the senate in attendance.

Questioning the lofty idealism voiced by the conference, Mrs. Pandit, a slender figure in Indian robes, told the lawmakers:

Sheridan Discharges 500 Vets Under Point System

Col. George Cushman, commandant at Fort Sheridan, said yesterday that 500 soldiers had been given their release at the post separation center under the point system. Yesterday 135 men were mustered out of the army, nine of them Chicagoans and 18 from elsewhere in Illinois. All men discharged from Fort Sheridan thus far have been overseas veterans home on furloughs, Col. Cushman said.

Issues Reviewed

Washington, D. C., May 14 (AP)—President Truman reviewed troublesome international issues with top British diplomats today but there was no official confirmation of English reports of a forthcoming Big Three meeting.

British Foreign Secretary Eden told reporters he had "no idea" when the President will meet with Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin. Eden and Clement Attlee, deputy prime minister, were closeted with the President for 35 minutes.

Emerging from the meeting Eden asserted the San Francisco world organization conference was not discussed, but that the three went into a host of other matters involving the interest of the two governments. Acting Secretary of State Grew sat in.

FILIPINOS PUSH FIGHT FOR BAN ON PROPAGANDA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 14—The Philippine delegation to the international conference said today it would argue in committee in behalf of its proposal that the conduct of subversive propaganda by any nation against the institutions of another nation should be defined in a world security charter as an aggressive or threatening act.

In the Dumbarton Oaks plan there is no clear definition of aggression, and several allied nations have suggested acts which should be considered aggressive. The definition offered by the Philippine commonwealth has been described by many delegates as the most complete one offered by any country.

Particular interest has developed in the Philippine proposal that any nation should be considered as threatening the peace or as an aggressor if it should "interfere in the internal affairs of another nation by establishing agencies in that nation to conduct propaganda subversive of the institutions of that nation."

REPORT RUSSIA PICKS PRAGUE AS WORLD CAPITAL

San Francisco, Cal., May 14 (AP)—Russia was reported today to have suggested that the Czechoslovak capital of Prague become the seat of the new allied nations organization.

A delegation from Philadelphia, Pa., will reach San Francisco tomorrow to press the city's claim to be the organization capital.

The question of a permanent location is expected to come up for a decision by the conference after all amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks proposals have been cleared.

LONDON, May 14—With the denuncation by Moscow of the Russo-Japanese neutrality pact, which is regarded in some quarters as a preliminary to renewed Russian interest in the east, British military authorities are reported to be examining the question of defense of the Indian frontiers.

Gen. Claude Auchinleck, commander-in-chief in India, who is now in London, is said to be discussing the issues arising from the work of two committees set up in India to study the problem of post-war defense.

Study Army Needs

The army reorganization committee has been sitting since last November under the chairmanship of Lt. Gen. H. B. Wilcox. Its function is to make a preliminary investigation of post-war defense requirements and to draft recommendations regarding the size, composition, and status of the future army of India.

In addition, the government of India committee has been looking into the particular problem of the defense of the northwest frontier.

While nothing has been disclosed officially of the tenor of Auchinleck's talks here, the India office, in conjunction with the war office is believed to be considering three questions:

1. What should be the strength of the air force and army necessary to defend India from attack by a vastly stronger power?
2. If the required force is recruited in India, how will it affect the country industrially and politically?
3. Is it physically possible to develop Indian resources to maintain such a large defense machine and is it politically expedient?

Wavell in London

In this connection it will be noted that Viceroy Wavell of India and Ardesir Dalal, India's minister of planning and development, also are in London for talks with the British cabinet.

They, too, are able to answer political or economic questions in connection with the defense of India, altho it is believed Wavell's principal mission is to discuss the political future of India.

Observers here say that Russia's aspirations in the middle east, its strategic position in relation to Afghanistan, and the Red military and air bases in Sinkiang, China, are all factors which would enter into any discussion of the defense of India's frontiers.

With some doubt existing that Britain any longer is able to exercise her former decisive position in Iraq and Iran, the question of Russia's reiteration of claims for oil concessions after the war also has a bearing on the British military establishment in India, observers believe.

TURKS TO RESIST ALIEN CONTROL OF DARDANELLES

Fears Reds Seek to Change Setup

BY HENRY WALES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 14—Turkey will resist any attempts made at this conference under the guise of security for a revision of the Montreaux treaty of 1936 concerning the status of the Dardanelles, it was learned today.

In line with Moscow statements voicing the need of a new convention covering passage of the straits leading from the Mediterranean to the Black sea, it is expected that efforts will be made to reopen this problem and reinstitute an international regime to control passage.

The Ankara government, however, will oppose any encroachment on its sovereignty over the waterway, and any foreign jurisdiction over traffic thru the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus, Turkish spokesmen say.

Sealed by Islands

The Turkish point of view is that World War II. demonstrated completely that soviet Russia's access to the Mediterranean and the outside world is not a question solely of the straits, but of the gateway to the passage—the islands adjacent to the western entrance.

By seizing Crete, the Aegean and Dodecanese groups, and Rhodes, Germany sealed the Dardanelles as effectively in World War II. as she did in World War I. when the kaiser's battleships Goeben and Breslau moored opposite Chanak and with their 12 inch guns prevented the British and French fleets from penetrating to the Black sea and opening a communications route with their ally, imperial Russia.

At the Lausanne conference in 1923, Turkey accepted an international commission to regulate traffic thru the Dardanelles, and agreed not to fortify that area, and to leave it open constantly for merchant shipping and for the passage of warships in time of war when she was neutral.

Changed by League Failure

Turkey abated her sovereignty over the waterway at that time because the league of nations was then occupied with international disarmament and regional security pacts which the Ankara government believed would provide substitute safeguards for the territory which it consented to disarm.

However, when the league failed in its objectives, Turkey claimed a revision of the treaty and in 1936 the Mediterranean and Black sea powers met at Montreaux in Switzerland and negotiated a new pact.

This treaty recognized Turkey's complete sovereignty over the Dardanelles and permitted her to fortify the area so as to enforce the regulations of passage; stipulated that all mercantile shipping should have free access to the waterway in peace and in war, and provided that no outside power should be allowed to pass naval craft into the Black Sea of greater strength than the existing Russian fleet in those waters. The soviet warships in the Black Sea, however, were permitted free entry and exit to the Mediterranean.

Cut Off in Two Wars

Twice in two world wars Russia has been cut off from her western allies by the impossibility of maintaining water traffic thru the Dardanelles to the Mediterranean.

It is believed the Kremlin is fully aware of the impossibility of preserving an ice free route to the outside world via the Dardanelles unless she holds the western approaches, the very islands which Germany seized to bottle up Russia despite Turkey's readiness to let shipping thru so it is expected that the soviet delegation will make strong representations to the allied powers for control of the islands forming a portal to the straits, and for certain rights in Greece, which have hitherto been vested almost exclusively with Great Britain.

MASSACRES BY ALGERIANS LAID TO LONG FAMINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, May 14—Wide scale massacres of Europeans in the Constantine region were revealed today in the first report to be released here on last week's Algerian disorders. Altho a bulletin issued by the governor general states that all measures were taken immediately to reestablish order, it is not known here whether the uprisings have been quelled. Famine conditions during the last year are given as the cause of the disorders.

Setif [arrow], where riots have occurred.

The trouble center was the town of Setif, about 100 miles west of Constantine. Here the former head judge, the chief of the local Communist party and the president of a special delegation were among those stabbed or beaten to death. In Perigotville the administrator, his assistant, and a postal official were killed and the country homes and farms of Europeans were attacked.

GREW SAYS REDS MUST PASS TEST FOR LEND-LEASE

Information on Needs to Be Required

Washington, D. C., May 14 (AP)—The state department said today the test for future lend-lease to Russia is "adequate information regarding the essential nature of soviet military supply requirements" and their importance as compared with competing demands.

A statement by Acting Secretary Grew predicted "substantial reductions" in current deliveries, but made it clear that deliveries meeting the test will continue to go forward.

The criterion, he emphasized, is the same as for other lend-lease countries.

Keep Japs Occupied

Grew did not mention the soviet union in direct connection with the Japanese war, in which that country is not involved. Other officials discussing the review of Russian lend-lease, however, had pointed out that Russia is preoccupying some half million Japanese troops along the Manchurian border and that this benefits this country's military interests.

"Since 1941," Grew's statement said, "the United States has agreed with the soviet union upon annual supply programs which have been embodied in protocols. In view of the changed military situation, programs of such duration are not now required.

Reductions Held Likely

"Instead it is proposed that lend-lease shipments to the soviet union be reviewed and continued where they are justified on the basis of adequate information regarding the essential nature of soviet military supply requirements and in the light of competing demands. It is anticipated that, on this basis, substantial reductions in current programs for the soviet union will be made."

Grew said lend-lease in general is being reviewed in the light of the end of hostilities in Europe and the transition to war only on the Pacific front.

[Foreign Economic Administrator Crowley asserted Saturday that the lend-lease program was being re-examined in the light of the end of the European war and that "pending its completion, new shipments to Europe are being held up except those destined to countries now at war with Japan, or to countries thru which redeployment of our troops now in Europe will be facilitated thereby."]

RUSSIAN WACs LAND WITH ARMY ON DANISH ISLE

BY EINAR CHRISTIANSEN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, May 14—Russian forces on the Danish Baltic island of Bornholm were augmented yesterday by the landing of 2,000 more Red army troops, including Russian WACS. The Russians are coöperating with Danish Liberty fighters in a friendly spirit.

It is estimated that some 3,000 to 4,000 Germans and 1,000 Hungarians are still roaming the island. Notices in German are posted everywhere on the island, asking the Germans to report to their former headquarters in the town of Roenne.

Ships of the German fleet lying off Copenhagen, consisting of a light cruiser and three mine sweepers, were attacked today and captured by the Danish home front after they had refused to surrender.

MACKENZIE KING CONFIDENT OF PARLEY SUCCESS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 14—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada, on his departure today from the San Francisco conference, expressed confidence in its results.

"I look forward with absolute confidence to the success of the conference," he said. "The right spirit seems to prevail. The world can look forward to benefiting from these weeks at San Francisco by representatives of peace loving peoples."

King left for Vancouver, where he will speak Wednesday in opening the campaign for Canada's general election June 11, which corresponds to a Presidential election in the United States.

PARLEY REFUSES TO DISCUSS SEAT FOR PALESTINE

Hebrew Group Asks Representation

BY EUGENE GRIFFIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 14—Palestine will not be invited to seat a delegation at the international security conference, and the question of recognizing an independent Hebrew state will not be discussed, Prime Minister Peter Fraser of New Zealand, chairman of the trusteeship system committee of the general assembly commission, said today.

He announced the committee's decision regarding Palestine even as proponents of Jewish national interests were presenting their pleadings to the American delegation.

Question Ruled Out

"Palestine has been ruled out for discussion at this time," Fraser said. "The trusteeship committee has agreed unanimously not to deal with the problem of any particular territory, or we would be discussing a dozen claims.

"There is no intention on the part of any power to alter the existing status of any territory without consulting the respective governments and peoples concerned. No delegate wants to alter the present situation regarding Palestine, or any other territory, without such consultations. The question must be considered by the new international organization thru the trusteeship council."

Petition Presented.

Before Fraser made his report, the American League for a Free Palestine, Inc., today petitioned the American delegation to propose the seating of a Hebrew national delegation before the conference is over. The league suggested that the Hebrew committee of national liberation be invited to represent "the Hebrew nation."

Establishment of a sovereign Palestinian state as the natioanal territory of "those people of Europe and Palestine who are commonly referred to as Jews but who have no political allegiance to any other sovereignty" is indorsed by the league.

Henry Monsky, co-chairman of the American Jewish conference, which claims to represent the majority of the Jewish people of the United States, and Dr. Nahum Goldmann of the Jewish agency for Palestine also spoke here today in behalf of representation and a bill of rights for Jews in an international charter.

Acts on Quisling

OSLO, Norway, May 14 (AP)—Crown Prince Olaf, who returned to Oslo yesterday, has directed that Vidkun Quisling, puppet premier of Norway during the German occupation, be tried as an ordinary criminal, it was learned today. Olaf was reported to have issued his order in his capacity as Norway's highest justice official. Quisling will appear before a police court for a preliminary hearing. Some authoritative sources said today that the preliminary hearing will get under way immediately.

Only official visitors have been permitted entry to Quisling's cell, and Police President Henrik Meyer has directed that no favors shall be granted the Norwegian Nazi chieftain. Quisling's Russian wife, Maria, is being held at Grini concentration camp, where Quisling had interned all his political enemies.

Seven Oslo newspapers, which had combined to publish a single edition since the capitulation of the German garrison, resumed individual publication today. Each was six to 10 pages in size.

RAIDS ON JAPAN BY 800 B-29s ARE NOW POSSIBLE

Washington, D. C., May 14 (AP)—The army air forces now have the field facilities to mount 800 plane Super Fortress raids against Japan from a single island in the Marianas.

This was disclosed today in a navy dispatch from "somewhere in the Marianas" reporting that Seabees on one island have turned over to the army the last of four big bomber strips, each 8,500 feet long and capable of accommodating 200 B-29s. The fourth field was in use by March 20.

The island presumably was Saipan, Tinian, or Guam—each used as bases for the giant bombers. The largest single B-29 raid so far reported was yesterday's strike against Nagoya by more than 500 planes.

BARE CODDLING OF STALIN BY YANK CENSORS

BY HAL FOUST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, May 13 [Delayed]—Now it can be told that Marshal Stalin was coddled by the American military as well as the United States censors in the final days of the fighting.

In Czechoslovakia came the outstanding example of the United States army protecting the sensibilities of Russia. The Czechs rose in Prague and engaged the Germans in street fighting, with heavy casualties, for four days.

U. S. Armor 40 Miles Away

The Czechs called for help from American armor in Pilsen, less than 60 miles away on a good road. They got no help. Prague, under an arrangement reached in London, Washington, D. C., and Moscow, was to be taken by the Reds.

The Germans finally surrendered, not to the Russians but to the Americans. They came down the highway to the United States troops and there laid down their arms.

The censors at the time refused to approve this story of our neglect of the Prague Czechs. They also have deleted news of other instances of American arms restraining or withdrawing from German-held terrain in the Russians' announced zone of influence, including the territory east of Linz, Austria.

Fear of Reds Hidden

Censorship in the fighting days toned down some stories, and suppressed others, of the civilian exodus from the Russian zone preceding the arrival of the Red troops. Not published was the story of the terror of the Red army among German soldiers and commanders, as well as among civilians.

Suppressed until it no longer was news was a statement obtained by this correspondent after a jeep trip thru the Hungarian army. The Hungarian minister of war offered to surrender to the United States and Britain but not to Russia.

The day before the fall of Linz, the German garrison offered to surrender the city provided nazi troops would be evacuated to the east to continue the fight against Russia.

The full story of censorship in the European theater doubtless will be told eventually in a congressional investigation. In the meantime, the story of the war against Germany continues to be edited with blue pencils.

Romanian Court Begins Trials of War Criminals

LONDON, May 14 (AP)—The Bucharest radio said the first trials involving Romanian war crimes began today before a people's tribunal, with 25 former high Romanian officials and officers among the accused. Gen. Konstantin Sanatescu, who formed a government when King Michael overthrew the Iron Guard regime of Marshal Ion Antonescu, was among the defendants. Antonescu, however, was not listed.

YANKS CAPTURE GATE TO VALLEY IN NORTH LUZON

Two U. S. Columns Push Toward Santa Fe

MANILA, May 15 [Tuesday]—(AP)—Balete pass, an important 75 foot defile between 1,500 foot mountains in northern Luzon, fell to elements of the 25th and 37th infantry divisions Sunday after a month-long mountain top battle, Gen. MacArthur reported today.

Conquest of Balete pass, gateway to the extensive Cagayan valley, represented a long stride toward the final cleaning out of the Japanese on northern Luzon. The pass controls the only road from the south into the Cagayan valley, hub of Japanese strength.

The doughboys had to comb the Japanese out of a formidable network of mountainside caves flanking the road. Some of these caves were large enough to accommodate an entire company.

7,000 Japs Killed

Much of their supplies and ammunition was carried up on their own backs thru a heavily wooded country cut by cliffs and ravines. On "Banzai" ridge on the western side of the pass the ascent was so steep that artillery had to be hoisted by windlass.

Associated Press Correspondent James Hutcheson reported from the 25th division command post that 7,000 Japanese dead had been counted in the bitter fight. Headquarters said the Japanese 10th division had been "very badly mauled."

The 32d division aided the capture by flanking the enemy on the parallel Villa Verde trail. The two columns were within two miles of a juncture at Santa Fe, where the trail joins the main road at the entrance to the valley. Stiff fighting still is in prospect but it is downhill from there on.

Gain on Mindanao

On Mindanao the 24th division gained materially in the Cabaguio area north of Davao, but was subjected to Japanese naval gun shelling from the northern tip of nearby Samal Island, which has been invaded by units of the 24th. Guerrilla forces seized the port of Cagayan, capital of Misamis Oriental province, and the entire north coast of the island now is in American control, MacArthur announced.

His bulletin reported the Japanese Mindanao garrison was being driven steadily into the hill country in the center of the island.

In central Mindanao the 31st division liquidated a reënforced company of by-passed Japanese between Kibawe and Maramag on the Sayre highway, while to the north the 40th division consolidated the captured Del Monte airdrome center.

A headquarters spokesman said the Australians and Dutch invaders of Tarakan Island, off Borneo, now control all usable portions of the island—roads, the town, the oil fields, and airdromes.

'ESSENTIALS' TO FIGHT JAPS DESPITE RATING

PARIS, May 14 (AP)—Some American troops are considered so essential that they are being sent direct to the Pacific regardless of the points they have accumulated for discharge, it was disclosed today.

These units were marked for duty in the war against Japan even before redeployment day May 12, said Lt. Col. W. C. Hay of the redeployment plans branch in the European theater of operations.

Hay reported that most of the men now being discharged in the United States because they have a point total of 85 were overseas veterans who had been sent home for rest. This cleared up one point in the vast redeployment program, since the war department is not expected to announce the final critical score necessary for discharge until June 27.

Gestapo Chief in Holland Seized, Dutch Radio Says

to cope with American armored units.

Enemy artillery continues to hammer forward Yank elements, laying down harassing fire at night. Their observers, Thomas said, are using carrier pigeons for communications with their batteries.

A patrol got nearly across Asato river, last natural barrier before Naha, but was forced to turn back because of mud.

Units of the 77th division fought for a height called Chocolate Drop hill. During the battle an artillery observer, S/Sgt. John F. McFarland of Pawtucket, R. I., spotted a clump of trees he did not remember seeing before. It turned out to be an enemy tank, which had penetrated to within 100 yards of American tanks.

FEWER WOUNDED MEN DIE

WITH THE 10TH ARMY ON OKINAWA, May 14 (AP)—The mortality rate of American wounded on Okinawa so far is among the lowest of any central Pacific action. Col. Frederick B. Westervelt of Carlisle, Pa., 10th army surgeon, said today that less than 3 per cent of wounded men had died in this campaign compared to an average of 6 to 8 per cent in other operations in this theater.

Even so, he said, it still is higher than in Europe, where the mortality rate among wounded was 2.8 per cent. He attributed the higher mortality rate of Pacific war casualties to lack of combat type hospitals.

More than 6,000 of Okinawa's wounded Americans have been removed by plane to Guam, Honolulu, and San Francisco.

Col. Westervelt said heavy demand on combat hospitals by the European theater left Pacific medics with only field hospitals "intended for garrison casualties rather than combat ones." With the European war ended he expects the combat type out here.

Casualties now are mounting and sometimes are as many as 200 a day.

BURN 9 SQ. MI. OF NAGOYA

GUAM, May 15 [Tuesday]—(AP)—America's aerial assault on Japan mounted to a new pinnacle of violence Monday as a record pack of 500 Super Fortresses dumped 7,000,000 pounds of fire bombs on the industrial city of Nagoya, setting 9 square miles ablaze.

Twentieth air force headquarters at Washington reported that only "two of our planes were lost to enemy action."

The attack was officially reported by B-29 headquarters only a few hours before radio Tokyo said allied carrier planes were hammering Nippon's southern airdromes for the second day in a row.

Some of the 5,500 returning Yank airmen who took part in the Nagoya mission believed the 3,500 tons of fire bombs dropped destroyed the sections of the city not devastated in previcus raids.

Smoke Rises 17,000 Feet

Smoke columns shot up 17,000 feet over the target area and could be seen by returning flyers when 80 miles at sea.

Lt. H. A. Hayes of Milwaukee, Wis., said he believed the raid destroyed the city. Sgt. Eugene Forsythe of 10108 Wentworth av., Chicago, said one of his gunners got in a burst at a two engined fighter but did not observe the results.

Lt. Anthony Ruggeri of Chicago, an instrument specialist on a Super Fortress piloted by Capt. Howard McClellan of Buchanan, Mich., said: "We were among the last to hit the target, and we could see smoke at least 60 miles from the coast line. We couldn't even see Nagoya Bay."

The crew of a B-29 commanded by Lt. Harold E. Deskowitz battled fire in their bomb-bay and shot down four Japanese fighters.

Winnetka Flyer a Hero

The bravery of Gunner Sgt. H. L. Burgett of Guntersville, Ala., and Lt. H. G. Klauke of 1148 Scott av., Winnetka, Ill., in going into the bomb-bay to smother a flaming incendiary bomb saved their plane and the lives of the crew.

"We left the formation immediately and headed out to sea," Deskowitz said.

With the bomb-bay doors still open Burgett and Klauke went into the bomb-bay with fire extinguishers. They smothered the fire in seven minutes and closed the bomb-bay doors. Many of the crew were so happy tears came to their eyes.

Lt. Walter Haut of 585 W. Parkway rd., Riverside, Ill., was bombardier in a plane hit by both fighters and flak.

DOOLITTLE IS OUT OF 8TH AIR FORCE; HINT PACIFIC JOB

LONDON, May 14 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Doolittle, who led the war's first bombing blow at Tokyo and then directed the United States 8th air force in its blasting of Germany, turned over his European command to a colleague today amid speculation that he would return to the Pacific conflict.

Gen. Doolittle [top] and Gen. Kepner.

An official announcement from the United States strategic air force in Europe said only that Doolittle would return to Washington, D. C., headquarters of the United States army air forces, for a new assignment.

[In Washington, D. C., it was said Doolittle probably is headed for the Pacific command, with his first job to set up bases for B-17 and B-24 bombers.]

Doolittle was succeeded as 8th air force commander by Maj. Gen. William E. Kepner.

NAVY PLANNING 30% REDUCTION, SENATORS TOLD

Size to Depend in Part on World Peace Plans

Washington, D. C., May 14 (AP)—Tentative navy plans call for cutting the nation's mighty battle fleet "at least 30 per cent" after Japan's collapse, Fleet Adm. King has informed the senate appropriations committee.

King said, however, a report of hearings on a naval appropriations bill released today disclosed, that before final post-war navy plans are completed "we must know what the national policy is to be for the defense of the United States, for the defense of the western hemisphere, and what commitments the United States may have in respect to the maintenance of world peace."

King told the committee the navy desired to keep only those ships "that will have real combat value," adding the navy was concerned that it be called upon to maintain "too many ships for the post-war navy."

Drive on Ships Told

Navy Secy. Forrestal indicated ships to be scrapped probably would include many which were worn out in operations, adding:

"Destroyers that were designed under normal conditions to be overhauled after 40,000 miles have been at sea for 250,000 and are still going. We are driving these ships at a rate and under a pressure that no fleet of the world was ever driven before."

Forrestal said the navy has three principal tasks in the Pacific:

1. Deliver men and supplies required for present and future operations.

2. In advance of an attack, seal off the area where the attack is to be imposed.

3. Opening up, supporting, and supplying beachheads.

4,000 Jap Planes Reported

Forrestal said he would "guess" the Japanese have 4,000 effective planes, while King asserted the Japs have about 20 large destroyers left and not all of those were operating. They did not testify on other enemy categories.

In answer to a question from Sen. Willis (R., Ind.), Forrestal said he knew of no plans to allocate any of the United States navy to other allied nations.

Adm. F. J. Horne, vice chief of naval operations, said the navy believed universal military training would be needed to maintain the post-war navy, which, he asserted, would require about 50,000 officers and 500,000 men.

23 Billion Bill Approved

The senate committee approved a $23,603,775,000 naval supply bill, an increase of $203,273,735 over the figure approved by the house. Among the increases was 180 million dollars for ordnance, to be spent between now and July 1.

The committee voted 4 million dollars for the Lake Seneca, N. Y., training station, an increase of 3 million over the house figure. It said the house appropriation would require closing of the station by Sept. 30, while it could be operated until July 1, 1946, on 4 million dollars.

The committee reduced house approved appropriations for three other training stations. These were San Diego, Cal., cut from $2,170,000 to $1,675,000; Great Lakes, from $5,700,000 to $5,300,000, and Port Deposit, Md., from $4,038,000 to $3,200,000.

Minesweeper YMS-103 Lost in Okinawa Area

Washington, D. C., May 14 (AP)—Loss of the mine sweeper YMS-103 in the Okinawa area as the result of enemy action was announced today by the navy. Casualties aboard the vessel, which carried a normal complement of about 30, were reported moderate. The commander, Lt. (j. g.) Leslie M. Thornton, Kansas City, Mo., was a survivor, the navy said.

CHINESE CLOSE ON JAP BASE IN COUNTER-DRIVE

Continue Battle in the Foochow Streets

CHUNGKING, China, May 14 (AP)—Two Chinese columns closed today on Paoching, Hunan province stronghold from which the enemy marched last month on the road to defeat and disaster in the battle for Chihkiang air base.

On the eastern seaboard Chinese troops continued to fight in the streets of Foochow after entering the old treaty port opposite Formosa Friday.

In the Hunan counter-offensive the Chinese high command said one column Sunday reached a point 15½ miles northwest of Paoching, while another was pounding down the main highway 19 miles west of the city.

Air Forces Commended

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek in an order of the day commended the American and Chinese air forces for their help in smashing the Japanese drive in Hunan province, long a central China battle field.

"In the present western Hunan campaign," his order said, "the Chinese and American air forces have fought most gallantly.

"In supporting the Chinese ground forces they repeatedly dealt heavy blows to the enemy and inflicted heavy casualties. Besides separate awards, the two air forces are hereby commended."

The Chinese ground forces were mopping up the battle field east of Chihkiang, which is 250 miles southeast of Chungking, and the air forces were raking the enemy's supply lines in eastern Hunan.

Fleeing Japs Overtaken

The high command said one pocket was completely crushed west of Gungkow, 60 miles west of Paoching on the main highway to the air base.

Another pocket east of nearby Kaosha, also on the main highway, was cut into five pieces. Two units tried to slip off southeastward by night, but were overtaken and again encircled, the Chinese said.

Northwest of Paoching, in the area of Yangchi, the Chinese reported they flung back a counter-attack and then captured two enemy strongpoints.

NAVY CURTAILS NEWSPAPERS TO MEN OVERSEAS

Washington, D. C., May 14 (AP)—Effective July 1, publishers will not be permitted to mail newspapers or other periodicals to navy personnel overseas except to fill a written request for a subscription or renewal.

The navy, announcing the order today, said it was issued by the postmaster general at the navy's request to conserve shipping space and prevent "nonessential mailings."

It does not apply to subscriptions in effect at the time the order becomes operative. Copies to fulfill such subscriptions may be mailed until the subscription expires.

Requests for the subscriptions must be made by the sailor, marine, or coast guardsman to whom the periodical is addressed, altho relatives or friends may pay for the subscription or renewals. Postmasters in the cities from which the publications are mailed will require publishers to show the written request.

PRE-NAZI BOOKS REPRINTED FOR AACHEN SCHOOLS

PARIS, May 14 (AP)—Allied headquarters announced today that the first allied approved schools to be opened in Germany will be at Aachen—first big German city captured by the Americans—and mass reprints of pre-Nazi school books will be utilized.

The civil affairs division of supreme headquarters said it had received a formal request from authorities in Aachen, a city of 165,000 persons, to reopen the city schools.

Thousands of German textbooks were reprinted at Aachen and Bonn. They contain no Nazi teaching or militarism.

NEW 'NEIGHBOR' SEIZED ON GEM THEFT CHARGES

Arthur Linwood Brown attracted little attention from his neighbors as he puttered around his home at 2029 S. 23d av., Broadview, Sunday afternoon, altho he was a comparative newcomer to the neighborhood.

Nicholas G. Montos

Shortly after he moved in he got his lawn started and planted a war garden. His wife kept the place neat. Brown, 29, had a nice place, a good car, and dressed well. He was regarded as a successful young business man whose work took him on occasional trips.

After he had mowed the lawn and polished the car Sunday, he went into the house and cleaned up. When he reappeared a short time later and started for the garage with the leather case he usually carried when he went on a trip, several strangers appeared suddenly and took Brown by the arms. Some one became alarmed and called the police.

Rides Away with Strangers

Policemen who responded nodded gravely while talking to the strangers, then drove away. Brown rode away with the strangers.

Spencer J. Drayton, head of the federal bureau of investigation office here, disclosed yesterday that the strangers were his agents. Brown, he said, is Nicholas George Montos, an ex-convict and four time jail breaker who has been sought by a score of southern cities for looting jewelry stores.

Drayton said Montos had separated his residence and the place of operations by hundreds of miles. His routine, the FBI head said, was to drive into a city, pick out a jewelry store, then break into it at night. He selected his loot carefully, then moved on the next day.

Three Warrants Issued

Three warrants charging him with such burglaries were issued at Knoxville, Tenn., and the FBI arrested him on a warrant charging unlawful flight to avoid prosecution. He has been sought for similar offenses in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, and other southern states, Drayton said.

Since 1937, Montos has broken out of four southern prisons, including the modern Kilby penitentiary at Montgomery, Ala., which had been considered almost escapeproof.

The prisoner still insisted he was Brown, the suburbanite, when United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker held him in bond of $10,000 for a hearing May 21. He offered no explanation for his "business" suitcase which contained files, chisels, and jimmying tools.

JAPS ESCAPING BURMA SMOKED OUT BY BRITISH

CALCUTTA, India, May 14 (AP)—Air and ground elements of allied forces engaged in a giant Japanese hunt over large parts of southern Burma today, smoking out small parties of the defeated enemy still trying t escape eastward.

The British 33d division continued to advance down the Irrawaddy toward Rangoon, daily bagging scores of Japanese trying to float down the river or cross it to the eastward. West Africans advancing east on the Taungup-Prome road also are rounding up small parties of the enemy every day.

G I Joe in the Pacific

By ARTHUR VEYSEY

(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

BIAK, May 9 [Delayed]—The battle for Biak officially ended eight or nine months ago but the collection here of American clerks and barge boys, the natives, and the first Dutch army outfit to get into the war, are still encountering and wiping out unexpected Japs either singly or in groups.

Air force souvenir hunters have accounted for two or three. A truck driver had a good chance to get one Jap. He became tired while driving during a heavy rain, parked, and went to sleep. When he awoke there was a Jap sleeping alongside of him in the cab. The trucker screamed and jumped out one door and ran. The Jap, who had known enough to come in out of the rain, jumped out the other and ran in the opposite direction.

But don't be too hard on the driver. Another trucker stopped to give a ride to what he thought was a Yank soldier hitch-hiker. The man was a hitch-hiker and he was a soldier but altho dressed in American clothing he was a Jap. He threw a grenade into the cab and killed the driver.

Hardly a week goes by in which somebody on the roads doesn't get sniped at.

Eating Out Unhealthy

American clothing isn't all the Japs have. Virtually every nest of Japs the patrols find hidden in the jungle has an American army tent. The Japs eat American food out of American mess kits. There's the story that once in a great while some Jap apparently gets tired of downing his own cooking and turns up in the mess line at some American camp. This is always his last meal, mess sergeants being very disagreeable to people trying to chisel a meal.

Special service officers charged with putting on movies, like to tell the story about one of their tribe who got a very fierce note complaining about a Katharine Hepburn film. The writer wanted more Betty Grable. He, according to this untraceable story, was a Jap who regularly attended the open air shows.

After the 41st division had done some heavy fighting on Biak the job of cleaning up the island was given to part of the 93d division, the first Negro infantry outfit to be used in the Pacific. After they practiced on the Biak Japs and were taken to Luzon for busier workout the job was left to the clerks and the other usual noncombatants, the natives, and the Dutch infantry.

Party Gets Rough

Every man in this Dutch infantry is a book in himself. Professional soldiers, they all escaped either from Holland or the Dutch empire. They live deep in the jungle.

The other night they threw a party for about 30 American officers and a similar number of WACs, nurses, and Red Cross girls. No sooner had the guests sat down to the food prepared by their Javanese cooks than the booby traps set around the camp to guard against interlopers, began popping. The Dutch grabbed their guns and began shooting. The guests flopped behind logs.

In time the meal was resumed. Came more booby traps and more shooting. A third time all started to eat. Then some one hurled a grenade into the camp.

The Dutch, at first accused of putting on a show, said they thought maybe the party ought to be moved to a quieter spot. Everybody there will never forget the nervous 15 mile jeep ride back out of the jungle.

LA GRANGE YANK ONE OF FIRST 8 TO ENTER NAHA

BY THOMAS MORROW

(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

OKINAWA, May 13 [Delayed]—An eight man patrol of the 6th marine division, which included Pvt. Kent Doolittle, LaGrange, Ill., was the first into Naha, Okinawa's capital city.

Headed by Lt. Dennis Chavez Jr., Albuquerque, N. M., son of the United States senator, the marines worked thru the streets in the northern suburbs for more than an hour. They received some sniper and mortar fire from a hill outside the town as they investigated the ramshackle wooden houses and moved toward the estuary which separates the main city from the outskirts.

There they found the bridge blown out by the Japanese. Corp. Thomas D. Bryson Jr., Oakland, Cal., started to wade across but began to sink in the mud two-thirds of the way. He was rescued by a rope.

Snipers Fill Houses.

The only Jap killed by the patrol was slain by Marine James Maddocks, Fairfield, Me., who saw him move across a window. Across the estuary, patrol members said, the houses looked more substantial and Jap tanks could be seen preparing to attempt to repulse the coming attack.

When the patrol returned without casualty, a company headed by Capt. John T. Lanigan of London, O., moved on the city. They found the houses, empty during the patrol visit, filled with Japanese snipers and the neighboring trees inhabited in like manner.

Tanks lumbered into position and opened fire on the streets. Ten or twelve Jap snipers leaped from the trees and were cut down. One tank, hit by Japanese mortar fire, halted while the crew clambered out. Apparently unhurt, they mounted again and moved away.

Orders Houses Burned

Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger, commander of the 3d amphibious corps, ordered the sniper infested Naha houses to be burned by flamethrowing tanks.

A regiment of the 1st division marines was hammering away at a ridge 1,200 yards west of Dakeshi. From a ridge 200 yards in the rear, artillery blasted into hillside caves and raised clouds of obscuring smoke and dust.

Two tanks moved along a road near the crest, firing as they went. One of them flared red, and began to burn as it took a direct Jap hit. The tank ammunition blew up as the vehicle halted dead on the ridge. As the artillery lifted the infantry moved up the ridge.

TOP NAZIS USED IN CARRYING OUT SHAEF'S ORDERS

Doenitz, Keitel and Jodl Installed at Flensburg

FLENSBURG, Germany, May 14 (AP)—The German liner Patria, docked here, is the living quarters and office of a mission from supreme allied headquarters.

Quartered aboard are American generals in constant touch with Grand Adm. Karl Doenitz, Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, and Col. Gen. Gustav Jodl, as well as other high German military and naval men and diplomats.

Within a block is a submarine school where thousands learned how to sink allied shipping. A mile farther is the marine school and German signal school where Doenitz has his headquarters.

Communications of the signal school, including a radio transmitter, give Doenitz contact with war wrecked Germany.

Direct Wire Hookup

Direct wires link Gen. Eisenhower with the Patria and the Patria with Doenitz's headquarters. Officers of the SHAEF confer frequently with Doenitz and his staff.

It is difficult to explain the exact status of Doeniz, who has not been recognized as the head of the German state. However, it was believed necessary to maintain contact with a German military authority. Thus far Doenitz has been capable of giving orders and to a large degree seeing that they are carried out.

[A Reuters dispatch from London quoted Count Schwerin von Krosigk as saying that Doenitz is head of the German state and that he—the count—is acting premier, foreign secretary, and finance minister, and that his cabinet consists of Albert Speer, Herbert Backe, Franz Seldte, and Julius Dorpmueller. All held office under Hitler.]

Press Hunt for Himmler

A dragnet is out in this area for Heinrich Himmler. Danish underground organizers insist the Gestapo chief is here. Himmler is reported to have been in touch with Doenitz recently and asked his protection, but was told that if the Germans found him he would be turned over to the allies.

Bans "Friendly Enemy" Role

LONDON, May 14 (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower cracked down sharply today on senior American officers for their reported friendly treatment of high German war prisoners after the British press expressed hot indignation at the "sheer impertinence" of Nazi leaders and German officers since Germany's surrender.

Such treatment is in direct violation of long standing orders and "drastic measures have been set in motion to assure termination of these errors," Eisenhower said.

It was recalled that when Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering surrendered to the United States 7th army he was treated with considerable deference.

"Greetings and Handshake"

An Associated Press dispatch said Goering was given a lunch of chicken and peas in a hotel parlor after "brief greetings and a handshake" and later posed for pictures with Maj. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, commander of the 36th division, and with Brig. Gen. Robert J. Stack, assistant division commander.

[Herman Goering will be the first Nazi leader brought to trial as a war criminal, Reuters, quoting the Luxemburg radio, said.]

In view of Gen. Eisenhower's statement, London was watching with close interest the Americans' handling of Col. Gen. Heinz Guderian, tank expert and former chief of the German general staff, who was captured yesterday by the 7th.

NAZIS HELD OUT 3 EXTRA DAYS AT ST. NAZAIRE

BY DAVID DARRAH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, May 14—The German Atlantic wall pocket of St. Nazaire held out for three days after the Germans had capitulated at Reims, and was the last theater of operations on the western front, it was disclosed today. With its fall 100,000 French who had heard the peace proclamation for the rest of Europe on May 8 and wondered when their turn would come, were liberated.

It is now disclosed that 25,000 Germans, commanded by Gen. Jung, capitulated on May 8 at Cordemais to Gen. Larimat's plenipotentiary, Maj. Bois. Jung signed the surrender in the presence of Maj. Gen. H. F. Kramer, commanding the 66th American infantry division which had been helping the French hold the Germans in the pocket.

The French and American troops marched into St. Nazaire only on May 11. The Lorient and La Rochelle pockets had fallen days before.

NAVY SUMMONS 14,000 MORE FOR MEDICAL TASKS

An appeal for 4,000 more doctors and 10,000 hospital corps WAVES to care for increased casualties expected in the Pacific as American forces close in on Japan was issued yesterday by Vice Adm. Ross T. McIntire, surgeon general of the navy. He disclosed plans for expansion of naval medical facilities, including several new hospitals.

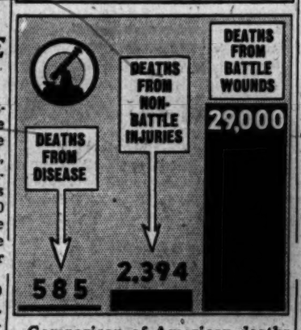
"To staff these facilities adequately," said Adm. McIntire, "the navy will need these people in addition to the thousands of nurses already obtained." He said that more than 13,000 hospital corps WAVES are on duty, with a record of outstanding performance.

"As we penetrate more deeply into the enemy's territory," he continued, "our battles will be more intense and, unfortunately, our casualties greater." Volunteers are asked to report at 141 Jackson blvd. or at navy recruiting stations.

120,000 Nazis to Begin Leaving Holland May 25

CANADIAN 1ST ARMY HDQ., May 14 (AP)—The 120,000 disarmed and surrendered Germans will start leaving Holland for northwest Germany May 25. Four days before the Germans start leaving, Queen Wilhelmina is to take the salute from 14,000 or so picked Canadians parading in The Hague. Dutch SS troops will be weeded out and turned over to the queen's government for disposition.

Disease Conquered



Comparison of American deaths from disease, injuries, and wounds in the Mediterranean theater.

ROME, May 14 (AP)—Behind the story of American battle victories in the Mediterranean is the story of victories over disease which were equally decisive.

Fighting thru pest holes in which lurked malaria, typhus, and other microbe enemies which in other times had decimated armies, the American forces lost 585 soldiers to disease from the invasion of North Africa Nov. 8, 1942, thru March, 1945.

This compared with 2,394 deaths from nonbattle injuries and approximately 29,000 from battle wounds.

This record of victory over an invisible enemy was made public today by Maj. Gen. Morrison C. Stayer, chief theater surgeon, thru whose 50 army hospitals passed 918,298 members of the United States armed forces with a death record of less than one per cent.

SPAIN TO GIVE UP LAVAL FOR TRIAL AS A TRAITOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, May 14—Pierre Laval, who in June, 1940, said in a radio speech that he hoped for a German victory, will be delivered shortly by Spain to the French provisional government for trial as a traitor, according to the French news agency tonight.

A British ship will carry Laval to a French port. Under heavy guard he will be rushed swiftly to Paris, and imprisoned at Fresnes. Laval is accompanied by his wife and his former minister of education, Abel Bonnard.

Laval made an appeal to his friend, Jose Felix Lequerica, Spanish foreign minister, to be turned over to America for trial after the Spanish locked him up. Turning him over to the French means he will be considered as a traitor instead of a war criminal.

U. S. ACES ZEMKE AND GABRESKI REACH LONDON

LONDON, May 14 (AP)—German civilians tortured and killed some American airmen forced down in Germany, one of a large group of liberated American pirsoners of war said today upon returning by air from a German camp at Barth on the Baltic.

Lt. John C. Morgan [left], Lt. Col. Francis S. Gabreski, and Col. Hubert Zemke [right].

Included among the 9,200 prisoners freed from the camp, Stalag Luft No. 1, north of Berlin, were several famed aces, including Lt. Col. Francis S. Gabreski of Oil City, Pa., and Col. Hubert Zemke of Missoula, Mont.

Gabreski, a Thunderbolt pilot, set the 8th air force record of 28 enemy planes shot down in the air and three on the ground. Zemke, a Mustang group commander, is credited with 19½ in the air and 11 on the ground. Evacuation of the prisoners was completed today by heavy bombers of the 8th air force. One of those returned was Lt. John C. Morgan of Amarillo, Tex., holder of the congressional medal of honor.

GERMAN DEFEAT 'BLOW' TO NOBEL AUTHOR HAMSUN

New York, May 14 (AP)—The Swedish radio said tonight that Knut Hamsun, Norwegian author who won the Nobel prize for literature in 1920, had suffered a "nervous breakdown" when he learned of Germany's surrender.

The broadcast, reported by the FCC, said the one time Chicago trolley conductor "is being looked after by his wife, Maria, of equal Nazi fame." Hamsun's two sons have been arrested for pro-Nazi activities, the report added.

HORSE CAR CONDUCTOR

Knut Hamsun, now past 80, author of "Growth of the Soil," the Nobel prize winner, and many other novels, was conductor on a horse drawn street car on the Halsted street line here in the 1880s. Fired from the job for neglecting it to read books, he worked his way back to Norway on a fishing smack. He also is the author of a number of poems and several plays.

MAN WHO BUILT IT CASTS DOUBT ON NAZI REDOUBT

BY HOWARD COWAN

BERCHTESGADEN, May 14 (AP)—The man who built Hitler's mountain mansion confirmed today the fact that the idea of a "national redoubt" where the Nazi leaders could hole up and hold out for years was pure fiction.

He is Hines Nories, 36 year old engineer and architect. Pronounced by American army officials a safe risk, Nories has been made mayor of Berchtesgaden. He has been digging tunnels and building fancy homes for the Nazi leaders since 1936.

"The redoubt could never have been defended," he said. "There are machine guns in the pillboxes and in the walls of the tunnels, but a little dynamite and, poof—it would be all over.

Just Air Raid Shelters

"The tunnels never were designed as anything more than air raid shelters and places to store valuable items where they would be safe from bombing.

"We still were working up to April 25 when the big R. A. F. raid came. One of our labor camps was destroyed but only six people were killed. That's when the houses were smashed—Hitler's, Goering's, and Bormann's. Goering was caught in that raid and two days later he was arrested by the SS."

Some rooms in Hitler's house were strewn with face powder, toilet water, and women's apparel.

The aroma of perfumes still hung over the place.

Girl Friend Always Around

"O, Hitler's girl friend always was around," Nories explained. "I mean Eva Braun," he added. "She's a very simple girl. She used to work for Heinrich Hoffmann — Hitler's photographer."

"Where's Hoffmann?" I asked.

"Hah!" Nories scoffed. "He's around waiting until he can take pictures of Gen. Eisenhower. He's a business man, yes, a business man."

Nories told, with some mischievousness, about Goering's bath tub.

"It is a very big one," he said. "Goering had a bomber fly it up here from Berlin. It was too big to go in the doors or windows. I had to tear a wall out and hoist it in with a crane."

Nories was right about its size. Gault MacGowan, broad beamed New York Sun correspondent, and I both fitted comfortably in it together. [It still had a ring around it.]

THOUSANDS OF SLAIN IN CZECH CAMP BURN ON PYRE SIX MONTHS

LONDON, May 14 [Reuters]—Thousands of bodies of executed prisoners were stacked in pyres in the concentration camp at Blassow, Czechoslovakia, and the pyres burned for fully six months, a German inmate of the camp said.

Radio Luxemburg today quoted him as saying:

"The camp housed mainly Jews—in all 20,000 men, women, and children. The commandant ordered the execution of a great number of inmates, which took place in groups of six, who were taken to a quarry near-by and shot. Toward the end of my stay there, I witnessed the execution of more than 300 people daily.

"In order to erase all incriminating evidence, the commandant ordered thousands of bodies to be disinterred and stacked by the surviving inmates into pyres, which were then set alight."

"..a new nation conceived in liberty"

IT WAS to a tense and hushed audience at Gettysburg in 1863 that Abraham Lincoln made his immortal address.

He opened his speech with a fitting tribute to the founding fathers who "brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty" . . . and closed with a soul-stirring picture of America as a "government of the people, by the people, for the people."

For long seconds after he finished, the audience was silent. Then the suppressed excitement burst forth—and a wave of applause went up.

That applause has never died down. America always responds to a statement of her most cherished ideals.

Just as America is responding today in her titanic struggle to remain free.

It is of such American traditions—and the maintaining of such American ideals—that you should think when you buy War Bonds.

7TH BOND DRIVE IN CHICAGO OFF TO GOOD START

Officials Are Confident of Success

Officials of the war finance committee last night expressed high confidence that Chicago will oversubscribe its tremendous quota of $327,474,000 in the drive to sell war bonds with which to finish up Japan. The campaign opened yesterday.

Because of the steady rain, only a comparatively small crowd attended the rally at State and Madison sts. The last day of the show at Chicago airport was called off. Most of the ships taking part in the air spectacle Saturday and Sunday were due in the similar shows in other cities today so that no postponement was possible.

Signs Are Good

Lawrence Stern, local chairman of the "mighty 7th" war loan campaign, said "there are signs that everything is going well."

"One sign," he said, "comes from R. V. Slaker of the Boston Store, that State st. already has sold a total of $1,968,758, or more than one-eighth of its 15 million dollar quota, to customers and employes. This report is compiled from the individual figures given us by the stores, shops, offices, and theaters on State st.

Boy Goes Over Top

"Another sign comes from an entirely different quarter—a boy champion block bond seller, John Adams Jr., 1431 Madison st. John, who sold $12,000 worth of bonds in the 6th war loan, was the first boy to report his quota oversubscribed. He has called on every one of the 92 families in his block. His quota was $3,200 in this drive. He has sold $3,350 worth, going over the top by $150."

The present quotas for Chicago, Cook county, and Illinois, are by far the largest totals ever asked of the city, county, and state. In Illinois the total for individuals and corporations together runs to almost a billion dollars.

SHAEF OUSTS 2 AP WRITERS FOR SCOOP ON PEACE

PARIS, May 14 (AP)—Supreme headquarters announced tonight the disaccreditation of Edward Kennedy of the Associated Press on a charge of breach of confidence in breaking prematurely the story of the signing of the German surrender.

Edward Kennedy

Morton P. Gudebrod of the Associated Press was disaccredited at the same time for taking "an active part in the premature release of a news story." The statement follows:

"Investigation of premature transmission and release of the story of the unconditional surrender of German forces written by Edward Kennedy has been completed.

"The following actions have been taken as a result of the investigation and on the authority of the supreme commander:

"War Correspondent Edward Kennedy of the Associated Press, having deliberately violated a trust reposed in him by prematurely releasing thru unauthorized channels and deliberately avoiding military censorship a news story concerning which he was pledged to secrecy, is disaccredited and ordered to return to the United States.

Associate Ordered Home

"War Correspondent Morton P. Gudebrod of the Associated Press, having taken an active part in the premature release of a news story thru unauthorized channels, thus violating existing military censorship regulations, is disaccredited and ordered to return to the United States.

"War Correspondent Robert Bunnelle of the Associated Press, who was suspended, has been reinstated.

[Bunnelle, with headquarters in London, had been suspended as a war correspondent in the European theater during the investigation since the dispatch passed thru the London bureau of the AP.]

"The Associated Press has published its profound regrets for distribution of the story in advance of its authorization.

"With this statement, this regrettable incident is considered as closed by supreme headquarters."

Conscience Clear, Kennedy Says

Kennedy, in a statement issued after the disaccreditation, said:

"My conscience is clear in this matter. I did what I considered to be my duty and informed SHAEF public relations in advance that I intended to do it. I am fully responsible for the action of Morton Gudebrod in this matter as he acted under my instructions.

"The decision to send the news that Germany had surrendered was made wholly by myself without consultation with the New York office of the Associated Press. I sent the fact of the surrender to the Associated Press without explanation of the conditions under which I was sending it."

Molotov Back in Moscow, Says Soviet Broadcast

Coming our way?

IT'S EASY TO GET TO HOTEL Lennox ST. LOUIS

...because we're CHICAGOANS

Chicago has repeatedly gone over the top on its War Bond Drives. That's because Chicagoans aren't the kind of folks who like to pass the buck to others. The thing that makes a bond drive significant is not alone meeting the quota—but the number of folks whose bond buying make up that quota.

It's that extra bond I buy—and the extra bond you buy that mounts into a swelling fund when you and I are added to a few million Chicagoans.

We're old hands at bond buying by now. The fact that things are going well doesn't mean that we're not all anxious to be part of the Sunday punch that sends the last enemy reeling. The fact that we're winning doesn't change the fact that we can't win faster and easier by not letting up for a second.

So—we'll buy more and more bonds because its sensible, because we're the kind of folks who go over the top.

IRISH PAPERS HAIL LIFTING OF CENSORSHIP

Like Leaving a Cell, Says Dublin Daily

BY HUGH CURRAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

DUBLIN, May 14—The sudden removal of the censorship on the newspapers here was received with joy by journalists of all parties.

The Irish Times says, "We feel as anybody must feel who, having been confined in a dark cell for nearly six years, is released suddenly into the sunshine and is blinded by the light.

"Ever since the war broke out the Irish newspapers have been subjected to an official discipline in some respects as draconian and irrational as anything devised in the fertile brain of the late Josef Goebbels. We have been living in conditions of unspeakable humiliation."

Calls It Justified

The Irish Independent writes, "We gladly bid good-by to the censorship, not only because its departure marks restoration of the freedom of the press—a fundamental right and need of a democratic community—but also because of the disappearance of powers which were unreasonably and unfairly exercised."

The Irish Press, the government newspaper, says the censorship justified itself, "even tho it did not prevent lies about this country being published aboard, but in opposing efforts to create a Partisan split at home by inflaming passions which might impair the splendid unity shown by the nation in the crisis, it unquestionably succeeded."

Apart from the suppression of news of general interest, nothing has caused so much indignation here as the prevention from publication of acts of bravery by Irishmen in the fighting forces, for which hundreds of men have received the highest honors.

Many Purple Hearts Won

These included numerous Victoria Crosses conferred by King George, as well as many Purple Hearts by the United States government.

Several papers now are endeavoring to rectify this by publishing names of the men and the honors received, but find it difficult owing to the shortage of newsprint.

Allegations are freely made that the censorship was used by the government to promote party propaganda.

REPORTS BOY, 9, MISSING

James Garner, 9313 Indiana av., Negro, told police yesterday that his grandson, James Arthur, 9, has been missing since Sunday.

FRENCH WRITER SAYS GERMANS PLAN NEW WAR

If Germany runs true to form, there will be an interval for the children to grow up and then will come a war exterminating civilization as we know it, Lt. Philippe de Croisset, 34, of the French naval air force, warned yesterday in an address before the City club. He attached significance to the fact that the German general staff is the only organized group in that country.

De Croisset, journalist and son of the French playwright, the late Francis de Croisset, credited Germany with victories in health and population. He compared his own country's loss of potential population and leadership thru the German deportation of slave labor. Half of the deportees won't come back, he said, and many of those who do get home won't survive their experiences.

He described living conditions last winter as the worst so far, in physical discomfort for the people and held little hope for much improvement until the country's transportation facilities are restored.

LEFTISTS SWEEP FRENCH POLLS; DEMAND REFORM

PARIS, May 14 (AP)—A coalition of French leftist parties, winning 52 per cent of 600,000 municipal council seats in recent local elections, soon will present a demand to Gen. De Gaulle for sweeping political and economic changes in the French social system, it was learned today.

Rolling up a big victory in two elections within the last month, the leftist block will ask for nationalization of vital industries, the abolition of trusts and various guarantees for labor, political sources disclosed.

Government circles said that the program would be received favorably by a number of ministers in De Gaulle's cabinet, but the attitude of the government as a whole was not known.

WELL, GOD, here we are.

You up there. Me down here, with a burning sun, a mess of insects, too much ocean, and other buddies just as lonely as me.

Oh, God, how nice it must be back home, with Germany licked, and the folks humming, and some of the boys all finished with the fighting.

But I guess that wasn't meant for me, was it? And tomorrow and tomorrow I'll still be dodging bullets, still feeling lost in the middle of the night.

Well, no hard feelings.

I'll go wherever You say, and do whatever You want me to. For You know what's best for me.

But say, if You can only get the people back home to remember me, maybe they'll still bear down. Maybe they'll still send us their blood, still stay on the job, still keep making the stuff we need.

You see, God, I'd like to get home, too.

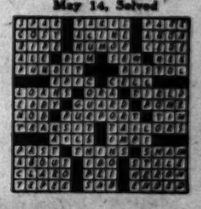
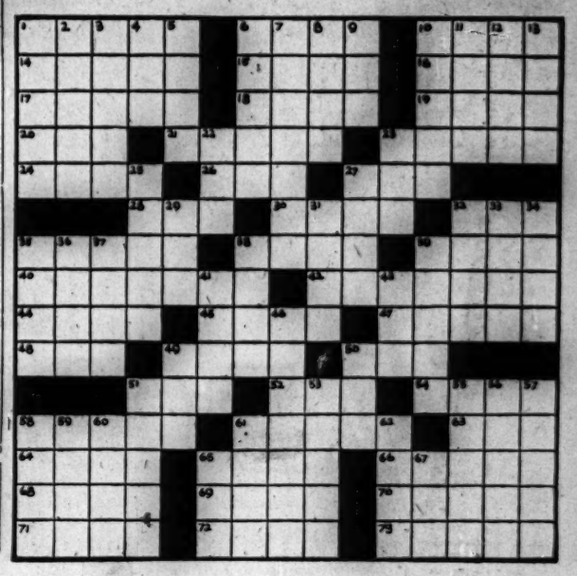
Puzzle of Monday, May 14, Solved





"When HE went, I joined up too—"

That sums up the spirit shown by many women who have returned to our ranks to help handle wartime telephone traffic. About one-third of the eight thousand engaged to work in our central offices over the past year were former Illinois Bell employees.

Their expert help has done much to lighten the load of a record total of telephone calls, millions more than the top for any previous year. At present, more than 2300 Illinois Bell men and more than 400 women are on military leave.

In spite of the shortage of manpower and mechanical facilities, telephone service throughout this area has been prompt and dependable. But only because the men and women in every phase of telephone work have pitched in to do their job well.

YANK FAMILIES' HOPES LIFTED BY GOAD'S SURVIVAL

Pray Others Will 'Return from the Dead'

Portsmouth, O., May 14 (AP)—Lt. Harold W. Goad's "return from the dead" in Rangoon, Burma, has aroused the hopes of dozens of mothers and wives of service men who similarly have been reported missing—and presumed dead.

Harry B. Goad and his wife, Ivy, the rescued B-24 pilot's parents, said today they have been kept busy the last week at their home here answering letters from persons who cling to a hope their lost service men may return as Lt. Goad did.

From the length and breadth of the United States—and even from Canada—have come letters to the parents of the flyer.

Relatives Write

Some are from relatives of missing men who knew Lt. Goad. Some are from friends. Some are from wives and mothers who know their own loved ones are dead but who couldn't resist telling the parents how happy they are for them.

Lt. Goad's pretty wife, Helen also received numerous letters at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Zuhars, where she is waiting for her husband's return from an army hospital in Calcutta, India.

The flyer was taken there to recuperate. He was rescued at a hospital in Rangoon 10 days ago when British troops routed the Japanese. He and two crew members parachuted to safety after their flakridden bomber exploded 65 miles from Rangoon Oct. 14, 1943, and were taken prisoners. Lt. Goad was reported missing at the time.

Wife Remarried

His wife last December married Robert A. MacDowell, navy ensign from Saugerties, N. Y., two months after the war department notified her Lt. Goad was "presumed dead." But she has announced she loves Harold best and will ask annulment of her marriage to MacDowell.

"We're answering every letter," Lt Goad's stepmother said. The wife of a flyer whose husband went down in India shortly after Lt. Goad's crash wrote:

"I have never gotten many facts about the crash, and at the end of a year the war department declared Jim and crew dead. But still in my heart I feel he is alive, and since reading about your son I have renewed hope."

A mother whose son was lost in Burma in March, 1944, said:

"I have never felt my blessed boy was gone, and expect each hour to get word as you have."

The Goads are answering all the letters—except personal ones from friends of Lt. Goad.

"He can answer them when he gets home," his father smiled. "And he'll have a lot of letter writing to do!"

SAILOR WAITING FOR HIS SON, 2; EX-WIFE HUNTED

Judge Joseph Sabath in Superior court yesterday asked Asst. State's Atty. Meyer H. Goldstein to investigate the failure of Mrs. Elinore Jean Cashman, 21, of 5728 N. Ridge av., to appear in court and surrender her son, Jimmy, 2, to his father, Benjamin H. Cashman, a sailor and her former husband.

B. H. Cashman

Mrs. Cashman obtained a divorce before Judge Sabath March 8, 1944, on a charge of desertion, and was awarded custody of the child. Later the court ruled favorably upon a petition filed by Cashman seeking transference of the boy's custody to himself.

Mrs. Cashman was given until yesterday to bring the child into court so that Jimmy could leave for California today with his father. The worried Cashman told the court that he had watched his former wife's home for three days and nights and that neighbors said she had "gone away." The sailor's attorney, Harry X. Cole, attempted to gain postponement of his client's departure orders. Goldstein was instructed to report back to Judge Sabath today.

She was identified by her husband, John, and a daughter, Susan, who told police she left home Saturday at 11:30 a. m. saying she was going to visit friends.

Police of Gary and East Chicago were seeking to trace her movements from the time she left home.

LULL IN RAIN DUE TODAY, BUT MAY NOT LAST

After a full day of rain, which was continuing thru the early morning, Chicago faced the prospect of a respite around noon today. But, warned Forecaster E. S. Hanlon last night, it looks like a brief respite. More rain will fall by tomorrow night or Thursday, he predicted. Weather today will be cool, cloudy, and windy.

In the 24 hours up to 7:30 p. m., yesterday, 1.45 inches of rain fell; and in the next 2½ hours a hard downpour added at least half an inch more.

11 Rainy Days This Month

Up to last night the May rainfall measured 5.35 inches, well above the normal of 3.50 inches for the entire month. Rain had fallen 11 out of the first 14 days. Only May 5, 6, and 8 were dry.

The all-time 14 day rain record was established in June, 1892, when 9.49 inches fell. From May 7 to May 20 last year the fall amounted to 5.65. The greatest 24 hour rainfall was 6.19, set on Aug. 2, 1885.

No Serious Crop Damage

The rains have been general, sweeping from Michigan to Nebraska, with many places reporting 2 inches. The rain, it was said, has caused no serious damage to farm crops or war gardens. However, some deterioration of winter wheat has occurred, especially in the southern tier of counties in the east-west belt.

There some field work has been seriously delayed, and as a result there has been some abandonment of oat acreage. In the central and northern counties oat planting was completed and the rain did little harm.

PLANE CRASH DEATH RULED MISHAP

A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury in the death of Russell Molenaar, 32, of 2605 182d place, Lansing, a war worker, who was killed when his rented two seater Piper cub plane crashed two blocks from his home Sunday afternoon.

POLITICIAN ASKS LEGISLATION TO CURB NEWSMEN

Boston, Mass., May 14 (AP)—State Sen. Clifford R. Cusson [R., Haverhill] told the Massachusetts senate today that he was in favor of "dangerous laws," because "we need them if we're going to put these reporters and newspaper men where they belong."

Cusson asked immediate action on a bill which would remove the word "knowingly" from a statute fixing penalties for making or publishing false statements about candidates for political office.

The present law forbids making misstatements about candidates, and establishes the penalties for "knowingly" violating the law at a fine up to $1,000 or jail up to six months.

Sen. John W. Mackay [R., Quincy] won postponement until tomorrow. He said removal of the qualifying word "knowingly" "would make one subject to criminal prosecution for an innocent misstatement."

ALBANY SCHOOLS BLOT OUT PRAISE FOR JAPANESE

Albany, N. Y., May 14 (AP)—Albany public schools today stapled the Japanese section out of existence in the pre-war textbook "The Old World and Its Gifts," after a civic association protested it made the Nips too kindly.

The two pages on Japan were ordered stapled together by John W. Park, superintendent of schools, following complaint of the nearby Rotterdam, N. Y., Civic association. Parks said he had received no direct protest.

The book, used for reference by fifth and six grade pupils, characterized the Japs as "a clean, alert, intelligent people," who acquired new land "because it is almost impossible for so many people to make a living on their small islands."

The Rotterdam education board and school superintendent planned a meeting to consider what disposition to make of the book.

Groundwork

Millions will be needed for "Deferred Maintenance"

TODAY'S mighty war loads are riding on foundations like that pictured . . . "highways" into which the railroads have put more than 4 billion dollars for improvements since the last war. This groundwork is the necessary basis for carrying the greatest load in history.

Wear and tear on roadway, bridges, locomotives, cars and equipment have been terrific. And material and labor for needed maintenance are not obtainable now beyond the minimum necessary for safe, continued operation. As a result, much work that should be done has had to be deferred. So the railroads are wearing out 25 per cent faster than they can be restored.

Money from current revenue should be saved to pay for the needed repairs and replacements when material and labor are available. But the tax law forbids. If money for needed repairs cannot be spent as it is earned it is considered "profit" and practically taxed away. But it isn't profit. It is the life-blood of the railroads.

To tax this money away, simply because it cannot be spent now due to war conditions, threatens the backbone of American transportation.

Congressional amendment of the tax law to permit this money to be put aside for repairs and replacement would mean strong postwar railroads and thousands of jobs for returning fighting men in furnishing materials and restoring the railroads for the needs of tomorrow.

BLOODLESS CONQUEST

Junius B. Wood, writing in Nation's Business, tells how the United States has been overrun by an army of foreign propagandists. "Harried American taxpayers," he says, "hope our country's largess to other nations will shrink to a trickle after the war. The other nations have ideas of their own—40 billion dollars is a conservative estimate of what they believe the United States should earmark for their future."

To the end of extracting a huge part of our dwindling substance, the British, the Russians, the Dutch, the Belgians, the Australians, the Czechs, the Chinese, and a dozen or more other countries are busy distributing "news," straight propaganda, films, and pictures, arranging lectures and exhibits, and engaging in scores of additional activities so that we may, as they call it, be "enlightened."

"The United States," Mr. Wood asserts, "is the happy hunting ground for the salesmen of every government—whether it be actual, theoretical, or potential. They flock here like hopeful prospectors to a newly discovered gold field."

Mr. Wood has tabulated 325 active foreign propagandists who are registered agents, but these are a mere fraction of the host engaged in elaborating the thesis that "America owes it to the world," or to Britain, or to China, or any other nation just so it doesn't happen to be America, to supply a grubstake in perpetuity. These agents have complete freedom under our Constitution to distribute any sort of propaganda, just so it avoids libel or sedition.

To the duly registered agents must be added countless citizens of this country whose enthusiasm for foreign nations or particular causes makes them energetic volunteers in the project of plundering America for the benefit of everybody else. Louis Adamic, for example, is the most vocal proponent of Tito's communist Yugoslavia, but he isn't registered, presumably because he is on his own.

Mr. Wood quotes the late Lord Northcliffe as saying after the last war that Britain had spent 150 million dollars to propagandize the United States. Mr. Wood adds that this activity never ceased. The British Library of Information was established here on a permanent basis in 1920. A press service was added in 1940, and the present British Information services followed in 1942. One of the British projects between wars, Mr. Wood recites, was to rewrite American history books so that Britain would come off better. "The rewriting project," he adds, "was put on ice until revived by Mrs. Roosevelt recently."

One of the anomalies emphasized in Mr. Wood's article is that American tax money has been used by the office of war information for the purpose of advancing the cause of foreign nations and detracting from America's war accomplishments. For example, the OWI brought over a group of French journalists to tour America. "They startled audiences by declaring that American tanks advanced 300 miles without firing a shot," Mr. Wood says, "the French underground having done the fighting, and that De Gaulle is the savior of France. Praise of De Gaulle is necessary for a newspaper's existence in France.

"Our casualty lists," Mr. Wood continues, "tell a different story as to who did the fighting. Reliable American correspondents report that De Gaulle's fixed policy has been to belittle these sacrifices. OWI, whose attempts to say a good word for the United States are blocked in France, paid for the French propaganda in the United States, including cable tolls for the reporters' daily messages to their French employers."

Our armies have finished their job in Europe. There was the battle of Africa, the battle of Italy, the battle of Normandy, and the battle of Germany, all successfully won. Now it seems time for the citizens of the United States to come to their country's defense. The battle for the United States is on. We have been subjected to a sneak invasion, and the object is to conquer our people and loot the country in the interest of foreign nations. These alien propagandists think it can be done without firing a shot.

THE 14TH AMENDMENT REDISCOVERED

In all the excitement attendant on the victory for liberty in Europe little attention has been paid to a decision of the Supreme court, delivered on May 7, that seeks to solve an old and troublesome problem of liberty in this country.

The problem, in its simplest form, is how to protect citizens from the occasional savageries of policemen when local law enforcement officers won't prosecute the brutes. The solution just approved by the Supreme court is to try such offenders under federal law in the federal courts, always a dubious remedy for failures in local law enforcement, but perhaps the only one conveniently at hand.

The facts before the Supreme court were these:

M. Claude Screws, as sheriff of Baker county, Georgia, went out one night with a policeman and a deputy to arrest a Negro, Robert Hall, who was accused of stealing a tire. The three officers stopped at a saloon and remained there at least long enough to be advised by the proprietor to wait until the next morning to make the arrest. They disregarded the suggestion, went to Hall's house, handcuffed him, and took him to jail in an automobile. They said when Hall got out of the car he reached for a gun and used insulting language. They retaliated by beating him with their fists and a two pound blackjack, knocked him to the ground, and continued the beating for 15 minutes or more as he lay there. Finally, they dragged him by the legs thru the courthouse yard into the jail. He died an hour later without regaining consciousness.

The state's attorney did nothing. He said he was an attorney, not a detective, and, as no complaint had been filed with him by Sheriff Screws, or anybody else, he had no occasion to act.

At this point the recently created civil rights division of the federal department of justice entered the case, armed with an old law and a new zeal. The sheriff and his two men were indicted under a federal statute, enacted just after the Civil war, which provides imprisonment for a year and a fine of $1,000 for any one who, "under color of any law . . . willfully subjects . . . any inhabitant of any state . . . to the deprivation of any rights, privileges, or immunities secured or protected by the Constitution and laws of the United States, or to different punishments . . . on account of such inhabitant being an alien, or by reason of his color or race, than are prescribed for the punishment of citizens."

Screws and his two associates were convicted by a jury in the federal District court in Georgia and the conviction was affirmed by the Second Circuit Court of Appeals. The further appeal to the Supreme court has resulted in sending the case back to the District court in Georgia for retrial.

Four different opinions were delivered. At first glance it might appear that, with the court so divided the prospect of further prosecutions of local officials under the federal statute and the 14th amendment is not particularly bright. That conclusion is not warranted. Six of the nine members of the court have declared that such a prosecution is constitutional, and the only restriction that any of the six favors is a relatively uninhibiting requirement that instructions to the jury emphasize the question whether a constitutional right had been infringed.

The civil rights section of the department of justice has thus been given a charter—oddly enough, an 80 year old charter—upon which to proceed against such police officers as Screws. The minority of the court fears that the decision may lead to serious abuses, and perhaps these forecasts will be realized, even tho it lies within the power of congress to alter the law.

The people of this country, we suspect, will welcome the decision for the means it may afford of ending a dark chapter in law enforcement in this country. Certainly there would have been no resort to the federal courts if the state courts and state officials had done their full duty. It is to be hoped that the federal prosecutors will not now fall into the opposite mistake of making too free a use of the authority conferred on them.

PAPER TO EUROPE

The foreign economic administration has reported the export of 15,000 tons of newsprint from America to liberated European countries since Jan. 1 and announces tentative plans to ship 12,000 tons more during the third quarter of this year. In addition, the army is said to have supplied 5,000 tons a month to these countries in March and April. The demands of the French are reported to be as much as 100,000 tons a quarter.

Another report, not confirmed, is that the French actually have considerable stocks of newsprint and pulp, and that their mills are in good repair, but that the supplies of paper and pulp are in the black market. It is said that French officials think it simpler to break up the black market by flooding France with American lend-lease paper than to take effective steps themselves or pay higher prices.

Neutral Sweden is reported as having several hundred thousand tons of woodpulp ready for shipment as soon as the Baltic can be opened and ships made available. The Scandinavian countries would rather sell pulp in this country for American dollars than ship it to England or to the continent on some commodity exchange basis. Shipping pulp for cash to America to be made into paper for reshipment as lend-lease to Europe is economic folly when paper mills in England and on the continent are available.

Requests for supplies of pulp and paper from this side of the Atlantic for consumption in Europe should be carefully screened by FEA and WPB officials. Why the free press of America should be asked to curtail its use of paper to enable regimented newspapers in Europe to print political propaganda is a question which needs serious consideration.

Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.], member of the senate war investigating committee, is asking the committee counsel to look into these various reports. Readers not only of newspapers, but of magazines, books, and periodicals—in fact, all users of print paper—have a real interest in the outcome of such an investigation.

THE GRAVY TRAIN

[Cincinnati Enquirer]

How long before the gravy train comes to a stop? That is the slangy way in which industry asks the question. If the prosperity of the country is dependent on war, then peace will stop the busy wheels and the pay envelopes will no longer fill the pockets of the men and women now engaged in a thousand tasks for the armed forces. But there is not an economist who believes that the gravy train will be ditched. They point to the fact of a dammed-up demand for civilian goods that it will take several years to meet. And building! Everywhere there is urgent need of new houses and a rehabilitation of old houses. The great fact that lies behind this civilian demand is that the country is so flush. There is more money in the hands of the people than ever before. The banks bulge with money; loans for building and all other proper purposes will be available. So the economists predict that there will be no terrific business and industrial smashup in the change from war to peace.

It is rather a sacrilege to misquote Milton's great line, but we shall do it none the less, making it read: "Peace hath its profits as well as war."

WHAT ABOUT PRAGUE?

The condition of the city of Prague after liberation is a subject upon which this column would like more information than the Russian military bulletins have communicated. There have been reports of burning and ravaging in the last phase of nazi fanaticism, and we are worried about Bohemia's ancient capital, which has a high reputation for old world quaintness and charm. Many sound American citizens of Czech ancestry also would like to know if Karl's bridge, guarded by medieval towers [a favorite subject of artists], still stands, and if the Cathedral of St. Vitus, founded in 930, retains its splendor of ecclesiastical ornament.

There are a number of high points in Prague, such as Petrin hill and the terrace of the castle on Hradzany hill, that provide remarkable panoramic views of the city—Old Town, New Town, and the accretions of modernism, extending over both banks of the Vltava river. We quote from a travel book that the people who try to discover the origins of our information will never find ["1937 in Europe," Eugene Fodor, editor]:

"Against the skyline stand out hundreds of gables, towers, and turrets as well as the heavy buttresses of cathedrals and a number of green domes which seem to float on air. The stone bulk of the city wanes in the distance, its gray tints speckled at various heights by the green patches of gardens. The general layout of Prague is as unique in its own way as those of London, Paris, and Rome are in theirs."

The University of Prague is among the oldest in Europe. Its charter, issued in 1348 by a Holy Roman emperor who was also king of Bohemia, antedates that of Heidelberg, oldest university of Germany, by 38 years. In the middle ages and the Renaissance its students, who came from many countries, were as numerous as those of the greater European capitals. Tycho Brahe, a classic figure in the history of astronomy, spent the last two years of his life there, and is buried in Prague's Teynkirche.

These are a few of the reasons why we hope that there will not be much trouble in picking up the pieces of Prague.

Nobody ever writes about J. R. Jacobs' theater, which could be found at the northwest corner of Kinzie and Clark sts. in the 1890s. It gave melodramas. Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks answers questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents. Replies will be given by mail if stamped envelope is sent. Personal advice may be obtained from The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 So. Dearborn st., or by phone, Superior 0200.]

K. L. M. asks: "If a married naval officer is housed in government quarters but still has to maintain a separate home for his family in another city, does he lose his allowance for quarters?"

If a married naval officer lives in bachelor officers' quarters on a station he does not lose his quarters allowance for his family, but a single officer does. If government quarters, designated as suitable, are provided for a married officer where it is possible for his family to be with him, he loses his quarters allowance if he and his family do not choose to live in the quarters provided.

D. F. asks: "Has the veterans administration released an approved list of schools which veterans may attend under provisions of the educational section of the GI bill?"

Veterans may attend any school recognized by the department of education in the state where the school is located. Veterans also may attend recognized schools in foreign countries.

E. D. asks: "Where application for certain benefits under various laws affecting veterans limits date of application to specified periods after the war does that mean so many months or years after the surrender of Germany or Japan?"

No. The war will not be over until congress, by joint resolution, declares it officially terminated. That may be a year or more after fighting ends.

A PECULIAR GLANDULAR MALADY

NOW and then a patient is encountered who has all the findings of a common cold but fails to recover in the usual length of time. Perhaps fever persists or the neck glands remain swollen. Altho the individual is not greatly incapacitated, there remains a fear that a serious complication has developed.

As a result the physician requests an X-ray of the chest and a blood count. The vital fluid may show definite abnormalities, pointing to a disorder known as "glandular fever" or "infectious mononucleosis."

The ailment was described as early as 1889 by Emil Pfeiffer and is probably more widespread in its distribution than we realize. In the majority of sufferers discomfort is so mild that medical care is not sought. Since the malady tends to cure itself, no one is the wiser. In a few cases nature is not so kind, and miserable symptoms develop. Children and young adults are more likely to be afflicted and it is seen more frequently in the spring and fall of the year. The cause is unknown altho various germs have been blamed.

There are apparently several types of the malady. Some are characterized by red throat, fever, fatigue, and swollen glands. In others the lymph involvement may be the first indication of the disease and may precede the rise in temperature by several weeks. As a rule they are noted in the neck and may become the size of a small walnut in a short period of time. The condition may suggest mumps. The doctor may discover these nodes elsewhere, especially in the groin and armpits, as well as enlargement of the spleen.

A skin eruption, resembling measles, may be exhibited. The temperature is variable. In some it never exceeds 100 degrees Fahrenheit; in others it may be as high as 104 degrees. Return to the normal level may take several months.

Because the symptoms are similar to those found in leucemia, mistakes are made occasionally in determining the true cause. But a study of the blood will clarify the situation. In glandular fever there is a rise in the number of certain types of cells. Another test, somewhat like that of the Wassermann reaction, gives us a second method of diagnosis.

Altho the name of the disease sounds terrifying, it is really quite harmless. In epidemic form it may account for many working days lost, but no one has ever been known to die from the uncomplicated case. An attack usually lasts from 7 to 21 days—rarely more than a month. Should relapses occur, the course may be prolonged.

There is no specific treatment, altho convalescent serum, when available, may be of value. Isolation is usually not necessary as it is only slightly contagious. In most instances the mild fever near the end of the illness can be disregarded insofar as the activities of the patient are concerned.

DRAGGING PALATE

Mrs. L. J. writes: I am having trouble with my soft palate. It feels like it is choking me when I lie down at night. I have to prop myself up with pillows in order to fall asleep. What can I do?

REPLY

Swelling of the uvula, which hangs down from the soft palate, may be responsible. Infection in near-by parts may cause it to become inflamed. When these are eliminated the condition usually corrects itself. If not, a nose and throat specialist can remove most of the structure.

NOISY HEAD

F. J. writes: I am 62 years old and in good health. For some time I have had a continuous buzzing in my head. Lately it has become so loud that it is almost stunning. How can I get some relief from this ringing noise?

REPLY

Assuming that an ear specialist has found no disease, including wax in the outer canal or a stoppage of the Eustachian tube, a general examination is in order. Hardening of the arteries is a possibility.

NO DANGER

M. G. writes: I was operated on three years ago for a cyst growing from a sinus. It was removed thru the eyebrow area. Would it be all right for me to tweeze my eyebrows?

REPLY

No harm at all, but the scar may be more noticeable after you are plucked.

GUARDING THE WINDOW

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

Dancer Grown Gray

After reading about the capture of that fine Nordic bum, Major Vidkun Quisling, we casually opened the newest [1944] edition of Webster's dictionary last week to see what, if anything, had been done about him there. We found that he has been given a firm place in the English language, as an ordinary noun rather than as a proper noun, and that this is considered neither slang nor colloquial, but firmly established good usage. The definition is equally firm: "A traitor." The dictionary then parenthetically gives its origin as "After Major Vidkun, etc. . . ." and tells a brief bit about the lad. A synonym for quisling, by the way, is quisler.

Well, we mumbled to a companion, Webster gets around to things after 11, doesn't he? Quisling was found in the front of the dictionary, in the list called New Words, so we set out to see what else the language had gained between editions. It has gained many of the Fascist by-words, including fascist [small f], concentration camp, Autobahn, Lebensraum, Black Shirt, Rex [the Belgian Nazis], Falangist [the Spanish ones], Iron Guard [Rumanian for the same], Luftwaffe, Fuehrer, Gestapo, racism, Aryan, and Aryanize. The latter means to divest an institution, etc., of non-Aryan influence, appearance, or control.

Neither jeep, seep, nor amtrack is included, nor are soap opera and radar, but CIO is, as well as McCoy [the real], mooch, jibe, thumb [a ride], and corny, meaning stale. All of these except CIO are listed as slang, but corny, used as a term of swing music and meaning banal or bland as opposed to hot music, is listed as a very fine adjective without any barriers that prevent its use in polite society. Stymie also is now accepted, as is Mickey Finn. Fink is given, but is called underworld slang, a distinction from true slang.

The Webster compilers must be fervid devotees of hot and swing music, for they define both terms and accept both as nouns that are not slang. Into this class also goes the verb, send, when used in the phrase "It sends me!" It is defined as "to play or sing with, or to inspire to, the spontaneous improvisation of swing music."

Other accepted words are jitterbug, bulldozer, bobby pin, Lastex [described as a coined word], newscast and newscaster, Sanforized [as of cloth], photogenic, telecast, televise, teleview, and theme. This is defined simply as "Theme, n.—Radio—signature."

It was in this area that our eye lit upon taxi dancer. This, remember, is still in the New Words category. "Well," we commented to Delos Avery, THE TRIBUNE's bookman always on holiday and an indefatigable student of rhyming dictionaries, "she's in at last!" Mr. Avery was incredulous. He, too, peered. "Yes," he observed finally, "but she's got gray hair they waited so long." With this he fell into a rhyming dictionary and five minutes later popped up wit the following synthesis ["Poetry," have said about 99 different persons, "is the synthesis of hyacinth and biscuits."]:

Young and gay was the taxi dancer
In the golden long ago;
If you called her she would answer:
"Waltz or foxtrot—dime a throw."

But the passing years are cruel,
And she's growing old and gray,
Toothless, dieting on gruel,
Dreaming of her past heyday.

Once as blithe as any fairy,
With her rosy cheeks a-bloom;
Now in Webster's dictionary
Memory may find her tomb.

The sole new word that really seemed new was video. This is used in television in the term, "video frequency," meaning transmission or reception of the image. A simpler phrase would be see-track [partner to radio's sound-track]. But not even sound-track is listed yet, nor is that old standby of the gangsters, the give imperious. Come on, Webster, give!

A SOLDIER APPRAISES AN ALLY

Chicago, May 8—I think it is time that decisive action be taken regarding Russia. To condemn Germany for what she has done and then to condone what Russia is doing in eastern Europe is nothing more or less than hypocrisy.

Under the camouflage of liberation and the screen of allied unity, Stalin has been allowed to set up puppet governments and subjugate eastern European countries in as bold a bid for power and domination as anything ever attempted by Hitler.

Furthermore, for Russia to be one of the sponsoring nations at the San Francisco conference, let alone even to be there, is sacrilegious. The San Francisco conference will never seem anything but a farce to me as long as Switzerland, Sweden, Corea, Poland, Latvia, Estonia, and Lithuania were not invited to attend. What could seem more inane than godless Russia sponsoring a peace conference with Switzerland excluded?

To let the Russians get away with the things they are doing is to sacrifice the principles for which we have been fighting. If we are to stand by our declaration to drive tyranny from this earth, then it goes for Russia just the same as for Germany, Italy, and Japan.

AMERICAN SOLDIER

THE SENATOR ANSWERED

Evanston, Ill., May 10—Last night Sen. Tom Connally spoke over the radio in connection with the conference in San Francisco. In the opening lines he asked the question, "And why are we all here?" Tom had a long explanation, of course, but I couldn't help thinking of the old joke.

A senator running for office was asked to address the inmates of an insane asylum. He selected as his subject, "The Mystery of Life." He too asked the question, "And why are we all here?" He then paused for effect. During the pause one of the inmates broke in with the answer, "Because we're not all there."

AMERICA FIRST

PORTENT?

Chicago Heights, Ill., May 8—In "The Cardinal's Mistress," by Benito Mussolini, I find the following in the 14th chapter:

"'I shall come to fetch you . . . as booty of war. I shall not have pity on you. I shall abandon you to the city mob which hates you with a deadly hatred and will massacre you in the streets.'"

He was not, of course, writing of himself, but could it have been a portent?

BATH TUB SINGERS AT FRISCO

Oak Park, Ill., May 9—A radio news analyst told his listeners that Mr. Stettinius was singing a song in his bath tub these days, "Just Mollie 'n' me and Eden makes three; were happy in our blue heaven."

If Mr. Molotov [Mollie] sang in his bath tub the morning he left, would it be reasonable to assume he hummed that ditty, made popular by the slapstick songsters back in the late '30s, "O, Eddie, get your shovel, the parade's gone by."?

FREDERICK OLIVER HAINES

"RUSSIA SAVED AMERICA"

Iowa City, Ia., May 10—Your editorial of May 9 and the article by Arthur Sears Henning in the same issue do not reflect credit upon your paper. Both articles imply that close friendship with the Russian people will get us nothing but trouble.

Just what does THE TRIBUNE think is being gained for the United States by slapping the Russian bear? Is Russia likely to turn more readily against Japan? Will she be more anxious to seek trade with us than with the South American republics? Will these thrusts aid in the friendships that have sprung up between our fighting men and hers? Just what is the purpose unless it is to afford a safety valve for the nasty disposition of a newspaper already pretty well discredited as isolationist?

One of my sisters has been living in Russia for years. She tells us that the Russian people are a great people, friendly, generous, and intensely loyal to their country. We may not approve every form of their government, but we shall have to admit that thru it, or in spite of it, the Russian army and the Russian people accomplished wonders in this war, in fact, saved both Great Britain and the United States of America from domination by the Nazis. You editors and editorializing news writers had better stop smacking a friendly bear.

DORRANCE S. WHITE

NO POINTS FOR WIVES

Chicago, May 11—I realize what a tremendous ordeal the government has in the demobilization plan which is now in progress, but I want to be one of the first forgotten wives to put in my complaint. Evidently marriage doesn't mean anything. Having been married 13 years, we weren't as fortunate as other couples who had children who could stay with the mothers while the fathers went off to war. We childless wives have had to live alone.

Then, too, why isn't age taken into consideration? A soldier over 35 years of age isn't worth much to the army. The plan as set up is good, but incomplete.

DOROTHY THOMPSON

BETTING WINDOWS NOW OPEN

Chicago, May 10—I see that the race tracks are getting in shape again. Why should they feed us a lot of baloney about saving paper, conserving on gas, and buying more bonds when the tracks will waste all the paper and gas and have thousands of people cashing their bonds in order to pick the winner?

MRS. YOSS

EVERYTHING UP BUT ALLOTMENTS

Chicago, May 8—What's all this talk about inflation? Raise in prices, raise in everything, including wages, but is anything ever said about a raise in the service man's wife's allotment? Everything is going up but that.

TRUMAN BUDGET REQUESTS CUT BY HOUSE GROUP

31 Millions Slashed from Funds for WMC

Washington, D. C., May 14 (AP)—President Truman's first budget recommendations to congress were cut today by the house appropriations committee.

Reporting a $1,086,210,337 bill for house action, the committee rejected the President's single request for an increase in funds and cut two other items which he had trimmed below budget bureau recommendations.

The bill carries funds for the fiscal year starting July 1 for the labor department, the federal security agency, the war man power commission, and related agencies.

15 Million Boost Rejected

The President's May 2 request for an additional 15 million dollars for grants to states for old age assistance, aid to dependent children, and aid to the blind was rejected, the committee approving the original budget estimates of 416 millions for this purpose.

Mr. Truman's suggestion that WMC funds be cut by $10,339,000 was more than trebled by the committee, which lopped $31,773,900 from original budget estimates of $83,872,900. The reduction in WMC funds included $15,322,000 for employment offices and facilities, 5 million for general administrative purposes, and $9,349,900 for the migratory workers' program.

Committee members said other war agencies whose activities may be curtailed because of Germany's defeat will feel the financial ax when an over-all measure carrying their funds reaches the house late this month.

Education Office Cut

The President's third request dealt with in today's bill was followed more closely by the committee, which trimmed $44,563,400 from the office of education fund. Mr. Truman had suggested a cut of $43,710,400.

Almost the entire cut for the office of education was in funds for the defense training program.

Major allotments in addition to old age assistance grants included $56,350,510 for the children's bureau, $59,957,000 for the nurses' training program, 32 million for grants to states for unemployment compensation administration, and 50 million for WMC employment office facilities and services.

BLAMES FAULTY ALTIMETER FOR 2 ARMY DEATHS

South Bend, Ind., May 14 (AP)—Lt. Frank Picard II., 22, of Saginaw, Mich., said today the faulty setting of an altimeter may have caused the crash near here Saturday of an army training plane in which two men were killed. Lt. Picard was injured severely.

The San Marcos, Tex., army air field, the plane's base, identified the dead as Lt. Julius Goldstein, 23, Bronx, N. Y., and Lt. Frederick H. Edwards, 27, husband of Mrs. Mary E. Edwards, 330 Marble, Joliet, Ill.

Lt. Picard said the plane was on a routine training flight and landed at a Chicago airport. However, it received orders shortly to leave as the port's facilities were being used by an air show.

Picard said it was evident from conditions prevailing on the flight from Chicago to South Bend that the altimeter readings were in error.

cash position of business by 5 billion 700 million dollars. It promised other reports dealing with the excess profits tax, other phases of the corporate tax structure, and individual income taxes.

George, who has been mentioned in capital gossip as a successor to Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, is expected to take a leading part in developing federal tax policies.

Taft in his senate speech warned that the national debt may reach 322 billion dollars by 1949. He said the most conservative government cannot expect to reach a balanced budget until that year and in the meantime he estimated annual deficits totaling 68 billion dollars will be added to the 254 billion dollar deficit expected July 1 this year.

Taft said the most conservative estimates available indicated that the federal government's annual expenditures would be 21 billion dollars by 1950. A national income of 125 billion dollars annually would be the most that could be expected, he said.

Taft asserted that if state and local taxes are considered every one will be working one day in every four for the government.

NEW LAW URGED ON SUCCESSION TO PRESIDENCY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., May 14—Rep. Monroney [R., Okla.] today proposed an overhauling of present law relating to the chain of succession to the Presidency.

Under a bill offered by the congressman, the speaker of the house would succeed to the Presidency in case of death of both the President and his Vice Presidential successor. Present law places the secretary of state next in line.

Monroney said present procedure is unsound and undemocratic, because it would place in the nation's highest office a person selected by executive appointment rather than popular election. He declared the house speaker is the logical successor because he is elected by the people and chosen by the people's representatives as head of their body.

Could Pick Successor

Present law, it was explained, would permit a vice President who becomes President, as in the case of Mr. Truman, to pick his own successor if he resigned or was stricken with a serious illness.

Monroney's bill further calls for the establishment of a 12 man commission to study the entire question of succession to the Presidency and the electoral college system. The committee would be directed to report its finding and recommendations to congress.

Four members of the group would be named by the President, four by the Supreme court, two senators by the President protem, and two house members by the speaker.

Definition Sought

The resolution specifically directs the commission to propose legislation specifying how to determine whether the President is "unable" to discharge his duties. The Constitution says the President shall cease to hold office if unable to discharge his duties, but does not further define the clause.

The commission would also make a study of the electoral college to determine whether this system should be abolished, and if so, what machinery should be substituted.

Monroney's bill provides that if the house speaker, having become President, should die or resign, he would be succeeded by the speaker of the house at that time. If the speaker were ineligible, the Presidency would go to the president protem of the senate. Monroney explained ineligibility might result from failure to be born in the United States. This is a requirement for the Presidency, but not for members of congress.

LAWYERS SEARCH FOR HEIR TO OLDEST BARONY IN IRELAND

LONDON, May 13 [Reuters]—Michael Charles de Courcy, 14 year old heir to the barony of Kingsdale—the oldest barony in Ireland—is being sought by a firm of solicitors.

The lawyers are advertising for his mother, Mrs. Michael de Courcy, who married in 1929 Comdr. M. J. R. de Courcy of the royal navy, son of the present peer. The marriage was dissolved four years later, and De Courcy was killed on active service in 1940.

The holder of the Kingsdale barony is the only man privileged to wear a hat in the presence of the king. The right was conferred by King John, who lost his own hat—the crown—in The Wash off eastern England.

Miss Shirley Allen, 15, of 5327 Winthrop av., who visited Morton Stein, 17, of 4932 N. She said she telephoned Stein's room at 7:30 p. m. and that Stein's roommate, Donald Jay Cook, 15, of 1031 Bryn Mawr av., answered and said that Stein was not there. Cook subsequently disappeared. He is being sought.

The girl told police she saw Cook about three weeks ago and that he told her he had joined the merchant marine.

JUVENILE AUTO THIEVES TO BE JAILED: TUOHY

After 24 boys, ranging in age from 11 to 21 years, had been questioned by his stolen auto detail for recent car thefts and pilferings, State's Atty. Tuohy issued a stern warning yesterday that he will crack down on offenders, regardless of age.

Thefts of automobiles in the county have reached the rate of nine or 10 daily, Tuohy said. The fact that 98 per cent of them are recovered shows that most of them are stolen for joy riding, he said.

The youngest offender questioned yesterday by Lt. John Kelly, head of the automobile detail, was Frederick Hedstrom, 11, of 914 N. Cicero av. He was accused of stealing two automobiles, one of which he smashed against a building. He admitted, Kelly said, that he had rifled more than 10 cars.

Others questioned included Clifford Digweed, 16, of 716 S. Campbell av.; James Hogan, 15, of 2721 Jackson blvd.; Andrew Bailey, 13, of 6714 Aberdeen st.; William McGuire, 15, of 6727 Sangamon st.; James Schaller, 14, of 6747 Emerald av.; Philip Testard, 15, of 6558 Emerald av., and Edward Heffley, 15, of 6342 Aberdeen st.

Lt. Kelly described the boys as "accomplished operators."

Of Tired Kidneys
If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. MAYOR WANTS CITY LABOR ON AIRPORT WORK

Kelly Tells Plan to Get Early Priorities

Mayor Kelly yesterday proposed the use of city labor as a means of expediting the issuance of priorities for construction at the Chicago airport of a $552,000 to $600,000 terminal designed to multiply facilities at the field and aid Chicago's aspiration to be the world aviation center.

Use of municipal employes, the mayor said, would obviate any possible objections by the war production board that the project might siphon skilled labor from local war industries. The terminal, he asserted, could be completed and ready for operation within six months after priorities are granted. Applications for necessary permits have been pending for several months and are expected to be approved within the next two weeks, he disclosed.

Could "Borrow" Workers

One reason priorities have not been acted upon sooner, it was reported in Chicago WPB headquarters, is that the city has proposed heating the terminal with oil or gas, both still on the critical list of fuels.

Mayor Kelly pointed out bricklayers could be borrowed from the department of sewers in the same manner that plumbers, electricians, and other skilled craftsmen could be diverted temporarily from their regular assignments on the city pay roll.

Opposes Island Port Site

On the subject of the experimental air strip which the Chicago aero commission has recommended be built on Northerly Island for the use of small planes, the mayor said he was opposed to the location chosen by his advisory body and favored locating the field at Montrose av. and the lake.

Northerly Island has been approved by the civil aeronautics commission and the National Aviation Trades association as the best possible site to prove the value of a landing field near the heart of a metropolitan business center.

Awaiting Final Report

Mayor Kelly said he would reserve opnion on the relative values of the two sites until he received a final report from the commission. This report, Merrill C. Meigs, chairman, said, would be presented to the mayor within the next few days.

Mayor Kelly said that location of the air strip on Northerly Island would compel abandonment of the bathing beach there this summer. He added that the Montrose av. location would be less expensive to construct and that choice of Northerly Island would mean widening the causeway leading from the mainland to accommodate increased traffic.

American Plans Fast Service

Meigs said the saving of four or five minutes represented by the run from Northerly Island to the loop as compared with travel time from Montrose av., might not mean much to the nonflyer but was of vital importance to those in the aviation industry. Robert J. Dunham, president of the park board previously had objected to the Northerly Island site as a possible hazard from crashing planes to collections housed in the Chicago Natural History museum in nearby Grant park.

In preparation for stepped up transcontinental service, a spokesman for American Airlines said that company expects to inaugurate, possibly by fall, coast to coast flights serving Chicago with flagship planes that will cruise at 250 miles an hour and carry 44 passengers. Other planes in a fleet of 55 now ordered, it was disclosed, will make the cross-country flight in eight and one-half hours at a five mile a minute speed. The faster ships may not be available for a year or more but they also will stop here, he said.

New Flight By-Passes City

In a further aviation development during the day, Croll Hunter, president of Northwest Airlines at Minneapolis said his company had omitted Chicago on its new "Northwest Passage" flights between New York City and the Pacific northwest because the civil aeronautics board five years ago had refused the company's application to extend its service between Chicago and the eastern city.

The new transcontinental route, which will be inaugurated June 1, will cut across the lake, touching at Detroit and Milwaukee. Hunter said this route was specified to avoid adding to the competitive transcontinental service out of Chicago and followed previous tacit recommendation by the CAB that a new direct charter to the northwest might be authorized if flights did not enter Chicago.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BEN MARKLAND

May 14, 1945

FARM people don't often have the chance to enjoy such citified attractions as operas, museums, and theaters, but they make the most of the natural forms of amusement which may be found all about them in the fields, around their farm ponds, in woodlots, and along country roads. At this time of the year the nesting antics of the birds provide them with many hours of rural entertainment.

Graceful barn swallows glide thru the big barn doors going to and from their mud nests on the rafters; several colonies of purple martins provide morning and evening shows all summer with their feeding flight maneuvers; house wrens awaken farm families with their early morning solos, and the farm youngsters chuckle over the laborious twig carrying done by the male wrens—always wasted effort inasmuch as the fussy females destroy their mates' trial nests.

Bird Bernhardts

Killdeers occasionally make their shallow nests on the ground near farm homes. The females of this species have a reputation as the Sarah Bernhardts of the bird world because of the way they feign injury when any one approaches their egg collections.

A hen pheasant and a wild mallard duck are the star performers in the current rural bird show on the Fox River farm. The pheasant has built a nest in the uncut lawn of a farm home, less than 50 yards from the dining room window. She now has five eggs in this faintly concealed nest. The farm youngsters are concentrating on keeping cats away from the pheasant's reservation.

Finds Mallard Eggs

The presence of a nesting mallard hen was discovered by one of the farm workers while driving a truck thru a rye field near the Fox river. About 30 Aberdeen-Angus cows and calves were following the slow-moving truck, which held several blocks of salt for their feed bunks. Half way thru the field the driver heard a fluttering noise under the car, and a second later saw the frightened mallard hen fly off toward the river. He stopped the truck, and found the bird's nest.

Several of the eggs had been broken by the lumbering cattle, but the farmer salvaged six eggs. Knowing that the shy mallard wouldn't return to the damaged nest, he took the eggs home and placed them under a Rhode Island Red hen. If this foster mother hatches the ducklings, they will be kept in the barnyard for a few weeks, then released near the river to fend for themselves.

★ The GARDEN ★

MANY gardeners who plant flower borders around their vegetable plots are inquiring about annuals which can withstand cool spring weather. Sweet alyssum, pansies, and marigolds [either standard or dwarf types] are hardy, and can be put in the ground now. The Canadian Giant types of pansies produce flowers more than two inches in diameter.

Annuals for border planting in the tender class include geraniums, petunias, salvia, and ageratum. None of these should be transplanted until May 20, and not that early if the weather remains cool. Gardeners who have made early plantings of these flowers may protect them on cool nights with three thicknesses of newspaper.

Zinnias, planted from seed, are a favorite border flower because of their size and color range and their length of bloom. These also are tender, and the seeds should not be planted until the ground is thoroly warm.

Lay Sugar Shortage to CCC; Bakers Warn of Rationing

Asks Congress Act

Washington, D. C., May 14. (AP)—Federal agencies must prevent a sugar shortage in 1946 and 1947 or congress must step in to protect the public, a Republican committee asserted today.

The group, composed of house members making a food study, declared the current sugar crisis is the fault of the Commodity Credit corporation for "failure to encourage production in Puerto Rico and Cuba, where 60 per cent of our supply is grown." It charged the Office of Price administration handling of rationing had "accentuated" the shortage.

More acreage can be planted up to about June 15 for harvesting next year to furnish an added million tons if the CCC acts at once, the committee said in a report.

Cuba Ready to Produce

"Likewise, speedy action would induce sugar beet growers to expand their production for the 1945 fall harvest," it stated.

Manuel Rionda, Cuban sugar broker, told the regular house food committee, as he discussed the potential size of Cuba's output:

"The mere announcement of the desire on the part of the United States to negotiate for increased supplies could give a substantial stimulus to [Cuban] production, even in the 1946 crop in Cuba."

Chairman Anderson [D., N. M.] declared Cuba has refused to sell its 1946 crop to this country unless the government agrees to buy 1947 production as well.

No Negotiations On

Rionda said he knew of no current negotiations between this country and Cuba for the 1946 crop but that the subject had been discussed with the CCC.

A report on food investigations conducted by the senate agriculture committee was in the mill. The group examined a proposed majority report by Chairman Thomas [D., Okla.] but took no formal action.

Thomas disclosed it includes a recommendation that price ceilings be abolished for any foods which come into plentiful supply. It calls for a "food czar," subsidies for cattle feeders and increased subsidies for meat packers.

Cut for Cake Eaters

Unofficial rationing of bakery goods to consumers is almost certain to result from a severe shortage of sugar and fat, Chicago bakers predicted yesterday.

"It will be 'one coffee cake to a customer,'" said a spokesman for Burny Brothers, Inc., a large Chicago baking company. "We have no alternative."

Further Sugar Cuts Seen

Bakers have been allotted 75 per cent of the sugar used in 1941, and, until last Sunday, 100 per cent of the shortening used in 1942. The shortening allotment was cut Saturday night to 80 per cent of 1942 volume. On top of this, demand for bakery products has risen 40 to 50 per cent since the war, so that despite stretching of ingredients and increased production, only about 50 per cent of the demand can be satisfied, said Frank G. Jungwaelter, secretary of the Associated Retail Bakers of America.

The next two or three months are expected to see development of the most severe bakery goods shortage to date. Bakers expect sugar allotments to be cut further in the third quarter of the year.

Unless quality is sacrificed, all that can be done to stretch supplies has been done, it was said. Fancier items requiring high amounts of sugar and fat have been eliminated. Icings have been cut down, and pies have been made increasingly with one crust, instead of two.

Seasoning Ingredients Lacking

A spokesman for the American Bakers association asserted that the government should have given some thought two or three years ago to the possibility that such a situation would develop.

"The government wants us to make use of all the cereals we can, because cereals are the type of food we have the most of," he said. "But it must be remembered that flour cannot be eaten as flour. To be palatable, it must be 'seasoned' with other ingredients, such as sugar and shortening, and it is those ingredients that are lacking."

MEAT SHORTAGE CAUSES CUT IN FAT SALVAGE

The meat shortage has caused a decrease in fat salvage that is becoming more and more marked, Mrs. Walter J. Kelly, chairman of fat salvage committee, said yesterday. She reported that salvage was at the rate of 600,000 pounds a month March 1, when the meat shortage began to be acute, and since has dropped 30 per cent.

Favorable war news affects the salvage campaign almost as much as the meat shortage, Mrs. Kelly said. She asserted that preliminary figures since V-E day have disclosed a "dangerous drop."

Burglars early yesterday stole 10,000 pounds of sugar valued at $600 and a safe containing an undetermined amount of money from the John Lasser company, 2452 Sheffield av., makers of soft drinks, police were notified.

EASTERN COALS WILL BE 20 PCT. BELOW DEMAND

Because of a shortage of eastern coals, such as anthracite, and coke, home owners will be able to get only 80 per cent of their orders for the coming heating season, coal dealers said yesterday.

If the consumer wants his order filled completely he will have to accept 20 per cent in coals from Indiana, Illinois, and western Kentucky, the dealers said.

Under federal regulations today is the last day on which dealers may accept unsigned declarations of fuel needs from consumers. Many unsigned declarations were received by dealers and the solid foods administration, in an amendment to its regulations, permitted their acceptance until today.

The coal regulation declares that all home owners must fill out a declaration of their needs based on their coal consumption last year. The declarations then are sent to the dealer from whom the owner wishes to make his purchase. The dealer must deliver at least 30 per by Sept. 30.

Service News

News of the exploits of war prisoners in Stalagluft I. in Germany has Mrs. Edith Harrison Manierre in a constant state of expectation, for when she last heard Dec. 4 from her two sons, Maj. Cyrus E. Manierre and Lt. William R. Manierre, they both were detained in that camp. As yet no word has reached her from the brothers, but the rumors that Mrs. Manierre has collected tell an incredible story.

It was Mrs. Jefferson Caffery, Maj. Manierre's godmother, who first cabled the news from Paris that the camp had been liberated. Since then Mrs. Manierre has learned from a long distance call to the state department in Washington, D. C., and from newspaper accounts that the camp reputedly freed itself, seizing 200 square miles of German territory, two other prison camps, three towns, a concentration camp, and an air field with 24 German planes intact.

It took two days for a scout from the camp to reach the Russian lines, and not until last Saturday did the Red army establish contact with the former prisoners. Mrs. Manierre has heard that 8,000 men from the camp already have been evacuated, but whether to England or Le Havre she has been unable to verify.

Since the liberation of allied prisoners from German camps the David Danglers have had no direct word from their son, Lt. Henry Adams Dangler. Lt. Dangler, a pilot in the army air forces, was shot down over Austria last June 26. His family has not heard from him since December.

Following a telegram that their son, Pvt. Arthur W. Walsh, was reported missing in action in Germany, his parents, the Arthur Walshes of Winnetka, were relieved to learn he is safe in a hospital in England.

Mrs. James E. Baggot Jr. has heard from her son, Capt. John T. Benedict, that he has completed his missions as pilot of a Flying Fortress and will return from Europe soon.

The James N. Rawleighs have returned to Hebron after a visit with their sons, Lt. William Rawleigh, who just has received his pilot's wings and commission at Aloe field, Victoria, Tex., and Capt. Rawleigh Jr., who with his wife is living at Fort Benning, Ga. Lt. Rawleigh is receiving fighter pilot training in Texas.

Children Mustn't Be Blamed for Their Elders' Mistakes

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

It was a spring day and the kitchen door stood open. Close by was the clothes rack on which were carefully being placed the newly ironed clothes to air before being put away. The mother stood ironing at the board. Every few minutes it seemed, one or the other of the boys—

"When blamed too quickly or unreasonably they're quite apt to defend themselves." [TRIBUNE Studio Photo]

there were four—rushed up the steps, pushed open the door, and stopped by the clothes rack, resting a grubby hand on a freshly ironed article. Then:

"Will you keep your hands off that rack! Can't you see you're ruining all my hard work? What's the matter with you boys, anyway?" scolded their mother.

"O, I just want an apple," said the first lad, aged 8.

"We came for a hammer and saw; we're building something," announced the 6 year old twins.

"Gosh, Mom, what do you expect when you've got the thing right in the way?" questioned her prudent 10 year old son.

That was really it in a nutshell. Some of the time, instead of the children being to blame, we are.

Did you ever, after you've blamed a child for an accidental mistake, stop and ask yourself whether you were being unreasonable? Just try and catch yourself the next time before you say anything, and think, "Was my child really careless, thoughtless, or destructive? Or was it my fault? And would I speak that way to a grown-up member of the family?"

Many times we are the ones to blame for mishaps, not the children. A glass that is too delicate to stand a moderate knock; a dress or shirt that's too thin to stand normal wear and tear; a chair that is too low for a child to manage his food properly from, or too little time allowance for the things that children must do but can't do quickly, these things are our fault.

Besides, anybody, large or small, has the right to a certain percentage of accidents. We adults assume that "right" in the ordinary course of events, for we're not always careful, always thoughtful, always on time. We break things occasionally, spill things on a spotless tablecloth, splash the bathroom or kitchen floors. Why expect so much from children?

Why, without quite realizing it, we're much more ready than we need be to blame them for small errors, is a mystery. And the funny part of it is, the more you blame them, the less apt they are to be contrite. When blamed too quickly or unreasonably they're quite apt to defend themselves. Whereas if they sense your fairness, they feel and often express regret over the damage they've done and frequently even if they're not actually to blame.

Children respond to and appreciate fairness, graciousness, and reasonableness when accidents occur or mistakes are made by them.

Calhern and Karlweis Still Best of "Jacobowsky" in Blackstone Version of Witty Play

"JACOBOWSKY AND THE COLONEL"

Play by Franz Werfel, adapted for the American stage by S. N. Behrman. Staged by Elia Kazan, with production designed by Steward Chaney and music compiled by Sol Gaudioff. Presented by the Theater Guild, in association with the American Theater society, at the Blackstone theater Monday evening, May 14, 1945.

THE CAST

S. L. Jacobowsky ..... Oscar Karlweis
Col. Stjerbinsky ..... Louis Calhern
Marianne ..... Marianne Stewart
Sadouniewicz ..... Lenny Lewis
Gestapo Official ..... Harold Vermilyea
The Shoe Player ..... Oliver Cliff
The Brigadier ..... E. G. Marshall
Madame Bouffier ..... Lenka Roberts
The Tragic Gentleman ..... Herbert Yost
Senator Brisson ..... Heywood Arbury
Papa Clairon ..... Harry Davis
An Old Lady of Arras ..... Jane Marbury
And others.

At its best, "Jacobowsky and the Colonel" is spun of beguiling stuff. A series of loosely constructed episodes drawn to the focal point of escape from tyranny, it dawdles captivatingly on the primrose paths of perceptive writing. Even in a production gone slightly to seed, some of it is theater gossamer revealing more than the average evening's reward of shrewdness, gayety, and truth. You just have to be willing to skip the fact that a lot happens in five years of war and a play of 1940 may find itself dismayingly dated in 1945.

For instance, it is hard to worry unduly just now about the fate of papers then due in London to set up the Polish government in exile. And not every one wants to laugh at the radio "death rattle" of Marshal Petain, now that the French hero of World War I. may find his life forfeit in World War II. Nor is it easy in any year to be impressed by a fellow from the once dread Gestapo whose sole difference from the boy at your filling station is that he hands over gasoline without coupons.

But "Jacobowsky" has charms that bear no dateline, and for me it had an unexpected quirk of pleasure. Having dutifully read Broadway's reception of the play a year ago, I expected Oscar Karlweis to steal the show. He doesn't. He shares it, in some of the season's more enjoyable acting, with Louis Calhern, and for my money Mr. Calhern has the edge. Mr. Karlweis is a central European actor of the most facile and agreeable talent, and his way with the resourceful Polish Jew is highly engaging. But I knew all about him in one scene. Mr. Calhern is equally facile and agreeable, and he has the grand style to boot.

When he charges away from beleaguered Paris in the Rothschilds' Renault—that is, he would if it didn't have to be pushed—he is Don Quixote at his most imperious. When he serenades his Marianne under an umbrella of Messerschmidts, he is Cyrano in the perfumed dusk. When he is bewildered in a world without chivalry and bereft of elegance, he is a symbol of what may be the saddest of lost causes. When he is a man of action losing every bout with a man of words, a forthright soul floundering in a world turned labyrinth, he is endearingly hilarious.

Wherever your choice lies, these two are worth a visit to the Blackstone, for they understand and project both Werfel and Behrman. Mr. Vermilyea is the runner-up as a lisping limb of the Gestapo, a role so deftly played it banishes the ridiculous with the sinister, no easy job in a part caricatured in the writing. Miss Stewart's Marianne is an attractive actress, but not the princess in the tower of Werfel's tale. Mr. Lewis is a credible enough Sancho Panza, and Mr. Marshall so real a French official I could draw a picture of his red taped office.

But the cast in general is on a lower level and given to unconvincing disguise in doubling of parts. Mr. Yost is one of several who might reasonably demand ration points for their services. Stewart Chaney's settings are attractive, and the direction suggests Elia Kazan hasn't been around for a while. As for Paul Bowles' entr'acte music, skip it. The guild has, substituting something parsimonious called a compilation by Sol Gusikoff.

Stage Note

Because of transportation difficulties, "Life With Father" has postponed its Erlanger reopening to Tuesday night, May 29. This troupe, headed by Betty Linley and Carl Benton Reid, has been on tour since August and has played 81 cities from Winnipeg to New Orleans and from east to west coasts. It jumps to Chicago direct from Trenton, N. J.

Ballet Note

Add to the probable list of summer bookings a visit from what is being called Massine's Ballet Russe, under the management of Fortune Gallo. It consists of high spots from various ballets, and in addition to Leonide Massine the troupe holds Irina Baronova, Rosella Hightower, André Eglevsky, Yura Lazowsky, Anna Istomina, and Kathryn Lee. The conductor is Franz Allers.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

The Ones Who Don't Get Home

Business firms which have sent letters in a constant, friendly stream to employes in service now have a difficult task. For these letters and bulletins keeping former associates in touch with one another are doubly important. They must contribute generously to the morale of the men and women remaining in combat, transferred, perhaps, to another theater of war.

The Reporter of Direct Mail Advertising, quoted in yesterday's columns, suggests in the article, "More About Letters," that encouraging letters are essential and asks:

"What is the best time to write to the men and women overseas? Is it during some lonely evening when you grieve, perhaps, about their absence, or after some hard day when you feel particularly the need of their presence? Or is it when something happens that is pleasant and the thought occurs to you, 'Jim would enjoy knowing that!' Then is the time to write."

In individual letters, and in company bulletins, a pretty good test is: "Would Jim enjoy knowing that?" If he would . . . if it would make him feel part of things at home . . . if it would give him a lift—write it!

Extra! Extra!

Our whole office likes Louise;
She does her best to always please.
But for romance, she's not for me—
You see, I'm going to marry Marie!

WEE WILLIE

It Sticks in the Mind

The small celebrant, age 10, overheard by "Susie of South Shore" asking the Good Humor man on V-E day if he didn't have "something more intoxicating"—and what would the child psychologists make of that?

The handsome major, noted by Lucille Peters, strolling along Michigan av. "He was holding the hand of a sweet, white haired lady, scarcely reaching his shoulder, both happy, their faces reflecting comradeship and understanding — a gentle reminder that every day may be Mother's day."

The story told by one of Northern Trust's popular bosses at a delightful mother and daughter bank girl dinner last week. It concerned the absent-minded vice president of the bank who got in a taxi in front of the Northern Trust and told the driver to go to 50 S. La Salle st. "But you are there, sir," said the taxi driver. Undaunted the vice president gave instructions, "Then step on it and get back here in a hurry!"

A Hoot

White collar girls are hooting over the newest zany Dorothy Bond Cartoon Book, "Office Daze." Here is the business girl minus her glamor—with her slip showing! If you don't recognize the boss' arrival in the morning . . . the new hat in the office . . . "The Bottleneck"—"You put your party on first before I buzz my party"—then you've never been in an office. Fifty cents for 64 cartoons—and a card to this desk will tell you where.

Some Solid Tipping Tips Given Today

BY SHEILA DALY

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

on the SOLID side

Time now for a few tips on the when, where, and how much angles of tipping, a problem that is sure to come up in any smooth Joe's life, now that the time for proms and graduation parties is here. Most waiters, cab drivers, and hat check girls are understanding who know that high school boys don't have enough extra jingling money to sprinkle round like star dust, but on big evenings and for special services, a moderate tip is all part of being on the beam. Here are a few simple rules to memorize while knotting your bow tie before starting off on a bright lights evening:

For a taxi ride, a 10 cent tip on a 50 cent ride is acceptable, with 15 cents on a dollar drive, or 10 per cent of the total for a long trip or a long wait [and you told your evening date-bait that you'd pick her up at seven!].

Ten cents is customary for checking a fellow's coat and hat with 25 cents the tip for checking a gal's coat or wrap in the dressing room of a hotel or restaurant, or 10 cents for the coat rack at the entrance to the dining room.

The old rule for restaurant tipping is: 10 per cent of the bill is the usual tip with never less than 25 cents in a restaurant with tablecloth on the table. But if you and your party have occupied a table in an expensive restaurant from which the waiter might expect a larger tip [he makes his bread and butter off yours, you know], you and the other Joes might pool your change to make the tip a little larger than the usual 10 per cent.

For a smooth finale to a dreamy evening, arrange before hand to have one male member of the party pay the restaurant bill and settle accounts privately after your dates are safe at home, pressing their gardenias in the family telephone book. It is embarrassing for any able bodied honey chile to sit back and watch a group of boys pitch pennies to come out even on the bill for a coke and sandwich which she has enjoyed.

Summer Suit

Leave it plain or trim it with washable braid. In either case, you will have a two-piece summer suit with smooth lines and the utmost in wearability. Style No. 2839 is designed for sizes 12 to 48. Size 36 requires 4¼ yards of 35 inch fabric.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

Mrs. John J., South Bend, Ind.—When I am using new jar rubbers or reusing old ones at canning time, I apply a light coat of paraffin to the rubbers before I screw on the lids. It's good insurance for a more secure seal.

Jane S., Chicago—The burners of my range are not enameled and I give them a wiping once a week with machine oil to prevent rusting.

Mrs. Ed. B., Vincennes, Ind.—If a member of my family picks up tar on his shoes I remove the tar easily with a cloth soaked in a popular type fly spray. This will do the work.

TO AVERT SUSPICION

Miss Warburton smiled wryly. There was no use telling Sybrand Jennesma that everything happens to every one.

"What are you going to do about it, Mr. Jennesma?"

"I don't know. This is addressed to Gerrit, of course. I knew what it was, so I opened it. He wouldn't care, anyway. I suppose I'll refer the note to Lt. French along with the others. What else can we do?"

"Couldn't you persuade your brother to be more careful?"

"Well, I've made him promise to sleep in the house nights. But he won't give up working in the laboratory at all hours. There's nothing else I can think of."

She mused, "I wonder who went into town this morning? There was

"Tessie kept on shrieking tragically. People arrived from all directions."

Winnie, and Kim . . . and yes, the senator . . ."

"My wife and I and my brother had errands in town this morning," Jennesma said helpfully. "What's on your mind?"

She was glad he saw no connection. But she was not so sure. Every one had gone, except herself, and she supposed French would say she could have asked Winnie to mail a letter for her and keep still about it.

She crossed the ravine and was almost home when the senator came from the rear of the cottage gardens and hailed her.

His usual immaculate, almost elegant grooming was notably absent. He had been grubbing in the dirt. His hands were filthy. He held something in his right hand but concealed it behind his back.

"We-ell!" She felt her tension let go with a snap. She began to giggle.

The senator came closer. "You look beautiful in green, my dear. In fact, you look beautiful, period."

'Is that supposed to distract me from whatever nefarious enterprise you've been up to?"

They smiled at one another and the years went down like cards. The senator drew from behind him a brutal, dirty knife.

"Look what I found! Did you ever see that before?"

"Why, it looks like the knife."

"Yes, it's the sixth one."

"But there are only five, I thought."

"Another lie, because here is the sixth. That knife business had puzzled me for days. It seemed a bit odd to buy five knives. Half a dozen is much more likely. I thought if there were six and the sixth had been used to do the deed, then Tillie's instructions would have been to get rid of the cottage knife as fast as possible. Naturally she couldn't be seen lugging it about, so she'd dispose of it in the closest spot—the cottage garden. So I came here and rummaged around a little—and you see—I found it."

"Marvelous! And I do mean it."

The senator beamed. "Love has sharpened my wits."

"Watch out it doesn't cut you. What are you going to do with the knife?"

"I'm going straight to French. Tillie hid this knife in the garden under some one's orders to throw suspicion on you. I'm as sure of it as if I'd seen her do it. And I'm going to make the stiff-necked young devil admit it. We'll have you out of this mess in short order. And then . . . we shall settle more important matters."

"But I haven't changed," she hastened to protest.

"Haven't you? I like your mouth, too. Have I mentioned that?"

"Please!" She tried to be curt. But it was hard while he looked at her like that.

"I must be off, my dear." He thrust the knife under his coat against his no longer spotless white shirt. "I'll let you know what happens."

Miss Warburton and Winnie had improvised a temporary office in the library. They were trying to work under annoying conditions.

The most annoying was Sen. North, who, like most people with active minds, found 't very hard to sit still when he was not thinking intently. He wandered in and out of the library, mostly in. It was not conducive to work. If only he would run out and play!

He was there at 11:40 when some one started screaming on the front steps and kept it up as she entered the hall. The senator, Winnie, and Miss Warburton rushed out of the library and nearly collided with the Paradine maid.

Tessie kept on shrieking tragically. People arrived from all directions.

"Stop it!" the senator commanded, without results.

Miss Warburton slipped into the library and came back with a glass of ice water from the carafe. She flung the water into Tessie's scarlet face

"Sassy. What's the idea?" Tessie roared, mopping herself off.

Mrs. Jennesma paused, half way down the stairs. She wore a purple velvet robe and stood clutching her breast dramatically.

Several troopers dashed into the hall. Sybrand Jennesma flung out of his office, shouting:

"What's happened now?"

Lt. French strode swiftly thru the servants clustered in joyous horror in the rear, near the kitchen.

"What's the matter with you?"

She waved a hand in the general direction of the Paradine house. "He's killed, too. Murdered."

"None of that," French said sternly. "Who is killed?"

"Eddie. I mean, Mr. Paradine."

The lieutenant's next question was drowned in a tremendous Wagnerian shriek from the stairs. Mrs. Jennesma slowly swooned.

"How do you know he's dead?" French repeated.

"I can't wake him."

"Did you go into his room?"

"Of course not. How can I? The door's locked."

The lieutenant shut his eyes for a moment. Then he said wearily, "Do you mean to say you simply knocked on his door and he didn't answer, and all this story of yours is made up from there?"

Tessie bridled. "Well, I got his breakfast ready. He always gets up at 11. I've been workin' here almost six months and this never happened before. If he isn't dead, why don't he answer?"

"Okay, Stanton. Have a look. No, wait; I'll go with you."

Tessie found herself swept out of the door by a convoy of gray and blue uniforms. She hoped fervently that Paradine was dead.

"Come on," North urged Miss Warburton in a whisper.

"But it seems so silly. Of course Eddie was asleep. He will meet them all at the door and they'll feel like fools."

"I'm not so sure of that," North was ominously hopeful.

There's no shortage of peanut butter, an excellent meat and butter replacer, and one of the best sandwich spreads ever invented. Homemakers who have lunches to pack are discovering the dozens of peanut butter combinations which please their lunch carrying husbands or children. Among them are these: Peanut butter and jelly or marmalade; peanut butter, cream cheese, and applesauce; peanut butter with thinly sliced cucumber, radishes or apples, and watercress; peanut butter and chopped pickle; peanut butter, ground carrot, and minced onion; deviled ham, peanut butter, and pickle; peanut butter and ground dates, or dates and nuts; peanut butter and chili sauce. That's only a beginning.

Peanut butter is so readily available in the stores that only now and then is it practical to make it at home. Freshly roasted peanuts may be ground as coarse or as fine as your food chopper permits, however, and mixed with salt and oil to make a delicious spread.

Home Made Peanut Butter

4 cups ground, freshly roasted peanuts
½ cup peanut or salad oil
2 teaspoons salt

Blend ingredients thoroly.

A Florida reader writes that she makes peanut paste and uses it instead of other fat to make delicious, protein-rich breads, gingerbread, biscuits, cornbread, and even pastry. She uses 2½ times the amount of shortening called for, and increases the liquid a little. This is her recipe for the paste.

Peanut Paste

Use any standard variety of fresh peanuts [raw]. Shell and remove any bad or discolored nuts. Heat for 10 minutes at 250 degrees, with frequent shaking. At this stage peanuts are only partly roasted, but the paste from half-roasted nuts is more palatable. Cool peanuts quickly, rub off skins, and separate skins in a current of air. Grind in peanut mill or with fine blade of food chopper, as fine as possible. Place in cans or jars and store in a cool place. With refrigeration the paste will keep six months.

Peanut butter may be used in place of butter or margarine in an uncooked cake icing, and the flavor is tantalizing.

Peanut Butter Icing

[Tops 1½ dozen cupcakes or cookies]
¼ cup peanut butter
1 egg yolk
2 tablespoons cream
1 cup confectioners' sugar

Beat peanut butter, egg yolk, and cream together; add sugar gradually and mix until smooth. Half a teaspoon of vanilla may be added if desired.

Experts Vision Nation's Swing to Frozen Food

Phenomenal growth of the frozen food industry, both in commercial and home lines, as soon as war time restrictions are lifted was predicted by food trade experts yesterday. They said wider popularity of frozen foods may make substantial inroads into both the canned and fresh fruit and vegetable fields.

Chicago frozen food processors and wholesalers, who now number more than 40, were enthusiastic about the future of their industry, which they said has limitless possibilities. At present, they are beset by man power, raw material, packaging, and transportation difficulties, so that expansion and introduction of new products is restricted.

Because frozen foods are in their infancy, experts hesitated to guess whether fresh or canned foods will suffer more than frozen produce. So far canned foods have been relatively cheaper than frozen, but increased volume of freezing is expected to decrease frozen food prices. Heavy users of fresh fruits and vegetables are expected to turn to frozen.

Fruits and vegetables can be frozen at the point of largest production, then sold thruout the year when the fresh product is scarce and higher priced because it may have to be shipped long distances, it was pointed out. Also, frozen foods require no preparation for cooking other than thawing.

New products steadily are being developed. Already on the Chicago market, when the processors can get the foods to freeze, are a wide variety of meat cuts, poultry, game, fish; bakery goods such as pies, rolls, and muffins, and ready cooked foods, including beef stew, chicken a la king, soups, and salads. Other items that will be introduced commercially range from cake to shrimp creole and lobster. In some places, it is already possible to buy a complete frozen meal, which requires only thawing, heating, and serving.

One thing holding back expansion is the war induced shortage of refrigerated containers for retail outlets, processors said. They predicted nearly every grocery will handle frozen foods as soon as equipment becomes available.

Meanwhile, equipment manufacturers are set for wide competition on freezer cabinets, both for store and home use. Consumers will be able to buy separate freezer cabinets or combinations with the ordinary electric refrigerator, besides renting space in food locker plants. Many families will do their own freezing.

Last year's sales of frozen foods amounted to 750 million pounds. Freezers and equipment manufacturers are preparing for a 400 per cent increase in volume within the next five years.

Pastel Linens Hued to the Latest Lines

BY REA SEEGER

A surprise collection of urban linen used for such casual models as separate shirts and skirts and jumper dresses includes a color range of pastels remarkable for flattery and the mix and contrast urge. Linen has seldom been managed so distinctively, and the teamwork of blouse-shirt and skirt so subtly.

For instance, the skirts are straight, slim and sleek, but not anything like a plain two or four gore skirt. They are made with a wrap over model. The curve that makes that wrap over line is accented with buttons and a wide tuck effect across the top of skirt [the belt] from side seam to side seam. Shirts are worn tucked in under the skirt, so that the two pieces make a sophisticated shirtwaist duet.

Muted pastels are exceptionally effective, and the combinations are almost unlimited and the results flawless because the colors are keyed to blend and even contrast without a clash. Such lush tints as lime green, light copper, raspberry, yellow, pink, old blue, and deep beige assure smart color schemes for the imaginative shopper. Shirts of all these colors and a few more are to be found in the color range of the skirts, too. A shirt teamed to a skirt of the same shade makes a swank town costume for summer, as the sleeves are brief and the skirt necklines soft and flattering.

Jumper dresses of linen, available in the same delectable summer colors, are young and fresh. They fasten in front, team with the simple shirt blouses to perfection, and also make a stunning town or office uniform dress for appreciative career girls. The linen has a most effective texture, a medium coarse weave.

High School Girls' Singing Is Interesting

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG

Something different in the way of choral concerts occurred in Orchestra hall [crowded in spite of the weather] last night, when the girls' glee clubs of Austin High school came downtown to display to the world at large the training they had received under the direction of Edna Barnes Pohlman.

So large a body of adolescent women's voices—about 100 in the senior glee club, augmented to nearly 300 when combined with the intermediate group—without the leavening ballast of a single male voice, creates a type of choral tone that calls for special treatment if the dread curse of monotony is to be avoided. Mrs. Pohlman's approach to the problem was interesting but could scarcely be called convincingly successful.

In many of the conventions of good choral singing the group demonstrated good training—in precision of attack, in diction, in rhythmic sense, in suggestions of vocal tone coloring. Since only a few composers have contributed to the literature of women's voices, the most satisfactory results were obtained when the music obligingly lent itself to the limited resources. Palestrina's "O, Bone Jesu," Rachmaninoff's "Blessed Is the Man," and Noble Cain's "Christ Whose Glory Fills the Skies"—a first performance of an effective piece dedicated to this chorus—came off best. But an attempt to supply the missing weight of male voices by a combined piano and organ accompaniment—with the two instruments hideously at variance in pitch—as in "How Lovely Is Thy Dwelling Place" from Brahms' "Requiem" and Handel's "Let Their Celestial Concerts All Unite," is a procedure not enthusiastically recommended.

Robert Weede, bearded baritone, was the soloist. Mr. Weede, tho born in Maryland, sports an Italian opera style in everything he sings—even to the final gesture of reserving his native language for the cheapest sort of music, and then mouthing eight of each 10 words. His vocal equipment is smartly tailored, tho his voice is not really a big one even when he puts the full pressure of a powerful diaphragm behind it. He sings everything glibly, from Mozart to Easthope Martin, but for our part we could have done with more warmth and less salesmanship.

THE QUESTION

What is the most memorable meal you have ever eaten?

WHERE ASKED

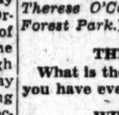
THE ANSWERS

Nancy Kelly Harmon, actress, 219 Lake Shore dr.—When Comdr. John Bulkeley, South Pacific hero, returned to the United States he was a guest of ours. I planned the menu. The first course was chicken rice soup and the main dish had more rice in it. After eating nothing but rice for months, he nearly lost his appetite.

Philip Morris, sales manager, 33 E. Division st.—I invited a well known Chicago hobo to dinner. I took him to one of the best chop houses in the city and asked him to have the best steak in the place. It nearly floored me when he ordered six hamburgers and said, "I'm not conditioned to such food as steaks and chops."

Phil Boddy, head waiter, 4515 Woodlawn av.—The bond rally dinner at the Stevens hotel is my most memorable meal. All the chefs of the city prepared the dinner. Admission was a $1,000 war bond or more. It was a thrill to see all the best chefs and waiters all working together. The dinner netted 16 million dollars.



Carter Cordner Jr., specialist [x] 3/C., Stevens hotel—It was right here in the Pump room. I brought a friend who had just returned from two years' duty in China. It was a thrill to watch him as he ate his first American meal in two years. We had champagne, truffles, caviar, pressed duck, and other tasty dishes.

Marjorie Riser, student, 711 University place, Evanston—A group of us rode to the Garden of the Gods near Colorado Springs in tallyho's. It was about 8 p. m., the moon was bright, and the huge rocks cast deep black shadows. The cowboys sang songs around a campfire while we were served fried chicken. I'll never forget that night.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 14—John Considine says he's been going on with "The Life of Mussolini" and guess whom he's been talking to about playing Mussolini—Orson Welles. What a combination! But I doubt if Orson would allow any one to truss him upside down. Seems to me life did a better job with him than we could ever do on the screen. . . . If Walt Disney isn't looking for some new material and ideas, he should be. Americans think he's done enough to cement South American relations. Now let's get back to the entertainment front. Might I suggest he re-read John Erskine's King Arthur stories? Think what a lovely picture a Disney-Erskine story of the Quest for the Holy Grail would be, with some "Parsifal" music interpolated into the score.

The Too Bad Department

Mary Martin's not coming to Hollywood. She'll spend the summer at Stanley Griffis' Connecticut home awaiting the birth of her baby. . . . John Houseman produced two for Paramount and is bowing out of his option. He leaves for Germany in a few weeks for OWI. . . . "For Better—For Worse" has been held up because of an injury to Robert Walker's hand, which he inflicted himself. But I'd advise you not to ask him how. . . . Paramount's excited about Bing Crosby's vocalist, Eugenie Baird. . . . Lee Bowman has been classified 4-F.

Service for the FBI

The FBI was on the beam in Washington, D. C., when the sound equipment broke back there during background shots of "Now It Can Be Told"—a story about the FBI. A certain technician had to be found in Hollywood, so FBI agents here found him, and in less than an hour he was on a plane with equipment to mend the break. Gosh! Wouldn't it be wonderful if they could pick up spies that fast? . . . Charles Rogers' daughter-in-law is divorcing his son, John, in Reno. . . . Everything happens here. Chu Chu Martinez met Estellita in Havana some years ago, then lost track of her. Last week they met at the Troc. Yesterday they were married. . . . The Pied Pipers' recording of "Dream" is just that.

Hollywood Improved Rose

After seeing "Diamond Horseshoe" I realized Darryl Zanuck is still wearing that horseshoe round his neck. It's the best Betty Grable to date. My best bonnet is tipped to George Seaton, director, who kept the actors acting like humans. William Soler sings the "Abadaba" song and gets the biggest hand. He's an old vaudevillian and has entertained more soldiers than any other single person. He's in the Aleutians now and has visited more than 800 hospitals. . . . Helen O'Hara writes from Rio de Janeiro that she has never had so many dates or orchids. She says, "We're living at an elegant hotel. When I get back to Hollywood I'm going to throw rocks at my tiny apartment. We have plenty of butter, meat, wallow in French perfume, silk stockings, and our show was delayed three days because our gowns weren't finished."

He Loves His Work

Robert Lewis, who acted in "Dragonwyck" and produces Little Theater plays here in his spare time, got in touch with Tennessee Williams, of "Glass Menagerie" fame, who promptly sent him 12 plays for Lewis to take his pick and produce any or all. Lewis takes no money for his services. Whatever Little Theaters take in goes to war charities. . . . When I asked little Joan Carroll, working in "Bells of St. Mary's," to give me a story about herself, she said, "Are you sure you should be talking to me? I'm not an academy award winner, you know." . . . Ran into Barry Fitzgerald on "Stork Club" set. He grumbled, "Nothing ever happens to me." But there he was with a cut on the chin, wearing old clothes, and grinning like a Cheshire cat.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 no trump	2 diamonds	3 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

Daily accounts of military operations have made most readers aware of the significance of the expression "keeping open lines of communication." No bridge player can perform with any degree of efficiency unless he bears constantly in mind this elementary bit of card tactics.

Today's hand is perhaps a commonplace illustration. South opened with the normal bid of one no trump and West decided to overcall with two diamonds, not so much with the idea of trying to buy the hand, but because he contemplated the probability that North would take out into a major suit and that his partner might be at a loss for a good opening lead. North's raise to two no trump, without a diamond stopper on the surface seems to be a very drastic measure, but upon analysis it will appear not to be so. A no trump opening almost always indicates a stopper in every suit and where the responder possesses the values for a raise, there is usually nothing to be gained by showing suit, particularly if they happen to be minors.

West, feeling confident that his spade holding provided a sure entry, decided to establish the diamonds in a hurry. He therefore led out the king and Ace of the suit and cleared it on the third round.

South won and took the club finesse. This lost to East, who returned a spade. With nine tricks in sight South was in no mood for finesses and West's spade entry turned out too late to be effective. West had lost his lines of communication with partner. He chose to give up a diamond trick to the enemy at the wrong time. West should wish for his partner to hold originally two diamonds and consequently should let the opposition have their trick while East still retains a diamond to return should he get in. A low diamond opening was therefore the proper procedure. South would win and would have to place all his reliance on the club finesse. When this lost, a diamond would come back and the defense would gather in six tricks in all. Keep in touch with your partner.

Thru the Looking Glass

Most of us have a tendency to slump and let the shoulders droop, particularly if we do work which requires us to sit at a desk or work bench. Without realizing it you can develop a case of round shoulders that make you look and feel more tired and dejected than you might actually be.

The first step in correcting the condition, of course, is to try to remember to sit up straight at all times. Sit well back in the chair with both feet firmly planted on the floor and hold the backbone in a straight line from the tip of the spine right up to the base of the skull. This is by no means a rigid position and is much less tiring and far more becoming than sitting humped over.

There are a few effective exercises that help overcome round shoulders. Place the finger tips on the shoulders, with elbows held high in a line straight out from the shoulders. In short, quick rhythm, pull the arms back and forth as if trying to make the shoulder blades meet on the backward swing. Take it easy at first and work up gradually until you can perform the exercise to the count of 20 at least once a day.

For the alternate exercise, hold the arms out at the sides, shoulder high, palms up. At a fast tempo, swing the arms in a small circle. If you keep the arms more toward the back you'll feel a gentle pull on the shoulders which will tell you you're performing the exercise correctly. As with the first exercise, start this out at a mild degree, eventually working up to a routine paced to 20 or 30 counts.

These exercises are excellent not only for correcting round shoulders but to help get rid of the kinks and tension in the shoulders and chest.

BARRETT CALLS TAX EXEMPTION SOCIALISM AIM

Brands Public Housing an Alien Scheme

BY GEORGE TAGGE

Socialism is the issue in the battle over tax exemption for public housing on a vast scale, Atty. Gen. George F. Barrett said yesterday in an interview regarding the Armstrong bills, which are expected to be called for passage in the Illinois house of representatives this week.

Measures sponsored by Rep. Armstrong [R., Chicago] would repeal the tax exemption for public housing contained in laws of 1934 and 1938. Granted for federal public housing, now valued at 50 million dollars in Illinois, the tax exemption would apply to publicly owned projects planned by the city of Chicago and downstate communities whose valuation might run into billions.

Called Road to Socialism

The Republican attorney general cut thru the maze of conflicting statements about taxes versus service charges in lieu of taxes, and whether the government would take over the housing it built if the Armstrong bills are enacted.

"Tax exemption for public housing for the few is a plain signpost on the road to socialism," Barrett said. "It's high time we stop, look, and listen. Read the sign. Think where it points.

"This is more than an issue of whether some of the people will be forced to carry the whole load of local governments. The issue is socialism. Plans in some quarters are to continue to extend tax exempt public housing indefinitely. Our system of taxation and economics would break down—and that may be part of the plan.

Public Housing Alien Scheme

"Public housing did not originate in free America. It originated in Europe. Germany had public housing. Russia has it. But American strength defeated Germany and enabled Russia to save herself. We have proved the results of the American system in the fire of war, altho our natural resources and population size are outmatched by other powers.

"Our system is not socialism or state capitalism, despite the efforts of the alien minded planners to drive further the wedge they have started. Do we want to exchange our system for the kind that stifles the enterprise, the will, the soul, the freedom of Americans?

Calls for American Way

"We are asked to surrender our American system on petty grounds that tax exemption will get us a few hundred thousands of dollars in so-called service charges in lieu of taxes and maybe some more millions of our own money from the federal treasury.

"It is a classic example of being asked to trade our birthright for a mess of pottage. We should be American enough to refuse."

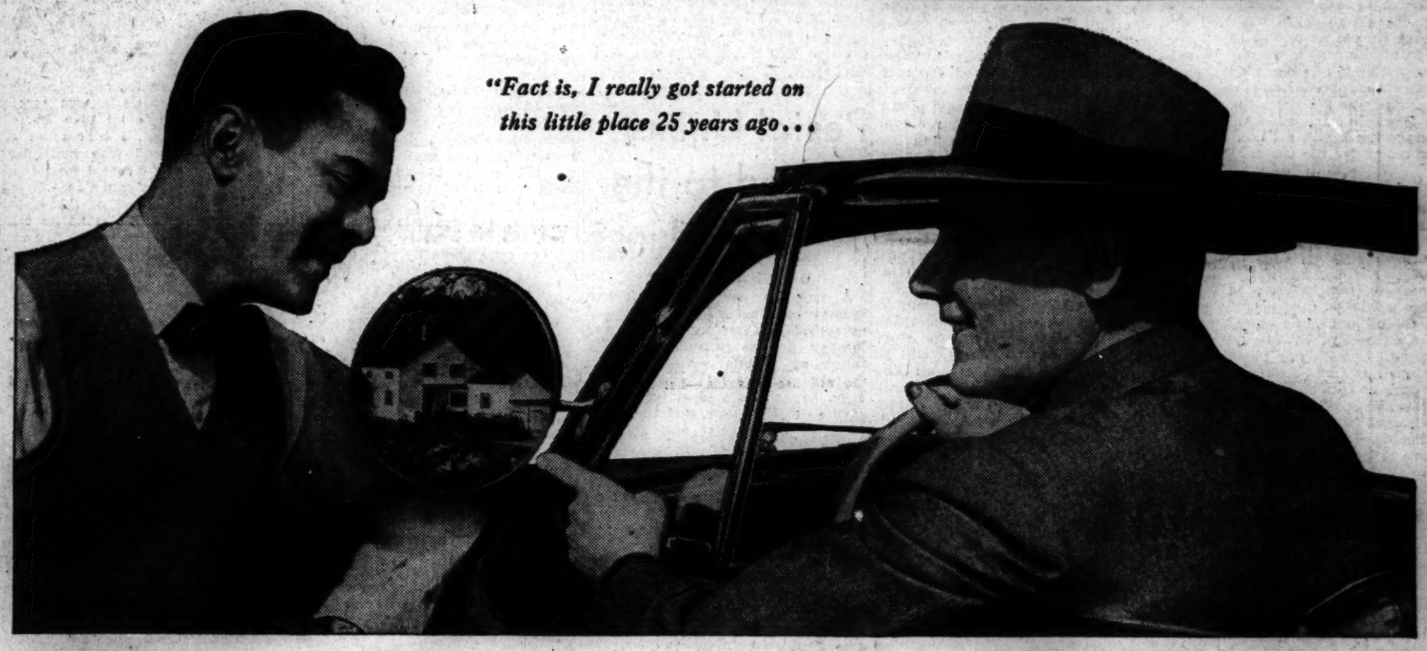
"And it's not done with MIRRORS!"



"Fact is, I really got started on this little place 25 years ago . . .

"Back in '17, during the first World War, I worked in a shipyard. We got good wages and plenty of overtime. One of my buddies was Bill Johnson. He was a good man and knew his job.

"Trouble with Bill was, like a lot of others, he had no 'money sense.' He knew how to make money, all right, but couldn't hold onto it. He and his family spent it like water, as fast as it came in.

"Then, at Christmas time, he slipped and hurt his back! It was tough. He couldn't go back to work, and hadn't saved a cent. We passed the hat, but naturally that only helped for a while."

"That sure taught me a lesson! I started in saving part of my salary every week, and I've been saving ever since. That's why we could buy this property and build our own house, just the way we wanted it.

"So, I say to you, Pete, take a tip from the Government and put every cent you can into War Bonds, life insurance and a savings account."

PETE: "You've hit the nail on the head, Uncle Hal!"

THE financial health of America as a whole depends upon the financial health of every individual. This in turn depends largely upon how much each of us knows about the part he must play in the general economic picture—for his own best interests and the best interests of the country.

Recognizing this, America's Life Insurance Companies are sponsoring this educational program as a public service to the 70,000,000 owners of life insurance and to every American citizen.

COOK COUNTY PREPS STATE TRACK CHOICES

Oak Park and New Trier Favorites

BY WILFRID SMITH

Either New Trier, defending champion, or Oak Park, the favorites in the 51st state high school track meet Friday and Saturday at Champaign, will continue Cook county's domination in this interscholastic sport. Six New Trier athletes last year scored 41½ points to win the state championship easily and were followed in the team standings by Maine and Evanston, respectively, while Oak Park tied for sixth place with Kewanee.

Warren Ely

In the entry list of 500 youngsters are three defending champions, Kendall Freeman of Sterling in the pole vault; Bill Augustine of East Aurora in the half mile, and Warren Ely of New Trier in the shotput.

Ely won his state title a year ago with a put of 51 feet 8½ inches. He qualified Saturday with a mark of 54 feet 5½ inches and no competitor on the same afternoon came within 4½ feet of his performance.

Callinan Favorite in 880

Freeman took honors in the pole vault in 1944 at 12 feet 4 inches and he has an excellent chance to duplicate his victory. Augustine, the other champion, with a mark of 1:59.4 for 880 yards, has been more than three seconds slower this spring because of an injury to his nose which impairs breathing. Moreover, he was soundly beaten in the district trials by Tom Callinan of Wheaton, whose mark of 1:58.3 apparently will be sufficient for victory. This was the third time Callinan has bettered 1:59 this year.

Comparison of marks in the 17 sectional meets last week indicates that Oak Park and New Trier are approximately on a par. Barring reversal of form or handicap of inclement weather, a survey shows that Oak Park may score from 18 to 27 points while New Trier figures to score from 17 to 26. No other team in the state probably can get more than 16 points.

Ely to Head New Trier Bid

Ely, of course, heads New Trier's bid to retain its team championship as he is certain to place in the discus throw as well as win the shotput. Ely finished third in the discus last year but was within 3 feet 4 inches of the winning mark of 136 feet 4¼ inches. Last Saturday in the district meet at Evanston, Ely threw the discus 140 feet 1 inch, a new district record. New Trier also has a potential double winner in Dick Warfield, who last year placed third in the 120 yard high hurdles and second in the 200 low hurdles. His qualifying marks Saturday were the best in the state.

Campbell Collins, sprinter, and Jim Kearney, quarter miler, plus a half mile relay team, which qualified with the excellent time of 1:32.6, will add to New Trier's point total.

Oak Park Has Strength

Oak Park has no such stars as Ely and Warfield but figures to score in nine of the 13 events. The leading Oak Park athletes are Chet Holsinger, rated next to Warfield in the low hurdles and one of the top five in the 100 yard dash; Herb Sauer and Fred Little, quarter milers; Joe Angner, a dependable half miler; Con Williams, one of the best four in the mile; Don Brandeau, whose mark in the high hurdles was second to Warfield; Al Wahl, shotputter, and Ed Ulvestad and Pierre Peloquin, pole vaulters. Ulvestad tied for second in the 1944 pole vault at 12 feet. Oak Park's relay team's sectional time was 1:34.

Jim Fuchs of Hyde Park, Chicago, and Bill Peters of Blue Island lead the 100 yard sprint field with sectional marks of :09.9. Fuchs also throws the discus and set a mark of 146 feet 8 inches Saturday. Peters shares the district leadership in the 220 yard sprint with Norman Ament of Von Steuben, Chicago. Their times were :22.1.

Bill Mack of Argo, who placed second in the mile last year, ran a sensational 4:27.5 race in the district meet at Maywood. Winning time for the 1944 mile was 4:33.9.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD

THE Cubs were in Philadelphia when the curfew was lifted May 9. . . . Despite the club curfew, which always was and still is 12 o'clock, some of the players held a watch party. . . . But it was no use. . . . Philadelphia at night is just the same, federal curfew or no federal curfew. . . . The sidewalks are taken in at 9 o'clock, regardless. . . . Edward W. Cochrane, former sports editor of the Chicago Herald-American, is in retirement on a newly purchased farm at Carmel-by-the-Sea, Cal. . . . His only worry is his golf game. . . . Lt. Comdr. Al Lind, captain of Northwestern's 1935 football team, who commanded a flotilla of LSM's at Iwo Jima, writes that the engagement was "almost as rugged as a Northwestern-Notre Dame football game." . . . Running alongside the Versailles, Ky., home of Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler is a vacant lot well marked by base paths, pitching mound, and well scuffed batter's box used almost continually by Chandler's sons, Danny and Ben, and their pals. . . . A neighbor recently pointed to the lot in talking with Chandler and remarked: "You'll never raise any grass with those boys running around like that." . . . To which the senator replied: "We're raising boys around here, neighbor, and when we get them all raised then I'm going to start thinking about that grass." . . . College football will have to rely more than ever on 17 year olds this fall. . . . Schools with naval units will not enjoy as marked advantage as they have heretofore, because most of the experienced football material has moved on. . . . The leveling off probably will produce a more interesting season, despite a decline in the caliber of play. . . . Full athletic scholarships, ruled out as a war time measure in the smaller colleges of Louisiana, have been reinstated for the fiscal year of 1945-'46. . . . Boys will be given board and lodging, books, laundry, and $10 a month expense allowance. . . .

Bill and Al Nicholson, age 5 and 3, visited their dad while the Cubs were in Philadelphia. . . . They resemble their pappy physically, but instead of being strong, silent fellows like Bill they talk a blue streak, and mostly about the fine jail in Chestertown, Md., much to the distress of their mother, Nancy, who wants them to grow up to be vice presidents of the Cubs. . . . This from Bill Leiser, sports editor of the San Francisco Chronicle: "That the San Francisco team of the All-America conference means business in the pro game after the war could have been indicated in no more certain manner than with A. J. Morabito's announcement of the complete personnel of his staff organization. The lineup includes General Manager John Blackinger, former manager of Empire, William Taylor, and Whitcomb hotels; Head Coach Buck Shaw, formerly of Santa Clara, the man Notre Dame, U. C. L. A., and others couldn't hire; End Coach James Lawson, head man at Stanford after Clark Shaughnessy resigned; Line Coach Al Ruffo, formerly with Shaw at Santa Clara; public relations, Robert [Bus] McGee, former star tackle at Santa Clara. Such men as these don't group together in anything that looks like a peanut enterprise."

V-E Day

This is the day for which we long have waited,
Dreamed of, prayed for, thru long, trying years;
Today the headlines read as we long visioned,
Seen thru a mist of grateful, humble tears.

But what is the strange something that is missing?
What is this heaviness that still remains,
Where is the joy, the ecstasy we visioned,
Now that the world our victory proclaims?

Is it that thru each mind there flickers
A picture seen in days not long ago,
Gleaming in the moonlight, row on row?

Is this the haunting memory that bestirs us,
Shading this triumph of the right o'er wrong?
Thank God that we recall our absent brothers
Who'll not return to join the victors' song!
—Jazbo of Old Dubuque.

HUMPHRIES SET TO FACE YANKS TODAY FOR SOX

Opener Rained Out; Nagel Rejected

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

James Dykes, who seems to have everything well in hand except the weather, couldn't introduce his first place White Sox to the Yankees yesterday as scheduled but hopes to go thru the ceremony this afternoon in Comiskey park. And if there's another delay because of rain or mud or something the whole affair will have to be postponed until tomorrow night when the Comiskey lamps are to be given their season's first workout.

The Sox have encountered so many delays this season that they are not looking for any more but nevertheless yesterday's rain-out wasn't exactly ill timed. Bill Nagel was busy with his second draft examination, and Tony Cuccinello was attending the funeral of his mother-in-law. Uncle Sam again rejected Nagel and Cuccinello will be back today.

Humphries Still Sox Choice

Johnny Humphries was to have worked against the Yanks yesterday but he'll do it today, perhaps, and the extra 24 hours probably won't make much difference either way in his case. He's been warming up since April 4 when he reported at the Terre Haute camp. Humphries didn't do much last season and this probably accounts for the fact that Dykes has been giving him the brush off, altho the manager can easily defend himself by saying that, with the numerous postponements, he's had more pitchers than needed.

Joe Haynes, who won three in a row before suffering his first defeat, is being groomed for the night attack on the Yanks tomorrow but the assignment isn't definite. The young man has arm kinks and if these still are present tomorrow, Dykes will have to cast around for a substitute. He can't figure on dropping Ed Lopat into the night party. The squatty southpaw is suffering from an abcessed ear and doesn't expect to work until the end of the week.

Curtright on Hitting Spree

Wally Moses, who was considered an indispensable, continues as one of Dykes' cripples but this now is more of a worry for Wally than for the manager. Guy Curtright, who was dropped into Moses' right field job last Saturday, came up with two singles that day, two singles in the first game on Sunday and a homer and single in the second game.

SANTA ANITA TO RESUME TODAY BEFORE 20,000

Los Angeles, Cal., May 14 (AP)—Horse racing returns to Santa Anita Park tomorrow after a four year war time blackout, with a throng of 20,000 or more expected to witness the opening card of a 40 day meeting.

Ten entries were announced today for the feature race, the $5,000 Anita Chiquita, at six furlongs. They were Pukka Gin, Civil Code, Vain Prince, Rover, Gold Mike, Bullpen, First to Fight, Bizerte, Black Badge, and Broadcloth.

Top weight of 118 pounds was assigned Civil Code, owned by a turfman long familiar at Santa Anita—Charles S. Howard, two time winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap. Vain Prince was weighted next at 114, with Broadcloth, Black Badge, Pukka Gin, and First to Fight in at 112.

FORM PLAYERS HAVE A BIG DAY AT SPORTSMAN'S

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

Mud runners, favorites, and the mutuel clerks had a field day as the thorobreds at Sportsman's Park sloshed thru the second program of the nine day spring meeting yesterday.

The track was a sloppy as all get-out after a downpour of several hours and the entrants with the mud marks lived up to their reputations, much to the delight of the form players in the meager crowd of 6,231. The day's handle was $339,811.

From the first race thru the featured sixth, the best price hung up was on the opener when Andy Lo Turco, injured on opening day, brought in the Hilltop Stock farm's Flyoma at $11.80 for a $2 ticket. An odds-on favorite, Mrs. T. M. Pruett's Conscript, accounted for the second half of the daily double and the experts who coupled the pair received only $20 for their efforts.

Bolus Wins at 6 to 5

Henry Tikulski's 6 year old Bolus, a better than average speedster, made off with the afternoon's top event, the sixth race, listed as the Chatham purse and carrying a prize of $1,600. The son of Boatswain-La Donna Mobila, with Paul Glidewell up, went postward at 6 to 5 and paid $4.60 in beating six other older entrants at five furlongs. Mrs. J. L. Chesney's Royat was second and G. J. Hossack's Mr. Rabbit was third.

The final race wound up in a dead heat between W. H. Bishop's Idle Sun, the 8 to 5 favorite, and Happy Hour farm's Xam, a 3 to 1 shot. Billy Nichols was up on Idle Sun which paid $3 and J. W. Martin rode Xam, which returned $3.60.

Push War Bond Sale

A $1,600 allowance race for older horses tops today's card and has drawn a field of seven headed by Twixt, owned by C. H. Dursch of Rockford. Twixt will carry top weight of 112 pounds.

Officials of Sportsman's and the Illinois Racing board are going ahead with their drive for a record war bond sale. Maj. Williams, chairman of the board, and Sophie Tucker, veteran entertainer now appearing at the Chez Paree, will address the crowd tomorrow in behalf of the bond campaign.

Hardy Golf Pupils Snub Rain Stymie

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

Memo to:
The Weather Man,
Chicago Division,
Re:

The 13th annual free golf school conducted by THE TRIBUNE and the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' association on the four courses of the Chicago park district.

Sir:

You fought a great fight last night, old pal, trying to frustrate the third lesson of this largest system of group teaching in the history of golf, but again you failed. For 12 years you have employed every ruse in your collection to bring about a complete stymie of these classes, designed to teach all golf-minded men, women, and children of the Chicago area the ABCs of the sport.

True, on May 7, the scheduled inaugural of the 1945 classes, you were given an assist on the cancellation of that instruction, having turned on a steady downpour thruout the day, but don't forget the real reason for the erasure of the lesson was the first report of V-E day. And now it can be told that in spite of the official postponement, several brave pupils still appeared at the four park courses. We saw them.

What's a Little Rain?
Remember That Snow?

Early last Sunday evening, you made your opening move with a steady drizzle which looked as tho it might wear off by school time last night. Thruout the day, you began to brew a real fancy dish, stepping up the moisture with gusts of wind and pushing the thermometer nigh down to 40 degrees. It seemed as tho you might win out by yourself, but you still haven't learned to respect the hardihood of Tribune golf pupils.

Above all, you have shown a low regard for the enthusiasm of the

BROOKLYN BEATS PITTSBURGH, 4-1, FOR 9TH IN ROW

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 14 (AP)—Brooklyn gained its ninth straight victory, the longest streak of the major league season, by beating Pittsburgh today, 4 to 1, on a seven hit pitching performance by a rookie righthander, Leroy Pfund.

Dixie Walker led Brooklyn's six hit attack on Preacher Roe with a triple, double, and single, scoring twice. Luis Olmo's double scored Dixie in the fourth to tie the game and Mickey Owen's two bagger did the trick in the seventh. Bob Elliott's error on Eddie Basinski's hopper permitted Owen also to tally in the seventh.

REDS BEAT PHILS, 5-4

Philadelphia, Pa., May 14 (AP)—Melvin Bosser, 25 year old war veteran whose only previous experience in organized baseball was in class "D" baseball, made his first major league start against the Phillies today and pitched the Cincinnati Reds to a 5 to 4 victory to break their five game losing streak.

Bosser was wild. He walked 10 and was relieved in the eighth by Walter Beck but received credit for the victory.

The Reds won the game in the third when they bunched three hits off Vernon Kennedy to score four runs with the help of three Phils errors.

BY EDWARD BURNS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

New York, May 14—Dewey Williams' three run homer off Bill Voiselle's first pitch as a relief pitcher in the ninth inning today gave the Cubs' a 5 to 4 lead over the Giants and, threw Voiselle into a threat of his first defeat of the year. However, Hy Vandenberg pitched a tying homer to Napoleon Reyes, the Cuban's second of the day, as Reyes led off the home ninth. Then, in the 10th, the Giants beat Ray Prim, 6 to 5, giving Voiselle his sixth victory without a defeat.

The Cubs had seemed a soft touch for Bill Emmerich making his first major league start until the fireworks in the ninth. The Cubs, behind as a result of Reyes' three run homer in the second inning, did not make their second hit until Paul Gillespie singled with two out in the fifth inning. Paul scored on a double by Bob Chipman, starting pitcher, but the ratio became 4 to 1 when Vandenberg was picked for a run in his first inning of endeavor, the seventh.

The score became 4 to 2 when Stan Hack hit his first homer of the year at the start of the eighth, the only run by the way, produced by the top half of the Cub batting order.

First Extra Inning Game

It was the first extra inning game of the year for each team but the Giants saw to it there was only one extra inning by behaving as follows in their half of the 10th—Manager Mel Ott opened with a single and went to second on Joe Medwick's sacrifice. Leon Treadway went to second to run for Ott and ran home with the winning run when Phil Weintraub singled to center.

The defeat was the fifth for the Cubs in eight games played since they left home and plunged them 5½ games behind the Giants whom they passed to go into first place the next to last day the Chicagoans were at home. If the Cubs take another whipping tomorrow they will be leveled off to .500, 10 won and 10 lost. After nine games they had won seven and lost two.

Reyes Hits 3 Run Homer

Things seemed to be going along nicely enough with the Cub defense up to the instant Reyes exploded his three run homer in the second inning with a bouncer to Hack; then Weintraub walked and Lombardi singled. But the second out had been accounted for on Kerr's foul to Hack. Reyes then looped his second homer, the Giants' 25th, into the stand just

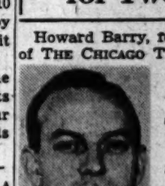
Appoint Barry Publicity Chief for Two Tracks



Howard Barry

Howard Barry, former turf editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, has been appointed publicity director of the Arlington and Washington Park Jockey clubs. This was announced yesterday by Benjamin F. Lindheimer, executive director of both organizations.

Barry was on the staff of THE TRIBUNE for 17 years prior to joining the racing associations last year.

The combined 64 day Arlington-Washington Parks meeting, which will be held at the Homewood course, starting June 25, again will be highlighted by the running of such nationally known events as the Classic stakes, American Derby, Arlington and Washington handicap, and the Washington and Arlington Parks Futurities. The combined meeting last year distributed more money in purses to horsemen than any other meeting in America.

GI INTEREST IN SPORTS IS HIGH, CRISLER LEARNS

Back from Army Base Tour in Panama

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 14 [Special]—When GI Joe comes marching home again he will bring with him the makings of the greatest sports era this country has ever known.

That is the opinion of Michigan's athletic director, H. O. [Fritz] Crisler, who, this morning, returned to Ann Arbor after a six week tour of army bases in the Panama Canal zone area.

Crisler was one of a group of leading sports figures named to make the tour by the army's special services branch.

"High Quality of Sports"

Crisler, who said he was amazed at the facilities for and interest in sports displayed even in the most remote army posts, sees the GI bill of rights as the instrument which will precipitate an increased interest in athletics on the college level.

"The bill affords an excellent opportunity for army trained and developed athletes to return to school and continue in sports competition," Crisler declared. "Colleges can look forward to a high level in the quality of athletic competition with such an increased number of athletes available." The nationally known Michigan football coach praised the army for its administration and organization of sports programs which, he said, develop an adequate outlet for excess energy among the troops both for participants and spectators.

Athletic Interest High

Crisler lauded the touch football programs developed in the Isthmus and suggested a rule revision, which is being adopted, that will permit a four man backfield and five man line aimed at developing the offensive phase of the game as well as bringing the style of play more in line with that of the standard football game.

Interest in college and professional sports back home was high among the soldiers he met, Crisler stated, adding that most of the men seemed favorably inclined toward continuation of as normal a sports program as possible even in war time.

Bratton K.O.'s Bartholomew at Marigold

Johnny Bratton, south side lightweight and 1944 Golden Gloves lightweight champion, knocked out Melvin Bartholomew of New Orleans in 2 minutes 20 seconds of the fourth round of a scheduled 10 round match last night in Marigold Gardens.

Bartholomew was down in the third round for a five count, but the New Orleans youngster came out fighting in the fourth. Bratton, however, scored with six fast rights to the jaw to stun his rival and then finish him for the 10 count.

A crowd of 1,539 saw three other knockout decisions on the card: Art Brown floored Jimmy Pierce in the fifth; Nick Kachardus knocked out Don O'Connor in the second, and John Hubbard knocked out Frank Green in the first.

In the only bout of the evening that went the scheduled distance, Marion Rhoten scored a five round decision over Eddy [Kid] Carson.

POSTPONED PREP GAMES SOAR TO 60 IN TWO WEEKS

Rain and west grounds yesterday forced the postponement of all prep baseball games in the Chicago area.

Rained out was the entire City league schedule, which brought to 60 the number of games postponed in the last two weeks. An attempt to play yesterday's schedule will be made today.

The district baseball meets, scheduled at Oak Park and Blue Island, were postponed. Oak Park will meet Argo today, while Morgan Park Military academy's contest with Peotone has been maved to Thursday.

Mud in Your Eye

"There's mud in your eye," says Jockey Aullie Carr to Jockey Walter Bara at the conclusion of yesterday's second race at Sportsman's. In truth, there is mud in Bara's eye as well as over his whole face and riding silks. Note that Carr is spotlessly clean. He and his horse Conscript led the race from start to finish, saving the rider a cleaning bill. [TRIBUNE Photo]

Illinois P. G. A. members who make up the school's faculty. Why, most of them can remember riding out those two snowfalls you flung at them back there in the middle '30s. You just can't stop them, friend, even on their day off, which happened to be yesterday. They huddled in Harry Adams' Jackson blvd. office yesterday noon, and for all that you were throwing your swiftest pitches at the time, they vowed they'd be on hand to fulfill their promises to the students.

Rudiments of Grip, Stance, and Swing

And fill the bill they did, 15 of them for the benefit of the 1,000 pupils who tackled the wind and rain to attend the lesson at the four courses. Marty Walsh of Hickory Hills and Red Dennison of Midlothian had the most comfortable time of all in laughing at you, as they brought their Marquette park class into the warmth of the fieldhouse there. With Red essaying the role of stooge, and Marty taking over the teaching job, they gave their pupils a thoro lesson in the rudiments of the grip, stance, and swing. They then conducted a question box.

The quiz idea also proved popular at the Diversey classroom in Lincoln park. This latter was the storm deck of the four, considering its proximity to your old buddy, Lake Michigan. Undaunted by the chilly mists whipping off same, a foursome of professors was on hand. They were Jerry Glynn of Knollwood, Jimmy Hines, national tournament chairman, who will take part in the Crosby-Hope match at Tam o' Shanter on May 26; Sam Bernardi, who made the long trip from Old Elm, and the veteran Lew Waldron of Lloyd Voorhees' practice range.

That Final Lesson Will Be Friday Night

Elmer Schacht of Ridge, making his Chicago debut in the school at Jackson park, joined with Charley Penna of Beverly and Julian Strud, newly appointed pro at Brookwood, in giving a small but appreciative audience a real closeup lesson.

Bill Gordon of Tam O'Shanter, Eddie Bush of Oak Park, Harry Adams of St. Charles, Pete Thomas of Chicago Golf, Lou Strong of Park Ridge, and Hank Foley of the home club, put on one of the liveliest sessions of the school in the shelter at Columbus park.

There it is, Weather Man. You're getting to be a big boy now, so why not get hep and go along with us? You can square yourself no end by bringing clear skies and warm temperatures for Friday night's final lesson on the same four courses, all beginning at 7:15 o'clock. If you do, we'll guarantee you a full set of lessons. Might even dig up a couple of pre-war balls.

Respectfully,
The Tribune Golf School

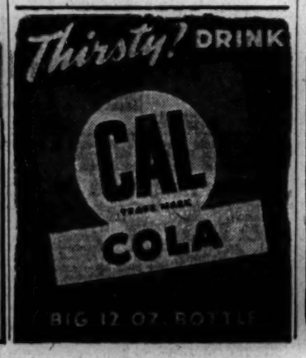
U. S. G. A. ELECTS GEORGIAN AS VICE PRESIDENT

New York, May 14 (AP)—Fielding Wallace of Augusta, Ga., has been elected vice president of the United States Golf association, succeeding Charles V. Rainwater of Atlanta, President Morton G. Bogue said today.

Isaac B. Grainger of Montclair, N. J., was named to the executive committee and James D. Standish Jr. of Detroit has been appointed chairman of the U. S. G. A. public links committee. Rainwater recently resigned from all three positions.

Arturo Godoy Knocks Out Walker in Fifth

Washington, D. C., May 14 (AP)—Arturo Godoy, Chile, tonight stopped Buddy Walker, Columbus, O., in the fifth round of a scheduled 10 round heavyweight bout before 6,000. The bout opened the capital's outdoor fight season, with Godoy hoping to fight his way to a match this summer with Champion Joe Louis. Godoy weighed 199 and Walker 190.



RECORD VALUE FOR PREAKNESS; $90,000 LIKELY

Baltimore, Md., May 14 (AP)—With a record list of 14 supplementary nominations among 71 eligible 3 year olds, the 55th renewal of the famed Preakness classic at Pimlico June 16 will be the richest of them all. Gross value of the race already has reached $81,170 and may touch $90,000.

The Maryland Jockey club released today the roster of turf bluebloods all set for the 1 3/16 miles classic with prospects that the two unbeaten juvenile champions of 1944—Pavot and Free For All—may clash for the first time.

With the traditional wreath of black eyed susans—Maryland state flower—that goes to the winner also will go a record purse of $63,670 as it stands now, and the amount will be boosted by starter fees.

First Run in 1873

The Preakness, first run in 1873, is a $50,000 added event. The record number of 14 supplementary entries paid $1,500 each for a total of $21,000, boosting the value to $71,000. Regular nomination fees paid by the other 57 eligibles in turn raised the pot of gold to $83,170, and added to that yet will be the $500 each starter must pay.

The second horse will receive $10,000, the third horse $5,000, and the fourth $2,000, which with $2,500 in nominators' awards adds up to $19,500 to be subtracted from the gross with the remainder going to the winner.

Pavot Pointed for Event

Walter M. Jeffords has announced that Pavot is being pointed for the Preakness and will not go in the Kentucky Derby. Free For All, owned by John Marsch, is getting top attention for the Blue Grass race at Churchill Downs, and off what he does there will determine whether he will be on hand here June 16 to battle it out with Pavot in a meeting hoped for last fall between the 2 year old champions.

Lippe, Wright Capture 2d in State 2-Man

Harry Lippe and Frank [Bud] Wright, members of the city champion Meister Brau bowling team of the Classic league, rolled into first place in the doubles standings of the state tournament in Bensinger's 31 S. Wabash last night with an aggregate score of 1,317.

Lippe had 257, 245 and 183 for a 685 total, while Wright shot a 630 series on games of 207, 205, and 220.

Buddy Bomar and Bill Flesch, former national two-man match game champions, took over fourth place with 1,281, Flesch getting 676 on 236, 216 and 224, to 605 for Bomar whose games were 214, 222, and 169.

BOMAR HEADS EAST

Buddy Bomar, national individual match game champion, will head east today for New York where he and Joe Norris of Detroit will form a doubles team to roll against Andy Varipapa and George Young, Hempstead, L. I.

They will bowl a 56 game series, 28 games in New York, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday and the balance the following week-end in Detroit's Palace recreation. The winners will be determined on a total pin basis.

Following this series Bomar will leave on an extended tour of exhibitions and instruction in cities in the southwest and on the Pacific coast. His route, which will include stops at many service bases, will take him thru Texas to Mexico City and return to Denver and Cheyenne, the northwest including Spokane, Tacoma, and Seattle and down the coast to San Francisco and Los Angeles. He expects to return to Chicago around the first of September.

KEELEYS NEAR TITLE

The Keeley Beers of the North End Traveling league all but clinched the championship last night when they won two games from Schamberger Schlitz while their nearest rivals, the Thompson Restaurants were losing a pair to Williams Jewelry.

These results leave the Keeleys three games in the lead with three games remaining to be played. A loss for the Thompsons or a victory for the Keeleys will assure the latter of the title. The best Thompsons can salvage is a tie, with its accompanying roll-off. Scores:

Budweiss	906	894	910—2710
Meister Brau	851	887	861—2599
Thompsons Rest.	1088	893	969—2419

TRIBUNE'S RACE EXPERT PICKS 6 AT SPORTSMAN'S

The Chicago Tribune race handicapper, who led all Chicago and New York newspaper experts in picking the longest priced daily double of the 1944 season, yesterday picked the double and four other winners at Sportsman's Park. The six winners were Flyoma, Conscript, David B. Jr., Bolus, Ilefetchit, and Idle Sun.

Flyoma scored in the first race at odds of $11.80 for $2. Conscript romped home in the second and paid $3.60. They formed the daily double which paid $20. David B. won the fourth at $4.60.

The Tribune selector's choice in the fifth, Alan F., ran out of the money, then he picked the balance of the card, Bolus scoring in the sixth at $4.60, Ilefetchit in the seventh at $7.60 and Idle Sun which finished in a dead heat with Xam in the eighth. Idle Sun paid $3.

WILLIAMS WINS 12 ROUND FIGHT FROM KID COCOA

Baltimore, Md., May 14 (AP)—Holman Williams of Chicago took a unanimous 12 round decision from Louis [Kid] Cocoa of Puerto Rico tonight in the 16th meeting between the old rivals by finishing strong in the late rounds. Williams weighed 167 to Cocoa's 159½.

Cocoa started fast, punching his way to a sizeable advantage in the first five rounds, but Williams took over as the Puerto Rican tired. There were no knockdowns.

FLORIDA SOLONS STUDY HARNESS RACING MEASURE

Tallahassee, Fla., May 14 (AP)—Florida would have year round legalized betting, if a bill pending in the legislature passes.

It would authorize a harness racing season to begin May 31, when the dog tracks close, and end Nov. 15, when the dog courses reopen.

Jose Basora Holds Robinson to Draw

Philadelphia, Pa., May 14 (AP)—Jose Basora, a 7 to 1 underdog, scored a major boxing surprise tonight by holding Ray [Sugar] Robinson to a 10 round draw before a sellout crowd of 14,653 in Convention hall. It was the first draw on Robinson's record.

beyond third base, scoring behind Weintraub and Lombardi. Hughes made a nice play to get Emmerich.

With two out in the third the Giants faltered in what seemed another scoring project in the making. Ott lined the ball toward the right field stand and started to jog around the bases with what he thought was his 496th homer. Umpire Goetz, however, said a spectator had caught the ball below the top of the wall, and ruled the hit a double. Medwick singled toward right but Johnson knocked down the ball on a nice play, holding Ott to third. Weintraub then looked at a third strike and with all his yelping couldn't get Umpire Reardon to call it anything else.

Chipman Gets Double

The Cub attack in the first four innings consisted of a single by Lowrey with two out in the second and a walk by Hack with two out in the third. After Lowrey and Johnson had been retired by infielders in the fifth inning Gillespie singled and moved to second on Emmerich's balk. Chipman then lined a double to left center, scoring Gillespie.

Hughes opened the sixth with a single to center, the fourth Cub hit, and got to second while Hausmann was tossing out Nicholson. Cavarretta then filed to Springfield, Ill., May 14—Administration forces, coming to grips with the economy bloc, used Mayor Kelly's votes to win a battle in the senate tonight and it was commented in cloakrooms that this was a result of Kelly-Green coöperation on traction and public housing legislation.

The roll call came on a motion to table a motion to cut $91,000 from the $1,137,000 appropriation for State Treasurer Becker. A special Republican economy committee had approved several increased items in the bill but balked at an item of $96,000 for microfilming unemployment compensation checks. Instead, the G. O. P. group proposed to give the treasurer $5,000 to warehouse the checks.

Sen. Miller [R., Hillsboro] led the attack on this and other appropriation bills which were advanced to passage stage.

Defended by Downing

Sen. Downing [R., Macomb], appropriations committee chairman, defended the administration budget, up from 520 to 604 millions, not including a post-war purposes budget of 127 millions. He said the treasurer held the microfilming work to be "essential."

"My loyalty is to the taxpayers," said Sen. Dick [R., Quincy]. "If I can save $91,000 for them without harming state service I will do it. This is an opportunity. My experience in courts proved that the best record is the original instrument—in this case the check. When these can be stored for $2,500 a year, or $5,000 a biennium, there is no sense in voting $91,000 to make a photographic record of them."

Mayor Kelly's legislative spokesman, Sen. Daley [D., Chicago] merely asked Downing whether the state treasurer wanted the money. Solemnly assured that the Republican treasurer did, Daley gave the nod to his followers and on roll call all 13 of them voted with free-spending Republicans to beat the economy bloc 27 to 20.

Sen. Baker Defeated

Sen. Baker [R., Davis Junction] was defeated on a voice roll call in an effort to cut out a $112,000 item to pay faculty members of the veterinary college to be established at the University of Illinois. Farmer senators disagreed on whether veterinarians are needed.

House Democrats made an unsuccessful attack on a proposal to build 10 new public comfort stations at $10,500 each on the state fair grounds. Rep. Preihs [D., Pana] suggested the cost be reduced to $35 each, which he said was the price scale in WPA days, but was voted down, 67 to 51.

The fair grounds were taken over by the war department after Pearl Harbor and have been used for storage purposes.

NAMES CITIZEN COMMITTEE ON REDISTRICTING

Sixty-two members of a citizen's committee on congressional redistricting for Illinois representing 24 organizations and many sections of the state have been named by Matthew Mills, chairman of the public affairs committee of the Union League club.

"An impartial group of citizens, dedicated to the proposition of obtaining an equitable congressional redistricting, should be able to assist in obtaining support for a sound redistricting plan," Mills said.

"Any redistricting bill should comply with the requirements of the Illinois Supreme court that districts shall be composed of compact and contiguous territory and contain as nearly as practicable an equal number of inhabitants and should by its frankness and nonpartisan character obtain support from citizens from all parts of the state."

Whipple Jacobs, president of the Legislative Voters League of Illinois, is chairman of the committee.

ASSERTS WMC'S 1ST CONCERN FOR VET IS WELFARE

The war man power commission has thousands of jobs open for high point soldiers who are being discharged by the army, but will not try to force a returned veteran to work when school or some other occupation or avocation would be better for him, Charles P. Casey, state director, said yesterday.

Casey announced that 22 new United States employment service offices are being opened in Illinois towns, including Belvidere, Calumet City, Elmhurst, Geneva, Woodstock, and Dixon, and each has the full time service of one or more "veterans' employment representatives." There are 18 USES offices in Chicago. Each representative, Casey said, is a veteran of this war or the last, or both, and acts both as a counselor and job service representative.

"Altho we have demands for many veterans, and employers are particularly anxious to get men with military experience, it is 'What's best for the vet?' that counts with us," he said. "We have talked a lot of young men out of taking jobs and into going back to school."

BRITISH FLYERS OFF TO POLE FOR DATA ON ARCTIC

LONDON, May 14 (AP)—The British Lancaster bomber Aries has set out on a series of flights over the north pole to collect scientific, navigational, and aeronautical information, the air ministry announced tonight. The crew of 11, with food and equipment for four weeks and with Arctic survival kits, is flying to Iceland first. From there it will fly over the geographical north pole, returning to Iceland.

The expedition will "study navigation in conditions imposed by polar flying, examine the behavior of compasses, radar installations, and automatic dead reckoning gear, collect data on engine handling and performance, and collect magnetic and meteorological data," the air ministry said.

ROCK ISLAND'S REORGANIZING PLAN APPROVED

Bankruptcy Ended After 12 Years

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe yesterday approved an amended plan of reorganization for the Chicago, Rock Island, and Pacific railway which has been operating under bankruptcy trustees for the last 12 years.

The reorganization terms are substantially those approved earlier by the interstate commerce commission with certain modifications added at the court's direction. In a separate opinion, Judge Igoe denied a claim filed by holders of Chocktaw & Memphis bonds for about a half million dollars for compound interest since the date of default. The C. & M. is a division of the Rock Island system and its bonds will not be disturbed under the reorganization, but interest arrears will be paid.

Capital Cut 12 Million More

Trustees Aaron Colnon and Joseph B. Fleming were directed by Judge Igoe to prepare a decree of reorganization, in conformity with the ruling, for his signature within 10 days.

Under the plan the capitalization of the road is scaled down from $452,259,000 to $356,117,000, a decrease of 12 million dollars from the figure set in a previous reorganization plan. The added cut was made possible by retirement of certain obligations of the road in the interim.

Appointment of the reorganization committee under the plan will be subject to ratification by Judge Igoe, as requested by the court. The effective date of the reorganization plan is Jan. 1, 1944, as provided by the ICC.

In rejecting objections of certain security holders, Judge Igoe observed that the terms provide equitable treatment to the various creditors. He said there was no need to consider the question of whether the plan approved by the ICC is binding on the court.

Rejects First Mortgage Plea

Among the objections turned down were those of first mortgage bondholders who protested allotment of new common stock to the general mortgage bondholders. Judge Igoe held that the first and refunding bondholders were adequately compensated for the rights and seniority they surrender.

The investment of the original common and preferred stockholders is wiped out entirely. In addition to the new securities to be issued the plan provides for a cash distribution of $38,290,742 to various creditors.

Of the new capitalization, $48,850,000 will be mortgage debt, with fixed annual interest requirements of $1,932,972. Including contingent interest requirements, annual charges will be $11,336,510.

A previous plan of reorganization was turned down by Judge Igoe on June 25, 1943, and sent back to the ICC with certain suggestions for changes. Subsequently the ICC announced the plan now approved. Expenses and fees called for under the plan were described by the court as reasonable.

STEVENS HOTEL BOND ISSUE SOLD TO MUTUAL LIFE

Robert T. Williford, vice president of the Stevens Hotel corporation, yesterday announced an agreement to sell to the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York a 4½ million dollar first mortgage, 15 year bond issue, at 4 per cent. Three million dollars was used to retire a first mortgage 4 per cent loan made on the property by the First National bank of Chicago. It was made by the Avenue Hotel company, former owner, in January, 1944, for $3,150,000, and had been reduced to $2,992,500.

The proceeds of the sale of the balance of the bonds to Mutual Life will be used later to retire 1½ million dollars of second mortgage notes issued in connection with purchase of the hotel by the Stevens Hotel corporation on Feb. 15, 1945. The entire bond issue is to be held by the insurance company without public sale. William J. Friedman and Le Roy Weis of Gottlieb & Schwartz were attorneys for the hotel and J. Benjamin Cleaver of Kirkland, Fleming, Green, Martin & Ellis for Mutual Life. The American National Bank and Trust company is trustee under the indenture securing the new bonds.

First National Gets New Rail Financing Job

The increasingly important part midwestern institutions are assuming in the handling of financial details of corporate reorganizations was emphasized yesterday in appointment of the First National Bank of Chicago as disbursing agent for the Milwaukee railroad reorganization managers in distribution of cash to the various groups of bondholders.

The reorganization plan approved by Federal Judge Igoe provided for $52,038,036 in cash distributions to holders of various general mortgage bonds, 5s of '75, and Milwaukee and Northern bonds.

Appointed After Bidding

First National was selected by the reorganization managers after competitive bidding. Bankers Trust Company of New York was appointed correspondent.

This is the second instance of First National's handling of financial details in a big railroad's reorganization. Along with Bankers Trust it handled the exchange of new bonds and voting trust certificates for old securities in the reorganization of the North Western.

Expenses Approved by ICC

Disclosure of First National's part in the Milwaukee's reorganization came with approval by the interstate commerce commission of maximum expenditures of $80,656 by the reorganization managers in disbursing cash to bondholders. Fees to the disbursing banks will be $18,950 and the remainder of the expenses will consist of costs of insurance and mailing.

The cash distribution and appointment of First National as disburser will be ruled on by Judge Igoe at a hearing May 22.

SHORT COVERING PUSHES PRICES OF CORN HIGHER

Short covering was chiefly responsible for a late show of strength on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday which advanced the price of May corn ¾ cent a bushel to $1.18⅛, or ⅝ below the ceiling price on futures. May and July sold at new seasonal highs. Closing trades were ½ to 1 higher.

Other grains, firm to strong at the start, gave way under profit cashing, but rallied in the final hour. Wheat closed ½ to ⅝ higher, oats ¼ lower to ⅝ higher, rye ⅝ to ⅛ higher, and barley ¼ to ½ higher.

CONSUMERS CO. BOARD ELEVATES J. J. O'LAUGHLIN

The board of directors yesterday elected John J. O'Laughlin president of the Consumers company. Formerly vice president, O'Laughlin succeeds William J. Kelly who resigned last Friday as president and director after holding office since Dec. 1, 1944.

David F. McKenzie, formerly in charge of wholesale coal, was elected vice president in charge of all fuel divisions of the company.

Buffalo Steel Strikers Vote to Stay Off of Jobs

Buffalo, N. Y., May 14 (AP)—About 3,000 CIO employes of Bethlehem Steel corporation's Lackawanna plant voted at a massmeeting tonight to remain away from their jobs in an "unauthorized" strike which has halted production in the plant's 30 open hearth furnaces and in six of the seven blast furnaces. The war labor board today ordered union and management officials to appear in New York City at 10 a. m. Wednesday.

The Pullman company said yesterday Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early has been offered a position with Pullman, Inc., but declined to disclose any details pending an announcement expected "within the next few days." An Associated Press dispatch from Washington, D. C., said Early told reporters he had under consideration a position with Pullman as an executive with headquarters in Washington, but that no decision had been made. He is scheduled to leave the White House June 1 after a long period of service under the late President Roosevelt and about two months under President Truman.

Eric Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, was elected a director of United Air Lines, W. A. Patterson, president, said. Johnston succeeds Sumner Sewall, who recently became president of American Export Airlines. Johnston is a member of the economic policy committee of the state department and of the war mobilization and reconversion board.

REPORT SHOWS 9 BILLION SPENT ABROAD SINCE '40

Washington, D. C., May 14 (AP)—Sen. Tydings [D., Md.] today announced that incomplete tabulation showed the United States government spent 9 billion 127 million dollars abroad in the last 4½ years while receiving 2 billion 533 million from foreign sources. The information came from a clearing house established in the foreign economic administration by President Roosevelt, at Tydings' suggestion.

The report said that on Dec. 31, lend-lease aid to foreign governments totaled 35 billion 383 millions, excluding 788 million worth of goods consigned to commanding generals for subsequent transfer in the field to foreign governments.

Tydings said "only very incomplete reports" have been received on installations—military, naval, and industrial—owned or controled by this government abroad. To date, the report showed about 3,700 installations covering 1,188,000 acres were acquired for 1 billion 687 million.

Chrysler Net Profit Rises in First Quarter

Chrysler corporation yesterday reported net earnings rose to $8,094,236, or $1.86 a share, in the first quarter of 1945 from $5,552,936, or $1.28 a share, a year ago. Sales climbed to $346,679,556 from $215,013,129.

The company recently has been permitted to proceed with some preconversion activities concerning buildings, ordering machinery, and reconditioning tools for automobile production, K. T. Keller, president, told stockholders. Such parts of the program as have been approved are proceeding with all possible speed because they must be completed before car production can begin on even a limited scale after war demands slacken, he said.

Bell Aircraft Has Big Gain

Net profits of Bell Aircraft corporation in 1944 soared to $3,156,975, or $8.01 a share, from $2,462,414, or $6.24 a share, in the preceding year, Lawrence D. Bell, president, said in his annual report. Sales totaled $317,473,879, against $232,134,628.

The army accepted 30,346,052 pounds of airframe weight, an increase of 25 per cent over the 24,204,120 pounds the preceding year. Since completion of the P-39 contracts in August, principal Bell fighter production has been devoted to the P-63 which the report described as a high performance, high altitude, single engine fighter.

Develops Larger Helicopters

The company is developing larger helicopters for military and commercial use which can be adapted for as many as five passengers, Bell said. Experimental work, particularly on jet propelled war craft, also is being carried on extensively.

Edward F. Bachner, president and general manager, told stockholders of Chicago Molded Products corporation that 1944 net profit was $164,084, or $1.18 a share, compared with $139,786, or 93 cents a share, in 1943.

CURB DELIVERIES OF HARD COAL IN EASTERN STATES

Washington, D. C., May 14 (AP)—Secretary of the Interior Ickes tonight imposed emergency controls on delivery of anthracite to consumers in 12 eastern states to meet a critical fuel shortage caused by two weeks' stoppage of mining.

Ickes, acting as solid fuels administrator, forbade retail dealers, wholesalers, and tidewater dock operators to deliver anthracite to any consumer having more than five days' supply of usable solid fuels.

He acted after a three day lapse in negotiations between anthracite mine operators and the United Mine Workers' union headed by John L. Lewis. About 72,000 miners have been off the job since May 1, when the old wage contract expired, despite "seizure" of the mines by Ickes.

CONDUCT TESTS TO EXTEND TIRE LIFE, OUTPUT

Combine Sections to Study Result

BY PHILIP HAMPSON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Akron, O., May 14.—Laboratory experiments and road tests by General Tire and Rubber company foreshadow improvements in synthetic rubber which are expected to strengthen this material's position in the nation's economy, company officials said today.

One experiment is being made with dutrex, a plasticizer developed by Shell Oil company which is made entirely of petroleum products. Dutrex is designed to make synthetic rubber more workable. In addition to increasing the strength and wearing quality of the rubber in the tube, it is designed to make manufacturing easier and faster.

Road Test 212 Tires

General has built 212 tires of GRS rubber. Parts of these tires are made of rubber of which dutrex is the plasticizer. Other parts of the tires are made of about 10 other plasticizers. The tires have been mounted on passenger cars and trucks in the Shell fleet and are being road tested to determine whether tire sections containing dutrex are superior.

Of the 212 tires 120 are being given tread tests and 64 carcass tests on passenger automobiles. The remaining 28 are truck tires on big petroleum trucks. The passenger car tires are made of synthetic rubber and cotton cords and the truck tires 70 per cent of GRS rubber and 30 per cent of natural rubber, using rayon cord.

To cover the country's range in climate the cars and trucks are being driven in areas from New York to Los Angeles and from Boston to Florida.

Makers' Objective Told

About 2 per cent of the tire consists of the plasticizer, which presides the necessary softness and pliability. An objective of tire makers is to find a plasticizer which gives a maximum of the qualities wanted, but a minimum of softness which cuts strength.

"To abandon synthetic rubber after the war, regardless of the availability of natural rubber sufficent to our needs, would be a short-sighted policy that could cause untold hardship in the future," said William O'Neil, president of General.

"We should maintain a large part of our production capacity. We should mix synthetic and natural rubber in our tires. And we will undoubtedly use much more rubber than the 600,000 ton peak of pre-war years. It is possible that rubber production, synthetic and natural combined, will reach the 1 million ton mark after the war."

Asks U. S. Sell Rubber Plants to Speed Development, Use

Newark, N. J., May 14 [Special]—Synthetic rubber will be the equal of natural rubber in all uses by 1950 if the government turns over its 750 million dollar synthetic rubber industry to private enterprise as quickly as possible, Dr. Edwin Richard Gilliland, former assistant rubber director, said today.

"Essentially the synthetic rubber program was carried out on the basis of complete government ownership, but it is unlikely that continued government ownership would furnish the necessary incentive for improvements in quality and cost that would be obtained from a competitive industry," he said.

Plan Public's Protection

"The country's interest would be best served by transferring this industry to private operation as soon as possible and in doing so a great deal of thought should be given to the best course for protecting the public and still making it attractive for private initiative to develop and improve synthetic rubber."

Gilliland's recommendation for disposal of government owned rubber plants and other facilities was made in a speech accepting the Leo Hendrik Baekeland gold medal and $1,000 award of the North Jersey section of the American Chemical society. He is the first recipient of the award which will be made biennially to an American chemist under 40 in recognition of accomplishments in pure or industrial chemistry.

Competition Severe by 1950

The principal product of the synthetic rubber program, Buna-S, will be the chief competitor of natural rubber, but the competition is unlikely to become severe until 1950 because of demand for all kinds of rubber and the time needed to restore natural rubber production, Gilliland said.

"At present the synthetic rubbers can replace natural for about 75 per cent of the tonnage to give products of satisfactory or superior quality," he explained.

"Another 15 per cent of the tonnage can be replaced to give products of usable but inferior quality. The remaining 10 per cent of the products require natural rubber."

Decries Carbon Cut

Washington, D. C., May 14 (AP)—Reduction of carbon black used in synthetic rubber tires was described as "a terrible thing" by former Rubber Director Bradley Dewey today.

"The country has put almost a billion dollars into synthetic rubber, and the performance of synthetic tires means a lot to our country," Dewey told the senate defense investigating committee studying a shortage of carbon black. "The people should know how good synthetic is. We should not save a little carbon black at the expense of doing those things."

A WPB order of February, since modified, cut the ratio of carbon black used in making tires.

Quit to Speed Output

Dewey said he resigned his post as rubber director thinking the WPB could more effectively expand production of carbon black. He said that last June, a month before he resigned, he had been shown a production schedule by WPB officials calling for an increase of 100 million pounds in the production rate of carbon black by early 1945.

WPB officials have testified that this goal was not met, but one told the committee last week that the program was well under way and that he believed sufficient quantities should be in production by June to meet all requirements.

San Francisco Bay Ship Yard Jobs Drop 60,000

Washington, D. C., May 14 —(AP)—Ship construction employment in the San Francisco bay area has dropped more than 60,000 in the last year, War Man Power Commissioner McNutt reported today. An additional cut of 60,000 workers is anticipated in the next six months, but a large increase is expected in ship repair employment, he said.

It's the neighborhood convenience . . .

Interested as people are in getting the broadest, most economical accident—sickness—hospital protection, there's a bigger reason why Chicago people logically turn to Continental for this protection. The reason is this:

Continental is a Chicago institution . . . is the only multiple line insurance institution with home offices in the middle-west. That means "neighborhood convenience" when it comes to paying claims . . . when money is needed most.

Added to Continental's reputation as America's No. 1 Accident and Sickness Insurance Company, this extra advantage . . . without extra cost . . . explains why Continental insures more Chicagoans against more disability hazards than any other company.

CUTBACKS SHUT BIG GARY TANK ARMOR PLANT

Threaten Layoff of Ford Workers

The increasing impact of cutbacks in war production as a result of the end of the war in Europe was reflected yesterday in the disclosure by Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation that it was shutting down its 60 million dollar armor plate plant in Gary and announcement by Ford Motor company of layoffs in its Chicago plant by June 1 if the present 48 hour work week is maintained.

Carnegie-Illinois is suspending 500 of its employes gradually, beginning yesterday, and will retain 70 workers for plant protection and maintenance. The Ford cutbacks reducing the output of M-20 armored cars by 1,700 will result in a layoff of 200 workers by June 1 unless the work week is shortened, W. K. Edmonds, regional Ford manager, explained.

Most Will Be Reemployed

A Carnegie-Illinois spokesman said most of the 500 employes eventually can be absorbed into other Carnegie-Illinois operations in Gary. He said it was not known how long the shutdown would last, but that the company was asking the employes to accept the suspension as a vacation.

"The suspensions at the Gary plant are due to a general reduction in the army's requirements for armored vehicles," Lt. Col. Frank O. Walsh, chief of the Chicago ordnance district's tank automotive branch, said. "With the defeat of Germany the demand for tanks has lessened."

Employed 2,300 at Peak

The 60 million dollar plant covering 26 acres was completed in October, 1942, and at its peak in 1943 employed 2,300 workers. It was built in six months by Defense Plant corporation and operated by Carnegie.

Edmonds said if Ford is permitted to cut the work week in its Chicago plant to 40 hours, it will not be necessary to discharge any employes. The company has applied to the war man power commission for authority to return to a 40 hour week at the plant.

... Sacrifice, pain and often death go hand in hand with the award of the Purple Heart.

... To those who receive it this honor is the symbol of faithfulness and bravery—of a will to triumph "and never count the cost."

... Nothing we here, at home, can do can ever match the sacrifice of those who fight for us in the name of decency and freedom.

But we do have a duty—and a privilege. We are asked to lend our money by purchasing war bonds—war bonds which help bear the tremendous cost of waging a successful war. That cost rises as we fight nearer and nearer to the heart of our enemy.

During the Seventh War Loan Drive we must buy more and bigger bonds than ever before. Last year there were two war loan drives by this time. That's why our quota during the Seventh is so large.

If you have any income, from any source—whether from work, land or capital—you have a personal quota in the Seventh. Look for it in the box on the right.

This quota must be met. Buy your share in the memory of those heroes who have freely bought their share of victory with blood, pain and death.

APPEALS COURT HEARS U. S. PLEA ON WARD RULING

Government Asks Upset of Sullivan Decision

The government's appeal from a federal District court decision holding illegal President Roosevelt's order for the seizure of Montgomery Ward & Co.'s plants in Chicago and six other cities was taken under advisement yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. Previously, attorneys presented oral arguments in a hearing lasting an hour and a half.

The seizure order was issued last Dec. 28 on a Presidential ruling that the mail order firm's properties were engaged in the "manufacturing, production, or mining" of materials necessary for the successful prosecution of the war. Ward's contention that the Presidential findings were erroneous was upheld Jan. 27 by Judge Philip L. Sullivan and the government appealed from this ruling.

Cox Pleads Government Case

Before the appeals court, Assistant Solicitor Gen. Hugh B. Cox, who came from Washington, D. C., to present the government's case, said his case hinged on the executive order being authorized by section 3 of the war labor disputes act or, in the alternative, on the exercise of the President's constitutional powers of seizure.

Cox reviewed the dispute between Ward and labor, asserting that the national war labor board had exhausted all remedies and had recommended to the President that something be done to make Ward comply with the board's orders. He said that three weeks prior to the issuance of the seizure order a strike was called in the company's Detroit stores—"the most vital war area in the country." The government feared, he said, that the strike would spread into other plants within that city, completely tieing up war production.

"Production" Vital Issue

Cox told the court that the crux of the whole argument was the construction of the word "production" as it appears in the labor disputes act: "It is a word with a broad, generic meaning and was used by congress to imply the various steps taken in the preparation, construction, maintenance, and storage of all items necessary to the war effort."

Stuart S. Ball, counsel for Ward, argued that the seized properties are equipped solely for the sale of general merchandise to the civilian public and that only a limited number of the retail outlets were actually under army seizure.

He asserted that the war labor disputes act makes no artificial definition of the word "production" and that under those circumstances it must be given an ordinary meaning. "If congress authorized the seizure of plants engaged in the production of retail items for civilian consumption it would have used clear and unmistakeable language in the act," he concluded.

PROPOSED RAIL MERGER

I would appreciate information on what effect the proposed purchase of Alton railroad by Gulf, Mobile, and Ohio will have on the latter's common stock.—E. S.

If Alton's earnings were to hold at the approximate levels reported subsequent to 1940, the proposed terms for acquisition of the railroad would appear favorable from the viewpoint of the G. M. & O. common stockholders. But it should be noted that Alton's earnings have increased sharply under war time conditions. The pre-war results, considered by themselves, do not provide ground for confidence that the merger would be profitable for the G. M. & O. shareholders.

On the other hand the union would create a new Chicago to the gulf system, with possible important traffic benefits to the component properties. It would also give G. M. & O., which connects with the Alton at East St. Louis, Ill., a line to Kansas City.

Contingent interest on the $22,675,000 4 per cent income bonds which G. M. & O. would offer in part payment for the Chicago and Alton 3s, 1949, would amount to $907,000 a year. In addition the buyer would issue 328,787½ common shares to the Alton bondholders. Alton's indicated earnings last year before allowance for interest on the 3s, but after all other charges, were $3,975,000. Such earnings, if maintained, would provide a substantial surplus over income bond interest.

In none of the seven years prior to 1941, however, were Alton's earnings on this basis large enough to cover interest on the proposed income bonds.

CHICKEN SOLD AT $1.88 PER LB., OPA CHARGES

An office of price administration investigator yesterday turned up what was called the highest over ceiling food charge ever found in Chicago—$1.88 per pound for live chicken—as the OPA moved to file four or more criminal and at least 18 civil actions against south side poultry dealers.

Marion W. Isbell, area director, said attorneys were rushing the cases to completion. One will be based on information filed by one investigator, now being checked by another, that she bought four chickens for $18 from a south side market late yesterday. Other information was obtained by a score of agents last Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

"This is little short of scandalous," Isbell said. "We have decided the only was to combat the meat and poultry black market is to take criminal action in the more flagrant cases. Live chickens at retail should be priced at 45 cents a pound or less. We find them being sold for 75 cents to $1.88 a pound."
